Dairy Industry Committee Meets

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co) — The first meeting of the Pennsylvania Dairy Industry Future Committee (PDIFC) was held late last month at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Building on Cameron Street.

"This committee results from the summit meeting of dairy industry leaders that was held at Penn State in 1992," Wolff said.

"The first session demonstrated that some very knowledgeable people are willing to put in long hours in an exhaustive effort to identify what needs to be done for

According to Mary Jo Cancelmo, executive director of the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, the concept of the outing was to match up golfing with raising funds for the non-profit foundation, which has historically depended on private donations and some public assistance to fund and support the youth development programs in Pennsylvania.

Over the past several years, the foundation's annual state grant of $40,000 was threatened because of state budgetary difficulties. Meanwhile, county and local govern-

Seminar To Help Farmers Speak To Consumers

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—A training seminar to help farmers speak for agriculture and deal more effectively and confidently with the media and the public is scheduled for Friday, October 22, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Farm and Home Center.

This "Spokesperson for Agriculture" training program is sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber Of Commerce And Industry and the Farm And Home Foundation to help active, involved farmers to project a positive image for agriculture when opportunities for public speaking or media interviews are presented.

The instructor for the seminar is Pat Haggerty, director, Alliance for a Clean Rural Environment, an organization supported by the crop protection chemical industry. It is the belief of the sponsors that farmers make the best spokespersons for farming. And to help prepare for these opportunities the seminar will cover topics that include public speaking, writing press releases and letters to the editor, and how to efficiently handle interviews by print and broadcast journalists.

Because of the financial support of the seminar by the Farm And Home Foundation, registration costs only $15 per person. This includes lunch and all training and reference materials. A 20 percent discount is given for Chamber Farm Associates.

Participation is limited, however, and registration requests should immediately be directed to Jay Howes, manager, agricultural service, at the Lancaster Chamber. Howes' phone number is (717) 397-3531.

Trading was at current prices but the undertone was fully steady going into late week. Line run breasts were quite irregular; some product was available and slow to clear but some buyers paid up numbers to book their needs. Leg quarters were available. Buyers and sellers disagree over values; buyers bid lower prices while sellers asked steady prices. Legs, thighs, and drumsticks cleared well. Wings traded at current prices but supplies improved and the undertone was fully steady.

New York & Phila. Frozen Eggs

Tuesday, October 5, 1993

The market tone was cautiously steady. Trading was limited as most buyers worked from hand to mouth. Raw materials were readily available but further processors became increasingly selective and usually bid lower for any additional offerings. Floor stocks were in good balance and for the most part easily satisfied buyers needs.

MOLLY PITCHER

During the American Revolution, many women worked alongside their menfolk in the battlefields. Called "Molly Pitchers" thanks to their tireless efforts fetching water for the men, many also helped by swabbing cannons after each firing. The best known of these women was Mary Hays. Born on October 13, 1754, near Trenton, New Jersey, Mary's heroism came at the Battle of Monmouth on June 28, 1778. While Mary was loading and firing a cannon after her husband, John, was wounded, an enemy cannonball passed between her ankles, tearing away the fringe of her petticoat. Undaunted, she continued her valorous efforts and was honored by General Washington, who issued her a warrant as a noncommissioned officer.

The soul little suspects its own courage. — Frank Crane

TIP OF THE WEEK

Harvest parsnips after a hard frost. Freezing converts the starches into sugars, greatly improving the flavor.

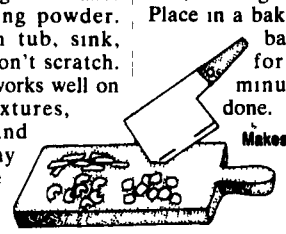
EARTHWISE

Clean your bathroom without putting noxious fumes in the air or toxic chemicals in the water. All you need is borax, baking soda, and vinegar. Use borax and vinegar in a 4:1 ratio to clean and deodorize the toilet. A half-and-half mixture of borax and baking soda makes a great scouring powder. Sprinkle it on tub, sink, faucets — it won't scratch. Vinegar alone works well on faucets and fixtures, and vinegar and water in a spray bottle takes care of the mirror.

SAUSAGE ROLL

2 pounds bulk sausage
2 cups diced raw apples
2 small onions, diced
2 cups dry oatmeal

On waxed paper, pat the sausage into a flat rectangular shape, about 20x12 inches and about a half-inch thick. Mix apples, onions, and oatmeal, and spread evenly over the sausage. Roll like a jelly roll, tucking in the edges. Place in a baking dish and bake at 350° F for about 45 minutes or until done.



Makes 6 to 8 servings.

OPINION

Recognize 4-H

Volunteers are the backbone of Extension and the 4-H Program. They helped create Cooperative Extension in the early 1900's and continue to guide its growth and development as well as multiply Extension's budget many times. Across the nation, volunteers play an active part in program direction, implementation and evaluation. Some of the more specific titles which identify their roles are: 4-H leader, Extension homemaker, and master volunteer. Others work on committees or projects without titles. Some are from community organizations which seek Extension assistance.

4-H leaders teach youth life skills so necessary for a young person's growth and development. Using "hands-on" techniques, over half a million well-trained volunteers in the U.S. help make 4-H one of the most cost-effective publicly supported programs of the 1990's. Master volunteers help to organize 4-H clubs, train 4-H leaders and homemakers. Extension Homemakers groups support 4-H and Extension in fundraising and creating awareness of the programs that Extension has to offer. Volunteer committees such as the 4-H Cabinet, 4-H Leadership Development, 4-H Foundation and Extension Executive Board help to guide and plan as well as raise funds for Extension programs for youth members and teen and adult volunteers.

In one year, Cooperative Extension agents work with about 2.9 million volunteers nationwide who, in turn, work with about 48 million other adults and youth, resulting in multiple benefits to clientele, volunteers and communities. Did you know that 50% of 4-H leaders were former 4-H members?

But why do volunteers volunteer? Most recognize a number of ways in which their work is of benefit to others in the community, such as improvements in the well being, knowledge, skills, and health and safety of others. Some also realize many personal benefits from their work, such as improved knowledge, skills, feelings of satisfaction in helping others, watching young people grow into mature adults, and improved family relationships.

The human touch remains essential in helping people continue their educations and putting university-based information to work in their own lives. This week, October 3-9, is National 4-H Week. We celebrate the week by applauding the 4-H volunteers everywhere who make 4-H happen. It would be a good time for you to volunteer to help your local 4-H program. A call to your county extension office will get you started.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Control Multiflora Rose

Multiflora Rose was introduced in the 1930s and 1940s by federal and state agricultural officials as a living fence, wildlife habitat, food source for wildlife, and an erosion control agent. While it does perform those functions, it has become a serious weed problem all across the Northeast.

Farmers have been attempting to control this weed by cutting, burning, pulling out with equipment, and applying pesticides. Leon Ressler, extension environmental agent, reports biological control is a possibility. Researchers at West Virginia University have identified a mite and a virus that have proven effective in controlling multiflora rose.

The virus causes the rose rosette disease and is spread by the eriophyid mite. A five-year research project was conducted to evaluate the effectiveness of the disease in controlling multiflora rose.

At the beginning of the research, 30 percent of the plants showed symptoms of the disease and one percent of the plants had died. At the end of five years, 94 percent of the plants had been infected and 88 percent of the weeds had died. For farmers and others who have land infested with multiflora rose, biological control now offers hope for clearing the land of this problem weed.

While biological control is not fast, it does allow the landowner to clean up the land without the use of herbicides or costly mechanical clearing operations.

To Construct Mud-Free Cow Lanes

Cow lanes are the paths used by farmers to control the movement of cows to and from the barn to the pastures or between pastures. These paths often cross low lying wet areas or drainways that carry water runoff during heaving rains.

As cows cross these areas, the ground turns to mud. Recent concerns for herd health and environmental concerns about the impact of muddy lanes, barnyards, and exercise areas have on water quality have caused farmers and environmentalists to look at new management practices to manage barnyard runoff, fence streambanks, and maintain grass sod in exercise lots.

Jerry Martin, extension associate for the Pequea-Mill Creek project, reports there are several different approaches farmers have taken to remedy the problems of muddy cow lanes. The first type is modeled after the construction of access roads. In this process, a heavy duty woven geotextile fabric is covered with crushed stone. The fabric allows water to filter through while preventing soil from mixing with the stone.

The second type utilizes cattle and hog slat seconds to lay on sections of cow lanes that are susceptible to mud or to line waterways that cross cow lanes. The third approach is the construction of a soil cement pad using soil, stone and cement. Each of these procedures has been successful.

The muddy conditions often found in these cow lanes have been eliminated and the cows have been givien a firm, dry surface to go to and from the pasture.

To Install SMV Sign

Accidents involving machinery and vehicles continue to injure and kill people, especially on rural highways.

Farmers should make sure that warning lights are installed and functioning on all farm equipment and horse drawn buggies. Also, place a clearly visible slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem on all farm tractors and implements.

When driving, always drive defensively and anticipate slow-moving machinery over the next hill or around the next curve. By properly lighting your slow-moving vehicles, you are taking a big step in protecting your life!

Background Scripture:
Genesis 17

Devotional Reading:
Genesis 17:1-15

Put yourself in Abram's place. He was 99 years old. His life was virtually over. Despite God's promise which he had trusted, he still had no son and heir. Then God comes to him and says again, "Behold my covenant is with you, and you shall be the father of a multitude of nations" (17:4).

What would your reaction be? Some people would be angry. Not only had God not kept his promise, but now he was heaping further insult by reiterating it at a time when it was obviously impossible to keep. Not allowing themselves the reaction of anger, others would hear the promise and conclude that all their faith had been for nothing.

HE LAUGHS

So what did Abram do? He "fell on his face and laughed" (17:17). Actually, in dealing with God one needs a sense of humor, as God must need one in dealing with us. The sheer absurdity of God's promise caused Abram to break up. It is with amusement that he asks, "Shall a child be born to a man who is a hundred years old? Shall Sarah, who is ninety years old, bear a child?" Come on, God, you're pulling my leg!

Actually, God's promises to us often seem equally absurd. When we have lost the job in which we've spent 30 years, the assurance that he will see us through this experience begins to seem empty if one after another prospective employer tells they have no place for us. When it's obvious that nothing or no one is going to be able to save our marriage, what's the good of trusting in God? When our doctor tells us our cancer is inoperable, and we've got only a few weeks to live, what good is our trust in God?

The answer to Abram's faith was not the birth of his son Isaac, but that God had a purpose for Abram and nothing could keep that purpose from being fulfilled. God promised to make Abram the father of many nations, not for Abram's sake, but for his own. His promise of inheriting Canaan was not to make Abram to feel like a winner in the cosmic lottery, but because it served God's plan. Abram and Sarah would have a child, not so that they could boast of God's favor, but so that Isaac could serve God's purpose too.

WHAT GOD PROMISES

I'm sure there are couples every bit as faithful, or more, who remain childless. That does not mean they are loved any less by God. Nor does it mean that he is any less faithful in keeping his promises. The specifics of our lives — whether we marry, whether we keep this job or that, whether we have children, whether we live to a ripe old age — are generally not part of God's promise to us. What God does promise each of us is that he has a purpose for our lives, and he will be with us no matter what happens along the way to the fulfillment of that purpose.

God established an everlasting covenant with Abraham and his descendents. "I shall establish my covenant with him (Isaac) as an everlasting covenant for his descendants after him" (17:19). A covenant is an agreement between a superior and an inferior. It is offered by the superior. The inferior can either accept it or reject, but this is not a quid pro quo transaction. God always offers so much more than he requires of us. And that is why, even when we break the covenant, God does not call it null and void. It is an offer that has no expiration on it.

instrumental in maintaining cooperative extension and research funding in the Pennsylvania state budget. This funding has benefited 4-H and many other programs. He has maintained ties with 4-H as a parent and as a strong supporter of the program within his legislative district and throughout the state.

"Hayes is a special friend of Penn State Cooperative Extension, Penn State and the College of Agricultural Sciences," says Dr. Donald Evans, assistant dean for extension in the College, who presented the awards at this year's Huntingdon County Fair. "He has always found a way to help both 4-H and FFA youth. He's an inspiration and role model for them."

As a 4-H youth, Hayes grew vegetables and won many livestock ribbons for his sheep and market lambs. "Through 4-H, I developed veryk important leadership and life skills that prepared me for a lifetime of public service," says Hayes. "My contact with professionals in extension helped to form my goals and aspirations."

Hayes has a bachelor of science degree in agricultural education and a master's degree in social sciences from Penn State. He worked as a high school social studeis teacher before being elected to the House of Representatives in 1971. He served as a majority caucus chairman, majority whip, majority leader and minority whip before retiring in 1992.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, Okla.
Wednesday, October 6, 1993

OKLAHOMA NATIONAL STOCKYARDS WEEKLY CATTLE SUMMARY: Compared to last week: Feeder steers steady. Steer calves lost last weeks major advance and are $2.00-$6.00 lower. Feeder heifers and heifer calves steady to $2.00 higher with exception of 6 weights $1.00-$2.00 lower. Markets generally uneven with moderate to good demand for front end cattle and fair demand for balance. Brahma cross yearlings and calves came under additional downward pressure as buyers remember last winters difficult conditions. Buyers seemed to concentrate on heifer calves due to wide gap created between steers and heifers last week. Yearling condition somewhat improved with several in slightly thin condition and attractive to buyers. Yearling weigh-ups continue average to full. Calf quality unchanged from last week and average with bulk in average to fleshy condition. Utility slaughter cows $3.00-$4.00 lower, Cutters steady to $1.00 lower. Slaughter bulls steady. Packer demand continues light to moderate. Receipts this week 9,900; last week 6,131; last year 11,481. Supply consisted of 53 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs.; 40 percent calves under 600 lbs.; 7 percent cows and bulls. * () Indicates weighted average weight or price.

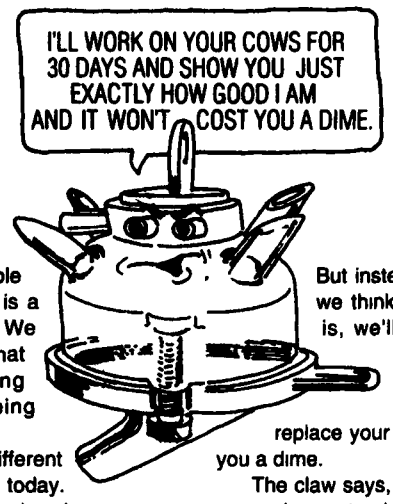
WE THINK UNIVERSAL'S TIDAL FLOW CLAW CAN TELL ITS OWN STORY BETTER THAN WE CAN.



This new, high-capacity, durable and competitively priced claw is a far cry from where we started. We had a few disappointments that sent us back to the drawing board. The frustration of being close, but not close enough.

These new milkers are different from any other on the market today. Enlarged inlets and a larger chamber design handle increased capacity and improve vacuum stability.

But instead of just telling you how good we think the Universal Tidal Flow Claw is, we'll give you a 30-day free trial. We'll install it and show you how to operate it. If you're not satisfied, we'll remove it, replace your old equipment and it won't cost you a dime.

The claw says, "I'll put up or shut up. Just give me a chance to show you what I can do for you." Why not give him a chance? Contact your Service Center nearest you today.

Scott Deliveres Lectures At Distinguished Series

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Because of the need for sustainable development--development which meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their needs--engineers have a wealth of opportunities in the agricultural and biological sciences.

And according to Dr. Norman Scott, vice president for research and advanced studies at Cornell University, sustainable agriculture may be the basis or "driving force" for these sustainable developments if properly engineered. Scott delivered two lectures as part of the third annual Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences Distinguished Lecture Series on campus last week.

"Engineers have worked their way through many of the fundamental sciences such as chemistry, physics and mathematics," Scott said. "Why not biology? Research in biotechnology for crop production, animal agriculture and bioprocessing will benefit from increased involvement by engineers.

"Biotechnology, high performance computing, advanced materials and processes, environmental technologies, and manufacturing will cut across advances in corp production, animal agriculture and bioprocessing," Scott said. "Future engineering research and education depend on a greatly enhanced interaction with biological sciences."

Scott said the future for agricultural research is exciting, but since research is the basis of knowledge for teaching and extension, the research must be carried out consistent with the obligation to direct the energy for education.

In Scott's proposed planned community that could sustain itself, agriculture would provide the open space and renewable resources for food and non-food materials made from ag products such as biodegradable plastics and soybean oil for newsprint ink.

Based on environtmental consciousness, you could put together "engineer" around agriculture the other elements of work, transportation reduction, energy reduction and housing. With this kind of look into the future, agriculture forms the base for society then just as it does now.

Scott is noted for his research in the fields of bioengineering and agricultural structures and environment. He is the current president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and a member of the National Academy of Engineering. His work has been published extensively, and he has won numerous awards and honors for his research and teaching.

S.W. Hay, Grain Auction Resumes

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — After a summer recess, the Southwestern Pennsylvania Hay and Grain Marketing Association has resumed holding its hay and grain auctions twice a month at the Westmoreland Fairgrounds.

The first auction of the fall was held Tuesday. The next auction is Oct. 19.

The auctions run through January and then are to recess again until the following fall.

Sales dates are Nov. 2 and Nov. 16, Dec. 7 and Dec. 21, and Jan. 4 and Jan. 18.

These sales are unique because all loads are to be sampled at the fairgrounds for a forage analysis prior to each sale.

Each day of auction, sales start at 11 a.m. However, the association requests that all loads being offered for sale be at the fairgrounds no later than 10 a.m.

Future Calvings And Herd Size

How many cows and heifers will be calving over the next six months? How many cows will be dried off and how many will leave the herd? All of this will affect the number of cows in milk over the next six months, the amount of milk produced and the size of future milk checks.

This information can help you decide if you will have enough cows and milk to build a good milk base. This can be a problem if your herd is on a seasonal calving pattern, and breeding problems are causing longer calving intervals. When this happens, the herd can gradually slip from a late summer and fall calving pattern to a winter and spring calving pattern; cows that once produced base-building milk are now producing excess milk that could be worth $1.00 to $1.00 less per cwt. And, this problem perpetuates itself because if the herd's offspring freshen as first-calf heifers at 24 months of age, they'll also be calving at the wrong time of the year.

One way to preserve your base-building opportunity is to have cows calve uniformly throughout the year. That way, when one group of cows slip out of the base-building period, due to breeding problems etc., another group slips into the base-building slot.

Will you have enough cows and heifers freshening to meet your needs, or should you be lining up some financing to purchase extra replacements for the future? How many extra cows and heifers will you have to help you grow into a planned expansion of the herd? Do you have adequate maternity areas, housing facilities and feed storage to handle seasonal calving needs and futkure herd sizes?

Your DHIA herd Summary report can help you answer these questions, and give you a clue as to how many cows will be milking in each of the next six months. A secton of Raleigh's DHIA Herd Summary report, which contains this information, appears in Table 1. Penna's DHIA Herd Summary Report II has a similar section.

For the projections on your DHIA Herd Summary report to be fairly reliable, the data entered onto your DHIA barnsheet or into the DHIA computer must be complete and accurate. Work closely with your DHIA technician to help assure the accuracy of the date entered. Due dates are especially important.

The size of the milking herd is affected by the number of cows and heifers calving. For accurate projections, you'll need to enter due dates for heifers, too. This is done automatically when the herd is enrolled in the DHIA heifer program. Consult your DHIA technician for more information on these heifer options and due dates for heifers.

The number of cows leaving the herd is also considered when estimating future herd size. Unless you specify otherwise, the cow removal rate for the future is assumed to be the same as that of the past.

Your DHIA records can help you take a peek into your future.

Livestock Judging Team Finishes First In Beef Competition

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Livestock Judging Team got the fall livestock judging season off to a tremendous start at the Eastern States Exposition Livestock Judging Contest in West Springfield, Mass.

Following only three weeks of practice and precontest workouts that included stops at Centre County Grange Fair (market steers, hogs, and lambs) in Centre Hall, Rally Farms (Angus cattle), and Twin Silos Farm (Suffolk sheep) in Millbrook, N.Y., the team was well-prepared for competition.

In the first contest of the fall season, and for the second consecutive contest, Penn State finished first in beef cattle judging and oral reasons. Penn State also finished first in sheep judging and second in swine judging. They outscored Virginia Tech, Delaware Valley College, and West Virginia to finish first overall.

In individual categories, Penn State team members finished with several noteworthy placings, including five of the top 10 individuals overall. Doug Musser, a dairy and animal science major from Elizabethtown, led the team by finishing second overall. He was third in sheep judging, fourth in beef cattle judging, and seventh in oral reasons. Doug's performance was followed closely by four teammates, with only seven points separating second through eighth places.

Julie Mikesell, a health policy and administration major from Marion Center, finished fourth place individual overall, just one point ahead of teammates Henry Zerby and Brian Miller in fifth and sixth places, respectively. Julie finished third in swine judging, fourth in sheep judging, and sixth in oral reasons. Henry Zerby, a dairy and animal science major from Beavertown, finished as high individual in beef cattle judging and received a watch from the American Angus Association. He also finished fifth in oral reasons and eighth in sheep judging.

Brian Miller, a dairy and animal science major from Knox, also had a consistently good day, finishing second in beef cattle judging, fifth in sheep judging, and ninth in oral reasons. Fred Weaver, a dairy and animal science major from Ephrata, rounded out the top five placing Penn State contestants by finishing eighth overall. Fred garnered second place in swine judging and third in oral reasons.

Brian Beam, a dairy and animal science major from Elverson, and Amy Smith, an accounting major from Windsor, contributed to the team's success with consistent placings and oral reasons.

Los Awarded National Medal

WAYNE, N.J. — American Cyanamid Company announced that Dr. Marinus Los, director, Crop Sciences Discovery, in its Agricultural Research Division, has been awarded the National Medal of Technology by President Clinton in a ceremony at the White House recently.

Los is being honored for his contribution to the discovery and commercialization of environmentally-friendly herbicides to help ensure an abundant food supply for a growing world population. His discovery of the imidazolinones have reduced the quantity of herbicides used in the United States by 70 million pounds since their introduction in 1985.

The National Medal of Technology, administered by the U.S. Department of Commerce, is the United States' highest award in recognition of extraordinary achievement in the commercialization of technology. The medal has been presented to 75 individuals and three companies since the program's inception in 1985.

"Dr. Los' discovery of the imidazolinones underscores the role of scientific research in solving critical world needs and maintaining this country's leadership position in global markets," said Albert J. Costello, Cyanamid chairman and chief executive officer. "The National Medal of Technology honors the men and women who, through the successful commercialization of their scientific achievements, have enhanced the quality of life for every American, as well as the world community. It is with great pride that we salute Dr. Los for his contribution to this and future generations."

Los' discovery of the imidazolinones is the result of 14 years of research. Because the imidazolinones bind with an enzyme that is only present in plants, they are not toxic to humans or wildlife. Highly effective, imidazolinone herbicides need only be applied in ounces per acre. Cyanamid has commercialized four individual major agricultural products and many combination products from this class of chemicals. Annual worldwide sales of imidazolinone products are in excess of $500 million.

Los was born in the Netherlands in 1933 and was educated in the United Kingdom. An honor graduate of Edinburgh University, Los joined Cyanamid in 1960 as a research chemist. He is the inventor on 51 patents, 28 of which are related to the imidazolinones.

Maryland Has Fewer Farms

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has announced that the number of farms in Maryland in 1993 is estimated at 15,000, down 600 from the 15,600 farms in 1992.

"Agriculture is still Maryland's number one industry. But we must continue to make every effort to preserve our agricultural land so that in the next century this state's economy and quality of life are maintained," Walker said.

Overall in Maryland, the total land in farms for 1993 is 2.2 million acres, which is unchanged from the previous year. The average farm size increased to 147 acres compared with the average size of 141 acres in 1992 and 146 acres in 1991.

"I am proud to say that Maryland leads the nation in the number of acres in our agricultural land preservation program. In addition, we have a strong group of dedicated farm families who are committed to agriculture," said Walker.

Nationally, the number of farms in the United States in 1993 is estimated at 2.068 million, down 1 percent from 1992. Total land in farms is 978 million acres, down 1.8 million from last year. The average farm size increased from 468 acres in 1992 to 473 in 1993.

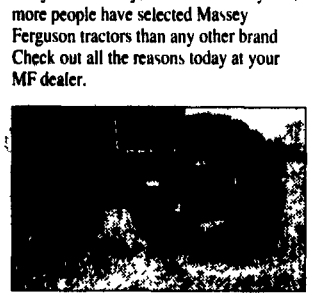
When building a 2WD tractor, there's little reason to conserve weight In fact, you may well end up adding weight for traction
With 4WD tractors, you really don't need, or even want so much weight It just makes the tractor less maneuverable, hurts performance, lowers efficiency and increases soil compaction
MF 300 Series 4WD tractors are engineered with just the right weight, balance and strength for optimum 4WD performance This means easy handling, with all the performance of bigger, more expensive tractors
Smart engineering is just one of the many reasons why, over the last 28 years, more people have selected Massey Ferguson tractors than any other brand Check out all the reasons today at your MF dealer.

Designed from the beginning for 4WD performance.



Wheels don't lean on full lock, reducing soil damage and tire wear.

Standard hydrostatic steering for fast, easy turns and precise handling.

Low-rate MF financing for qualified buyers makes ownership easy.

N.E. District Classic Sale Held

HARFORD (Susquehanna Co.) — The Northeast District Classic Sale was held recently at the Harford Fairgrounds. The annual sale, sponsored by the Susquehanna County Holstein Club, consists of cows, bred heifers, open heifers, and calves, which averaged $1,538.

Outstanding individuals, deep pedigrees, near-perfect weather, and a large cow meant strong prices throughout the sale. Wayne Weaver auctioned the 64 lots with Lloyd Pease reading pedigrees. Don Brooks worked the ring with several 4-H'ers leading the animals in the ring.

The animals were selected by the Holstein club directors from the top of the best herds in northeastern Pennsylvania.

The top-selling animal, a beautiful 2-year-old Tesk daughter, was consigned by Bob Frechen from Thompson. She was purchased by James Walker of Susquehanna for $3,000. The second and fourth high sellers were Prelude calves from the Rosylba Jetson Lucky family. Walter Brooks' consignment, a March calf, sold for $2,800 to Tom Barnes, Springville. Peasedale Prelude Lori, consigned by Peasedale Farm, Susquehanna, backed by a Very Good Blackstar dam, sold for $2,625 to Riverside Farm, Honesdale. Third high seller, also consigned by Bob Frechen, was a great-framed Astro Jet cow, due in October to Broker. This animal sold to Robbie Gustin of Meshoppen, for $2,675.

Lantland Farms of Horseheads, N.Y. sent a Very Good Jethro daughter, backed by a 92 point dam. Riverside Farms purchased this deep-ribbed cow for $2,650. A choice of flush, due January 94 by Tomar Horton out of three generations of high production dams, was offered by Dave Castrogiovanni of Montrose.

Colored Sheep Show At Big E

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — The Natural Colored Sheep Show at The Big E was held recently in the show ring of the Agricultural Arena.

Most commercially sold wool is white and buyers prefer it to be all white with no dark fibers. In that way, the white wool can be easily dyed and the dye should take evenly throughout the wool.

Spinners and weavers like the naturally colored wool for their projects because it does not have to be dyed, and because the color is true and never fades regardless of age or washing. Therefore, wool quality is one of the determining factors that the judge looks for in these sheep.

Grand champion ewe was J. Bull 89, a yearling ewe shown by Jennifer Bull of Selkirk, N.Y. The reserve grand champion ewe also came from the yearling ewe class in the form of QC 224 owned by R. and M.A. Johnson of Lakewood, N.J.

York County Girl Shows Southdown Champion

She exhibited the Southdown champion ewe, a yearling ewe named Wilma. Neither one a stranger to the show ring, Wilma was previously named supreme champion ewe at the Eastern National Junior Show in Maryland and champion in the junior show at the York Fair. Wilma was purchased at North American Livestock Exposition in Louisville last year and Jennifer's taking her back with high hopes in November.

Jennifer also exhibited the champion Hampshire ram, a spring ram named Big'n. The ram has a good record, having been reserve champion at the Sussex County Fair in New Jersey; champion at Gaithersburg, Maryland; supreme champion ram in junior show at York Fair; and champion ram at Eastern Nationals in the junior show. Big'n was bred and owned by Walnut Lane Farm.

Jennifer is a seventh grader at Dallastown Area Middle School, and a four-year member of the York County 4-H Lamb and Wool Club. Her family operates Walnut Lane Farm, a 42-acre sheep and swine farm.

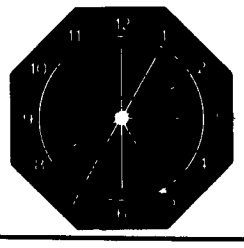
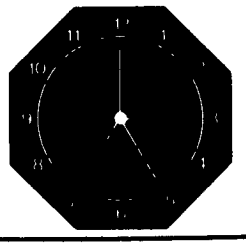
DRAG AUGER FEEDING SCHEDULE?



BIG DUTCHMAN CHAIN FEEDER FEEDING SCHEDULE!



How often do your feeders run in a day? It is generally necessary to operate drag auger feeders as many as eight or more times per day because of limited feeding space and the small quantity of feed presented at one time. That creates tremendous competition for the little feed available. The result of this competition is damaged eggs... from feet, toes and collisions. Big Dutchman chain feeders can feed your flock by running as few as three or four times a day, with little competition for feed, a calmer flock and fewer cracks and checks.

IF YOU ARE... FORCED TO FEED

more than four times a day or during peak laying periods, call 911 for your egg casualties or. . . call (717) 393-5807 for information on how our chain feeder pampers your product. . . from cage to carton.

Mifflin Farmers' Association Holds Meeting

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

When members and guests of the Mifflin County Farmers' Association met at the Ellen Chapel Church Fellowship Hall for their annual meeting on September 13, they found a full agenda of both local-interest and state-related items.

Re-elected to serve another year for the Mifflin County Farmers' Association is (left to right) Janice White as Secretary, Dave Stuck as Vice President, Pauline Glick as Treasurer and Membership Processor, and Stan Dunk as President.

At the meeting, Stan Dunk, Pauline Glick, and Mark Ellinger were elected to serve as Directors on the Board. As is policy, the Board of Directors met one week later on their usual meeting night to elect officers for the group. Re-elected for a one year term was Stan Dunk for president, Dave Stuck for vice president, Janice White for secretary, and Pauline Glick for treasurer and membership processor. Also at the board meeting, Stan Dunk, Elrose Glick, and Pauline Glick were asked to represent the Mifflin County Farmers' Association as delegates to the State Convention in Hershey November 15-17. Dave Stuck, Dave Esh, Jeff White, Glenn Martin, Joe Laughlin, and Jeanette Dunk will attend as alternates.

At the annual meeting, members presented, discussed, and voted to accept the following policies.

1. We recommend that UCC (Universal Commercial Code) filing fees be reduced to former levels.

2. We recommend that the Bottle Bill Policy and Waste Management Policies be primary issues for 1994.

3. We recommend that the County Emergency Management Plans include provisions for shipping milk and for emergency farm services.

Elected to the Board of Directors for the Mifflin County Farmers' Association is (left to right) Mark Ellinger from Lewistown, Pauline Glick from Belleville, and Stan Dunk from Lewistown.

At the county annual meeting, State Director Wayne Freaman spoke briefly about a possible November name change to Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and possibly the Mifflin County Farm Bureau. He said 43 teachers attended the AG in the Classroom workshops at Penn State. For the Dodge Truck Rebate Program, Freaman reported that 334 new trucks were sold, netting 232 new members because of the program. He then presented a PFA Member Services check to the county for Safemark sales.

Beth Laughlin, PFA's State Advisory Council Chairperson, said the goals for the committee include one new advisory group per county. A possible forty have been formed since January. A statewide Advisory Group display was exhibited at Ag Progress Days and the committee is planning one for the Annual Meeting.

Laughlin stressed that advisory groups are a chance to talk about things that are important to members on a county, state, and national level. Discussion guides are provided but need not be used each month. Many policies for change within the organization develop from advisory groups. Anyone wanting to form an advisory group should contact their county president.

Governmental Relations Director Mark Ellinger gave a report on the latest legislative update. State issues include vehicle code amendment, creation of a DER Ag Advisory Board, workmen's compensation, funding for state vet school, local tax reform, amendments to seasonal labor act, and returnable container legislation. Nationally, the topics include the Clear Water Act, wetlands, the endangered species act, and the National American Free Trade Act. Locally, Ellinger reported that "Measure the Candidates" night will be held Thursday, October 21.

Gloria Goss, a third grade teacher in the Mifflin County School District, reported to members about her Ag in the Classroom workshops. She said participants received a wealth of information in the form of lectures, workshops, videos, lesson ideas, posters, kits, and flow charts and gave a run-down of each day's full schedule.

A Dallas Will Memorial plaque was given to his wife, Linda, for his years of dedication and service to the Mifflin County Farmer's Association. Will served seventeen years on legislative committees.

Awards rounded out the evening. Beth Laughlin received recognition for her efforts in planning the Mifflin County Farmer's Association booth at the Mifflin County Youth Fair. Ken Loht received a pen with his name engraved on it for his dedicated work as Membership Chairman. Gloria Goss was recognized for her participation in Ag in the Classroom. Gail Strock received a desk pen with engraved plate for her role as newsletter editor and county information director. Elrose Glick was recognized for obtaining eight new members while eleven new members were obtained by Ken Loht.

The evening ended with entertainment by the Glorybound Men's quartet.

ment support has also been dwindling.

Over the years, the foundation, which oversees much of the FFA youth programs in the state, has gone from employing a staff of 33 to its current one, part-time worker.

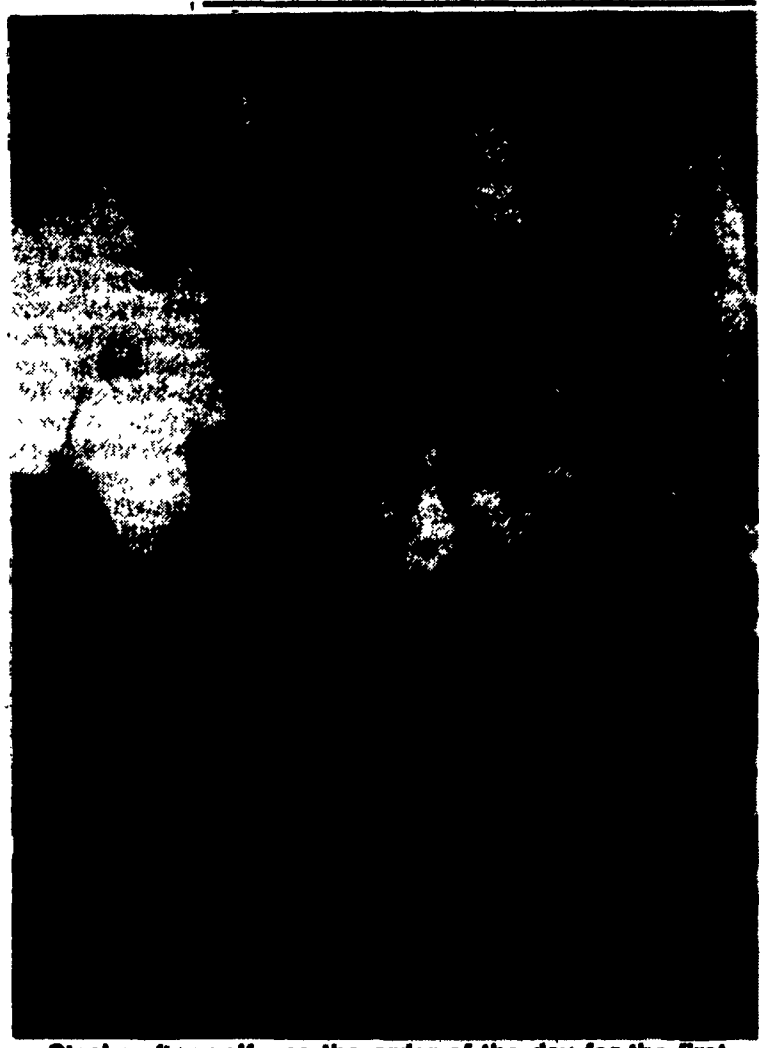
Additionally, the FFA has imposed higher participation fees upon its membership, increasing the burden of youth and youth's parents to pay their own way or be eliminated from participation.

In order to free itself from the uncertainty of being able to support rural youth programs and activities, the foundation board of directors has sought alternative sources of operational funds.

At the same time, state Rep. Jere Schuler, R-Lancaster, has been heading a bipartisan group within the state House of Representatives to create legislation that would dedicate funds for the FFA Foundation and keep those line item allocations out of the reach of the governor's blue pencil.

"The amount would probably be in the neighborhood of $40,000. It would not be a major expense as far as the budget of Pennsylvania is concerned, but the benefit of that to the future of Pennsylvania is magnified 100 times," Schuler said during a telephone interview Thursday.

Bill Campbell, CEO of Hoss's Steak and Sea House Inc., and wife Nancy sit in a golf cart surrounded by eight of the 11 state officers of the Pennsylvania FFA, at Hawks Mountain Golf Course in Lancaster County for the first annual Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament, with Hoss's acting as first host. The state officers are, from the left, Scott Stone, chaplain, Linda Hall, state secretary, Melanie Shugars, western region vice president, Grant Campbell, state treasurer, Janessa Burkholder, south central regional vice president, Amanda Peak, state reporter, Patrick Redding, state sentinel, and Andrea Noll, state president.



Steaks after golf was the order of the day for the first annual Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament. These cuts of fillet mignon are grilled by supporters of Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament to feed those entered to play golf. Bill Campbell, CEO of Hoss's at right serves and cooks.

He said work on developing legislation started a few weeks ago. According to Schuler, others working on securing funding for the youth include Rep. Art Hershey, R-Cochranville, Rep. Edward Krebs, D-Annville, and the respective chairmen of the House Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee — Rep. Bill Lloyd, D-Somerset, and Rep. Bruce Smith, R-Dillsburg.

Nevertheless, Cancelmo said the hope is that the golf outing will continue to be held and supported even if funding can be secured legislatively.

The golf outing was selected by the committee as an event which would attract interest in supporting the FFA Foundation, while providing a social event for giving supporters an opportunity to meet each other.

Sports celebrities, such as Dick Vermeil, ABC sports newscaster who owns a farm in Chester County, Greg Gross, Philadelphia Phillies, and others were signed up to play in the tournament. Vermeil, however, was on call for work and at the last minute had to return to New York.

Eagles cheerleaders were on hand to pose for photos with tournament participants. A pre-golf luncheon, beverages, a steak dinner, awards, prizes and an auction of donated valuable items, were additional to the golfing, but integral to the success of the outing, according to Mary Jo Cancellmo, executive director of the foundation.

"From the outset, our emphasis, although it was a fund-raising event, was really to be a friend-raising event," she said. "We wanted to have a function that was done in such a fashion that was not just a regular golf tournament, but upscale in terms of prizes and food served. I really think the committee did an excellent job on that," she said.

Eight of the 11 state FFA officers also were present for the event and met with supporters and helped with the event. The officers also performed the FFA's opening meeting ceremony for the assembled supporters.

The golf outing was designed as an 18-hole, shotgun-start scramble and saw 112 people register to golf, with only a few no-shows.

The event also was open to those who wished to support the event, but were not golfers — there was an option of attending the dinner and auction only. About 50 additional people attended the evening meal and auction.

The turnout was heavier than expected, according to Cancelmo, who said, "Our goal for the first year was we wanted to fill a field of 72. It far surpassed our expectations."

An auction of donated items from supporters raised $4,000 of the funds for the foundation.

Placed for sale were 24 items ranging from four Philadelphia Flyers tickets to a barbecue dinner for 12 at the buyer's location with state Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff serving as head chef.

"I'm glad to support anything as worthwhile as the FFA and have some fun in the process," Wolff said Wednesday, unable to attend the event. "I have a lot of experience in this area ... how do you want your steaks?"

The actual tournament results saw a three-way tie score of 67, with first place going to the foursome representing Fickes Silos — Doug Lehman, Jamie Fickes, Dave Bark and Gerald Piper. Piper individually won a prize for hitting closest to the pin on hole No. 4.

The second place team was representing Hoss's Steak and Sea House, including Buddy Brenner, Dave Sager, Steve Neff and Dean Allison.

Coming in third was another Hoss's team: Dave Elliott, Tom George, Mark Ritko and Tom Sasser.

Prizes were awarded to members of the top seven finishing teams and to the worst scoring team, which was Hoss's third team entry with linksters Bill Campbell, Bill Braton, Bob Pleva, and John Pruger.

The event also featured a "Pink Lady" competition whereby all teams were to start a rotational play using a colored ball as designated by tournament management, while the other three scrambled. However, if the ball was lost during play, then the foursome went to all scramble play.

The winner of that catagory was John Nikoloff and Earl Martin with an 89.

In the putting contest, Dave Elliott was first and won a putter, while Tom Sasser was second earning a prize and Mel Flemming was third, also winning a prize.

Though they went unclaimed, there were four opportunities at large prizes for holing in one shot on all the par 3 holes — at hole No. 17 was a 1994 Buick Regal Sedan; at hole No. 4, two U.S. Air tickets anywhere in continental U.S.; at hole No. 7, a portable Oakie cellular phone; and at hole No. 11, a compete set of protable golf clubs.

The longest drive lady was made by Dana Laperis; the longest drive by Eric Witmer; the straightest drive was hit by Dave Elliott; a 50/50 on hole No. 7 was won by Randy Adams; and Blaine Fessler was closest to the pin on hole No. 11, while Buddy Brenner took that honor on hole No. 17.

Judge Praises Local Goat Breeders

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — A 6-year-old Alpine doe, Georgette, owned by Amanda Grube, daughter of Timothy Grube, Lititz, was named best doe in show Wednesday at the Manheim Farm Show.

Grube's champion doe is part of eight goats she keeps at home on a farmette, according to her father, who was recording results. It was a recent purchase, he said, and her first win in five years showing at the local fair.

However, Goergette wasn't the only champion of the show. An 8-month-old La Mancha goat, owned by Jacey Fisher, daughter of John and Karen Fisher, of Manheim, was named champion market goat.

Fisher's champion market goat was bred and owned and fared better than at the Lebanon Area Fair, where it was ranked third.

Showing the reserve grand champion doe was a 1½ -year-old Alpine shown by Kim Landis, daughter of Jay and Sharon Landis, of Lititz.

The reserve champion market goat was shown by Jodi Gephard, daughter of Michael and Sonia Gephard, of Manheim. Gephard's market animal was a Toggenburg that also took reserve champion at the Lebanon Area Fair.

The judge of Wednesday's goat show at the Manheim Farm Show told the audience that the local exhibitors should be proud of their breeding successes.

Jerome Mensch, of Welcome, Md., judge of the Manheim Farm Show goat show, took time during judging to thoroughly explain his reasons, while not delaying the show.

In fact, Mensch frequently showed the audience, mostly consisting of parents and family members of exhibitors, exactly what he meant by pointing to the areas of the goat he was discussing and illustrating the desire shapes and proportions with his hands.

"I enjoy it and can do it, because it is a small show," he said, adding that the remote microphone system used by the show gave him room to move around quickly.

"The animals are good quality," he told the audience, though he was equally frank in discussing flaws.

Mensch owns and operates Brentland Dairy, in Welcome, Md., where he milks 150 goats and then bottles, sells and delivers the pasteurized milk and cheese. In all the 120-acre farm maintians a herd of about 300 goats.

In the showmanship competition, Amanda Grube won first place among those aged 12 or less, while Nicole Eisenhower was first place among those aged 12 or more.

ACTING RESPONSIBLY: PRODUCER INITIATIVES MAY PREEMPT REGULATIONS

Stanley E. Curtis
Head, Department Of Dairy and Animal Science

Editor's Note: This is extracted from an article that originally appeared in "Agricultural Engineering: Technology for Food and Agriculture," a publication of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Federal farm animal care regulations — considered inevitable even recently — may not be necesssary after all. Not that animal activists have given up their pursuit of farm animal protection legislation. Now regulations may be moot, though, because animal producer and general farm organizations are acting responsibly to put and keep their own house in order.

Animal production practices, ranging from tethering to painful minor surgical procedures to handling to environmental richness, are now being examined under a new light. Politically savvy producer leaders now recognize that typical consumers of animal products want assurances that the animals were treated humanely. And the producer groups are moving quickly to develop guidelines for sound animal care as well as establish industry programs to ensure that these precepts will be honored.

European Regulations — Strict, But Arbitrary

The farm animal welfare movement started in Great Britain in the middle 1960s. In the meantime, it has spread across Western Europe and — in the middle 1970s — even to North America.

Before the fall of the Iron Curtain, many western European nations were well on their way to strictly regulating the care of animals on farms as well as in commercial channels. Several have established their respective inspection systems to enforce rules that often are as arbitrary as they are strict.

Attempts to develop European Community-wide regulations have been active for more than a decade, but they have not yet borne fruit. The picture is even cloudier now, as many European countries scramble to rebuild Eastern European nations in the wake of the demise of Soviet domination.

One thing can be said, though: Obeying the regulations that already have been promulgated and enforced has been a costly experience for individual farmers and national industries alike. In view of the fact that many scientists still wonder whether many of these regulations actually enhance animal well-being, this would seem to have been a high price to pay.

As prominent British animal scientist Colin Spedding observed, "Perhaps the biggest danger is that a dissatisfied public may demand changes that eliminate what is disliked, but that result in either no improvement or even a reduction in the welfare of the animals involved."

American Politics — Proposals, But No Legislation

When agricultural policy specialist Harold Guither and I visited Western Europe in 1982 to learn firsthand the status of farm animal welfarism there, we concluded that the public issue had proceeded to governmental regulation there faster than it would here in the United States.

A decade later, this prediction remains valid. Two hearings have been held by subcommittees of the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture — on a proposed Veal Calf Protection Act in 1989 and on the handling of downer animals at stockyards in 1992.

After the 1989 hearing, Congressman Charles Stenholm of Texas, then chair of the Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy, and Poultry, stated that the public concerns addressed by the proposed legislation were legitimate and that agriculture must move to deal with them. He added that, if agriculture failed to do so, by the turn of the century the Congress probably would pass legislation providing for federal regulation of animal care on farms and ranches. But as of the fall of 1993, the Congress has passed no such legislation and none is under active consideration.

One factor came to light earlier this year, though. Soon after President Clinton appointed Dr. John Gibbons to be Assistant to the President for Science and Technology, it became known that Gibbons's wife was, up to "three or four years ago," a member of the organization People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA). This group is recognized as involving some of the most radical animal activists in the United States today.

At first, a Gibbons aide expressed surprise that anyone would consider PETA to be radical, but later Gibbons himself acknowledged in an interview with Associated Press that, "They were getting more and more 'fringy,' so my wife didn't renew her subscription."

Gibbons discusses animal agriculture in words and phrases straight out of standard animal activist pamphlets. For example, the President's chief science advisor said that he and his wife do not eat veal because "You know how veal is raised? In the dark, milk-fed, force-fed, in a cage, never sees the ground. And I don't ever want to eat an animal that's been given that kind of life."

Several agricultural organizations and coalitions have challenged Gibbons's statements and asked him to meet with them. At that meeting, agriculturalists would hope to acquaint him with the facts of the matter, but so far Gibbons has not accepted the invitation.

Producer Organizations Aim To Ease Consumers' Concerns

In the last three years, several national animal agricultural organizations — notably, American Veal Association, National Pork Producers Council, National Milk Producers Federation, and National Cattlemens Association — have started developing guidelines for the care of animals on commercial farms and ranches. Producers themselves are leading these initiatives because they sense the need to assure contemporary consumers of animal products that farm animals are always being treated humanely.

Unfortunately, voluntary adoption of production-practice guidelines has turned out to be relatively slow. Business economics is still the primary factor in producers' decision-making. But when quality assurance programs are tied to reasonable economic incentives for producers — as is now emerging at the hands of statesmen in the industries who recognize the need to shore up consumer confidence and thereby ensure continuing demand for foods of animal origin — they will be effective in quickly upgrading the respective industries' overall quality of animal care.

A Visit To The World Dairy Expo

sales, educational forums and meetings were also included on the schedule of the Expo, which ran September 29 - October 3.

Supreme Champion of the show was named Sunday as the Expo's grand finale event. Winner was "C Merkley Starbuck Whitney," the five-year-old Holstein breed champion and also the Expo Supreme Champion in 1992. She was reserve champion Holstein at the Pennsylvania All-American show at Harrisburg on September 23. Whitney is owned by Twin-Wind Holsteins, Bridgewater, Connecticut and Tokachi Livestock, Japan and was bred by David Merkley, Canada.

A Grecian theme for the showring arena was carried out with a replica of classic white-columned Greek architecture, sparkling fountains of water, fig trees and white chrysanthemums. Columns of glossamar white fabric suspended from the ceiling, flower-filled urns and a showring floor of soft blue sawdust lent a stately background to the beautifully-fitted cattle as they circled for officials.

Two Pennsylvania collegiate dairy judging teams and the state 4-H team participated in national judging competition on September 28 prior to opening of the Expo events.

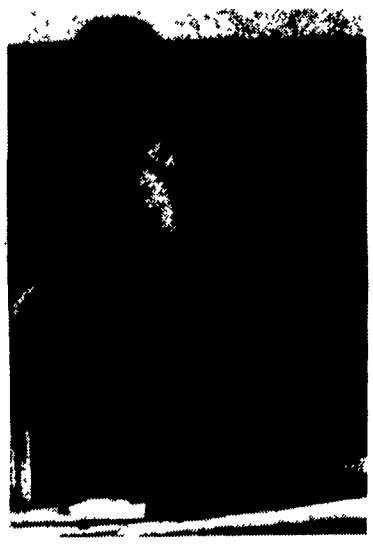
One of the "stars" of the World Dairy Expo opening ceremony was the new national champion milk and protein producer, Robthorn Suzet Paddy, EX-93-2E. Suzet's 365-day record is 59,298 pounds milk, 3.9 percent and 2297 pounds fat and 3.4 percent and 2038 pounds protein. With Suzet are representatives of the Robert Thompson family's Robthorn Farm of Springfield, Missouri.



J. Lloyd Ebersole, Tunkhannock, took over the reins of the presidency of Dairy Shrine during its annual meeting at the World Dairy Expo. Ebersole is a long-time dairy industry leader and associate of Sire Power, Inc.

The Penn State team placed fifth out of 30 competing collegiate teams with about 115 individual participants. Team members are John Andrew Foster III, Petersburg, Beth Cooley, Allenwood, Todd Biddle, Boalsburg, and Andrew Moorley, Wyalusing, who was named an All-American collegiate judge as one of the top 25-placing individuals. Coaching the Penn State team is Dale Olver.

The Delaware Valley College team took 16th place out of 30, fifth in the Holstein classes and ninth in Ayrshires. Team members are Tanya Martin, Oxville, Christy Peak, Carlisle, Tom Farley, Allenwood and Willie Keeney, Wyalusing. Larry Morris is their coach.

Pennsylvania native Arthur Nesbitt, left, was honored by the Dairy Shrine at its annual awards program held during the World Dairy Expo. Dairy Shrine outgoing president Maurice Core made the presentation. Nesbitt is president and chief executive officer of NASCO International and a former secretary-fieldman of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

In youth competition, the Pennsylvania 4-H dairy judging team finished in sixth place out of 35, was first in reasons and in Jersey class judging, and second in Holstein classes. Team members are Matt Day, Shippensburg, Joe Stitt, Martinsburg, Carrie Bryant, Honesdale, and David Fava, Bentleyville.

A featured event during the World Dairy Expo is the annual Dairy Shrine recognition and awards banquet. Winner of the prestigious Guest of Honor award was Arthur W. Nesbitt, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin and a Pennsylvania native dairy son from Eden Valley.

Nesbitt is president and chief executive officer of NASCO International, Inc. with more than 1000 employees in mail order and manufacturing divisions serving agriculture, educators and industry. He was secretary of Dairy Shrine from 1968 to 1975 and served as its treasurer for 25 years.

Nationally-known for his industry leadership through numerous organizations, Nesbitt is a 1950 agriculture economics graduate of Penn State and served as secretary-fieldman of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association for more than seven years. Under his leadership, the state's largest breed organization grew from 1,000 members to more than 3,800.

Dairy Shrine recognition also went to recent Penn State graduate Matt Wanner, Narvon. Wanner was third place winner in the Dairy Shrine's annual student recognition awards.

'Dairy Woman Of The Year Award' Goes To Joyce Bupp

MADISON, Wis. — Not only does the World Dairy Expo showcase the finest cows in the world but also individuals who show exceptional leadership in the the dairy industry.

This year Joyce Bupp, columnist for Lancaster Farming and a York dairy farmer, was honored at the Expo's award banquet with the Woman of the Year Award.

This prestigious honor, presented September 28 in Madison, Wisconsin, is the result of Joyce's dedication to farm, family and community.

In the presentation, it was noted that Joyce is a talented individual who cheerfully blends dairying, raising a family, serving on boards, and writing into her busy schedule. Her exceptional writing and speaking skills have contributed to the betterment of the dairy industry.

In addition to full-time farmer, Joyce is board member of Dairymen, Inc., vice president of the Middle Atlantic Division Board of Dairymen Inc., township auditor, chairperson the National Holstein Association Convention, Sunday School teacher, and speaker for many dairy industry conventions. She estimates that she has written more than 1,000 columns, "On Being a Farm Wife," which appears in the York Dispatch and Lancaster Farming.

Joyce is the first Pennsylvanian to receive this award that has been presented annually for 20 years.

"The Expo is a mecca for dairy people," Joyce said.

She was enthralled to see so many beautiful cows gathered in one place. She observed that most of the top cows are Canadian owned or bred.

About 65,000 including 3,000 international visitors attended the dairy show, held September 29 to October 3.

Joyce said that she would have loved to see the grand finale of the Expo, which is the Parade of Champions and the selection of America's supreme champion cow, but she and her husband, Leroy, needed to hurry home to fill silo.

Joyce Bupp, Lancaster Farming correspondent, was recently honored as Woman of the Year at the World Dairy Expo.

The new White 445 Chisel Plow makes complying with residue guidelines and requirements easy. Options like rippled coulters and chisel points set at 15" spacing leave lots of residue. Concave coulters and twisted shovels set at 12" spacing leave less residue. And these are just a few of the combinations available.

Our deep-till shank option rips hardpan by tilling 4" to 6" deeper than chisel shanks. This reduces compaction problems. And our leveling bar option provides a smoother surface for your next pass.

White Row Crop Cultivators are designed for high speed

With nine models, there's a model with the options to match your residue management plans.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Brian McAllister, of Centre Hall, showed the overall grand champion barrow of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE), held this week at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

In its 37th year, the annual KILE is the largest indoor livestock exposition in Pennsylvania and attracts competitors from all over the United States and Canada.

The exposition is an opportunity for commercial livestock breeders to show and sell stock and to showcase the results of their work.

KILE competition includes open shows of purebred barrows, crossbred barrows, a junior barrows on-foot and on-rail competition, and a swine production class.

All individual barrows entered were first judged by breeds in individual on-foot classes, then the top barrows in each class were slaughtered and entered in the KILE Score classes. All market swine, including those ruled ineligible for competition, but excluding underweight hogs and truckloads were sold for slaughter, according to the KILE premium book.

Judge for the barrows was Ray Hankes. Bob Mikesell was the scorer.

McAllister had showed the champion crossbred barrow, while Thomas Park, of Laura, Ohio, showed the reserve champion.

Dan McAllister, brother of Brian, showed the champion junior barrow on foot, while Derek Earnhart, of Albion, Indiana, showed the reserve champion. The follow-up to on-foot evaluations is an on-rail evaluation, which was done Tuesday.

The carcass evaluations are done by taking certain measurements and applying them into an industry accepted formula for carcass evaluations. Ken Kephart, swine expert with Pennsylvania State University, in State College, said Thursday that he was still reviewing the data and would release the results next week, after carefully checking the calculations.

In addition to the McAllisters, there were a number of regional and Pennsylvania-resident breeders who earned championships in the competitions.

Larry Robinson, of Delta, showed the champion Spotted Swine barrow, while Russell Kegg, of Bedford, showed the reserve champion.

Kent Strock, of Mechanicsburg, showed the champion and reserve champion Landrace, and the reserve champion Poland China barrow.

Charles and Mark Hall, of Julian, showed the reserve champion truckload of crossbred barrows, while Franklin Feeser, of Taneytown, Md., showed the champion truckload and the grand champion truckload of the show.

James T. Parlett and son, of Airville, showed all the Chester White barrows.

Brandon Winebark, of Myerstown, showed the open champion Berkshire barrow on-foot, while Mapes Family Berkshires of Unionville Center, Ohio, showed the reserve champion.

Overall Champion Sheep At Manheim Belongs to Brandon Ziegler

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Ten-year-old Brandon Ziegler's dad cautioned him not to expect anything spectacular when he entered the sheep show ring at the Manheim Farm Show.

"So I didn't expect to win," an ecstatic Brandon reported as he clutched the trophy for the Supreme Champion Overall at the competition on Thursday night.

The Hampshire-Suffolk cross that he showed topped Lisa Reiff's champion market lamb for the title. Lisa, who has captured the champion market lamb title at seven county fair's this season, has remained undefeated in market lamb competition all season.

Judge John Eaton said that Lisa's market lamb is stylish, firm, and appealing, but he chose Brandon's as the overall champion because it's the one lamb out there that best fits the standards the sheep industry is going. "The carcass has a lot of meat and muscle," he said of Brandon's heavyweight.

The meat and muscle is the result of Brandon and his brother, Corby, walking their six sheep up and down a back road of Lititz. During the first few walks, the champion sheep was stubborn and uncooperative. The Zieglers recalled they needed to load it in a wagon when it refused to walk the first time. After that, Brandon trained the sheep to walk by pulling, pushing, and tugging. By show time, the no name sheep was cooperative and well muscled from its twice daily walks and the ramps they ran up and down.

Judge John Eaton chose Dynasty shown by Wendall Landis as the supreme champion breeding sheep. Manheim Fair Queen Marci Harnish holds the trophy.

Overall Champion Sheep At Manheim

This was the second year that Brandon entered the competition. He said that he didn't do so well last year. His brother Corby in his first year of showing this year did quite well. His sale lamb placed first in his class and was named the lightweight champion.

Corby even took a second-place win in junior showmanship. Brandon was third to Ryan Donough who placed first in that division. Ryan, 9, also the champion lightweight market lamb, the reserve heavyweight, which was named reserved market lamb, reserve champion pair, and the reserve lightweight sale lamb. His brother Travis showed a heavyweight sale lamb that took second place to Brandon's lamb in the class but went on to be named reserve heavyweight and reserve sale champion. The Donoughs are from Manheim.

In intermediate showmanship,

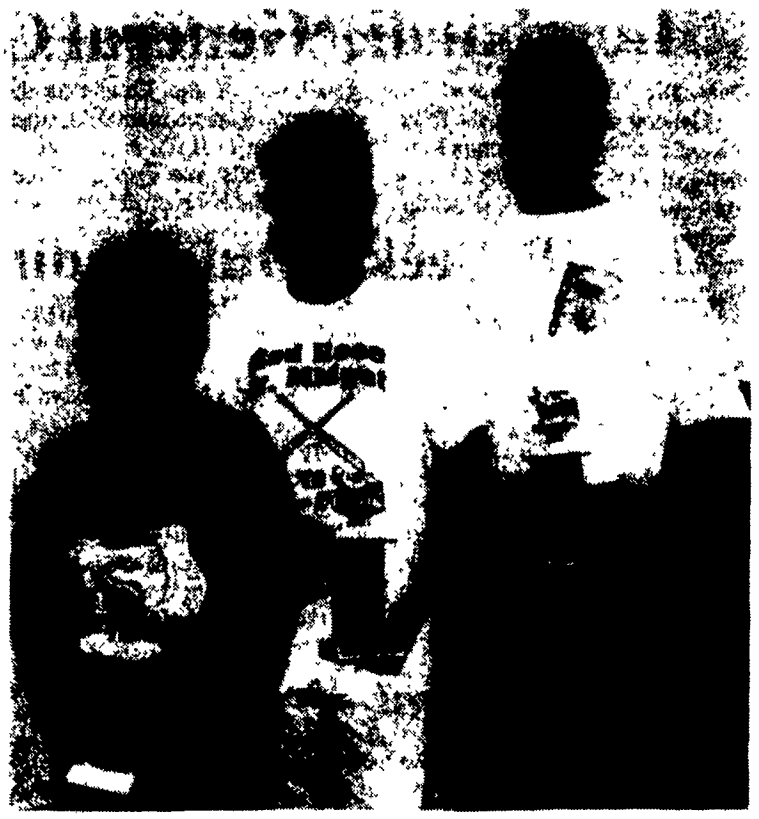
Undefeated in market lamb competition, Lisa Reiff holds the seventh trophy she collected at county fairs this season. Ryan Donough holds the reserve champion market lamb.



In the last county fair of the season, showmanship champions, from left, are Ryan Donough, junior division; Keith Bollinger, intermediate division; and Wendall Landis, senior division.

Lombardi, 'General Glen' Win KILE Challenge Of Breeds

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — General Glen, a Quarter Horse owned and ridden by Donna Lombardi of Perkasie, Bucks County, won the fifth annual Glatfelter Challenge of the Breeds at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

Six events make up the Challenge of the Breeds: English Pleasure Driving, Hunter Hack, Pleasure Driving, Western Pleasure Driving, Western Riding, and the exciting Barrel Race.

Six horses were entered in this year's competition. The entrants included K.D. Tamaqua, a Half-Arabian owned by Mary Lou Kolznak and ridden by Julie Louise Kolznak; Axil Grease, an Appaloosa owned by Rick and Regina Schnable and ridden by Regina Schnable; Happy Smooth, a Quarter Horse owned by Janet Gilson Conn and ridden by Rebecca Trego; Imperial Mandan, an Arabian owned and ridden by Shirley Craig of Nottingham; Pretty in Paint, a Pinto owned by Karen Royer and ridden by Peg Helder; and General Glen.

Judge Tim Potter of Storrs, was assisted by Ringmaster Jess Darlington of Bellefonte, Pa. Points were awarded by the judge in each event, with first place earning five points, second earning four points, third earning three points, fourth at two points, and fifth at one point.

Competition was keen between most of the entries. Lombardi and General Glen earned 20 points, and Pretty in Paint earned 19 points, but Imperial Mandan and Happy Smooth tied with 18 points. The tie-breaker found Imperial Mandan in third place, and Happy Smooth moving to fourth.

As sovereign champion, Lombardi won $1,000; reserve champion Royer won $500. Challenge of the Breeds was sponsored by the Glatfelter Insurance Group of York, Pa.

PDPP Seeks Outstanding Promoter

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For a fourth consecutive year, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program will be recognizing an outstanding dairy promoter.

The "Promoter of the Year" award was created to recognize an individual who gives unselfishly of their time to support dairy promotion and the dairy industry. Anyone can nominate someone for the award.

Judging is based upon the nominee's dairy industry activities and community service. Previous award winners have been active in county promotion organizations, related agricultural organizations and their local communities.

Pennsylvania Dairy originated this award to identify those people who work to improve the public's perceptions about dairy products and the dairy industry. By developing the award, the Pennsylvania Dairy Board has acknowledged the tremendous support that these hard-working volunteers provide to the entire dairy promotion effort.

The winner receives an engraved plaque and a $100 cash award at Pennsylvania Dairy's 1994 Annual Meeting, scheduled to be held on Feb. 7, 1994, in State College.

Nominations for the "Promoter of the Year" award are due into the Pennsylvania Dairy office by Nov. 30. A nomination form is required and can be obtained by calling Nadine Houck at (717) 787-6903.

Keith Bollinger of Ephrata placed first; his cousin Amy Bollinger, second, and Travis Donough, third.

First in senior showmanship was Wendall Landis who also showed the supreme champion breeding sheep. Second in showmanship was Lisa Reiff, and third, Jerry Bollinger.

Wendall, 17, showed a home-bred ewe Hampshire to capture the champion breeding sheep title. He said Dynasty is from a ewe that has birthed several champions overall.

Wendall, his sister Regina, 13, and parents Abe and Dottie raise about 40 Hampshires and cross-breds on their West View Acres farm in Manheim. A senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School, Wendall has his sights set on an animal science degree at Penn State.

Fashionable Shepherds Lead Classy Sheep To Promote Multifaceted Wool Styles

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Paris models would have found it difficult to top the competition at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition Shepherd's Lead Line on October 2.

Not only did the contestant need to look smashingly stylish but also the sheep she led needed to be perfectly coiffed and walk sedately by the side of the shepherd.

According to the judges, competition in the senior division varied by only one point among the contestants. The top two placings went to Jenny Weber and Laura Langlotz, both of the same 4-H sewing club in Maryland. Third place winner was Susan Wise, who had four previous second-place wins at the KILE competition.

Sixteen-year-old Jenny Weber made her own walking shorts with a fuchsia jacket and matching tie. The daughter of Debra and Paul Weber of Hydes, Md., raised Shropshires.

Her friend Laura Langlotz of Monkton, Md., sewed a purple and gray plaid jacket with a solid purple skirt. She wore a gray hat and her Southdown ewe sported a plaid scarf. The 17-year-old, who placed first in the intermediate division last year, is the daughter of William and Ruthanne Langlotz.

Intermediate division

Intermediate winner Tabitha Ebersole of York had been first place in the junior division last year.

Tabitha attributes "calmness" to her successful showing. The 13-year-old modeled a fuchsia and blue plaid wool blazer with black wool pants. A black hat and matching hat band and a scarf for her sheep completed the total look. Tabitha, the daughter of Lynn and Steve Ebersole, has also entered and won top placings in her county and in New Jersey Lead Line competitions.

Another repeat winner, Jaeme Griffin of Whitehouse Station, N.J., placed third this year in the intermediate competition. She modeled a bright-multi-colored sweater that her grandmother had knit. Her Tunis ewe wore a coordinating aqua-colored scarf. In past competition, Jaeme's placings have ranged from first to ninth. With her parents, Carmen and Charles, Jaeme raises Tunis, Romney, and Hampshire sheep.

Junior division

First place in the junior division, Kelly Glaser of Limekiln remained poised and confident as she led her Corriedale ewe around the show ring. Her grandmother knit the Kelly Glaser, first place in the junior division, models a wool sweater that her grandmother knit from a kit purchased in Ireland.

Black and white is the color scheme for Katie McKissick and her Suffolk Jenny, third-place winners in the junior division.

Senior division winners are both from the same 4-H Club in Maryland. On left is first place winner Jenny Weber with Laura Langlotz.

The most unusual sheep in the KILE Lead Line, a Scottish black face ewe, is lead by Rebecca Mitchel who spun and dyed the wool before weaving it into fabric for the multicolored outfit that she is wearing.

sweater that Kelly wore. The yarn was purchased from Ireland and was knit in an intricate scene of purple, green, and blue shades. Kelly was no newcomer. Last year she placed fourth in KILE competition and the year before that, first.

For some contestants, the hours of primping and practicing came to an abrupt demise when the ewes refused to cooperate with the shepherd. But for Rebecca Mitchell, judges could not dismiss the stunning picture the 12-year-old and her Scottish black-face ewe made even though the ewe was unwieldy. The silky long-hair of the Fin-cross sheep was the most unusual entry. Rebecca, herself, modeled a two-piece outfit that she wove from multi-colored wool that she had dyed and spun. Rebecca placed second in the junior division.

For the second year in a row, 10-year-old Katie McKissick of New Castle placed third in junior competition. The daughter of Brenda and Jeff, the McKissicks raise about 25 Suffolks. Katie matched her black and white checkered outfit with a matching bow for her ewe Jenny.

Joan Miller, right, chairperson for the KILE Lead Line consults with the judges while contestants are judged for poise and appearance.

Sheep and shepherds are classy examples of today's sheep and wool fashion design.

Purpose of leadline

About 30 contestants from nine to 19 years old entered the annual contest. The purpose of the Lead Line is to show the best of the sheep industry's yearling ewes and the classy fashions that can be made from the fleeces.

Several of the contestants modeled outfits that they had either sewed, knitted, or woven from wool. Contestants were not required to make their own outfits, but the clothing did need to be made from at least 80 percent wool. For a coordinated look, the shepherd usually accessorized her sheep with a matching beret or scarf.

The competition was broken into three divisions: junior, intermediate, and senior. Forty percent of the score was attributed to the contestant and her outfit; 25 percent to control and presentation; and 35 percent to the appearance of the ewe. Contestants met with judges individually before modeling in the show ring.

Breeds represented included Shropshire, Corriedale, Southdown, Suffolk, Hampshire, Oxford, Montadale, Dorset, Tunis, and a Scottish Black Face Ewe.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Living on borrowed time.

Of course, we all live on borrowed time — all the time.

But for us farmers and diehard gardeners, October's borrowed time is precious and dwindling. Any evening, the skies could slip into sunset crystal clear, roll up a fat, white moon, and send temperatures plunging to the tender-growth danger level.

And on any given early morning, we could wake to the white scattering of frost that signals the end of the line for all our favorite, summertime garden goodies. Plus an abrupt halt to the maturing of late planted soybeans and corn.

Still, here in southern York County, we usually figure we have at least until about the tenth of the month to enjoy frost-freedom. Some years, we're ready to turn the November calendar before a real vegetation killer clobbers the greenery.

That was this year's hope.

Except for a tangled jungle which earlier in the year passed for an asparagus patch, this year's garden has been a fairly-weed free and productive one. Packages of both lima and string beans are tucked in the freezer, tomatoes fill one wide basement shelf, a pile of butternut squash decorating the front porch will eventually become "pumpkin" bread and pies.

Broccoli, cauliflower and lingering tomato plants keep company with late beans, shiny peppers, fat red beets and a lush hill of summer squash just beginning to yield tender-skinned, yellow results.

Plus, sweet corn, planted with late field corn following the barley harvest, finally began to approach readiness in late September. Sure it was a gamble, but then, maybe, cooler temperatures for late sweet corn would also discourage the usual, late-season invasion of worms.

Now, if we could just stretch temperate fall temperatures a few more weeks to enjoy all this wonderful, late-season, fairly-bug-free bounty.

But when the heavens cleared late last week, the moon climbed above the horizon a silvery-white and I had to go dig out the insulated vest to finish barn chores, the prospect didn't look too promising. Frost warnings were on every radio weather announcement.

Out of summer storage came my two 25-feet-lengths of frost-protection material. And then the big decision: what to cover?

A row of cut- and- come- again-type zinnias has been bountiful with blooms for several months. But next to them was the row of late string beans, hanging heavy with promise of more than the one picking I've gotten so far. Over the beans went one length of antifrost-fabric; the second went over a stretch of tomato plants still bearing.

Pepper plants could be sacrified after the remaining peppers were picked. Cauliflower and broccoli would only be improved by a little frost. The sprawling succulent vines of the bushel gourds would surely get zapped, but their giant, round fruits were ready for harvest anyway. Maybe the asparagus jungle would shelter the summer squash.

As October dawned, frost glimmered over the tops of the stacks of round bales in the meadow and whitened the lower lawn. Topmost squash leaves hung limp. Though zinnia and dahlia blooms were already discolored, their foliage seemed unharmed. Snuggled under cover, the beans looked chipper enough and only the outermost leaves of the tomatoes had been nipped. Worms found the sweet corn but the frost did not. Late field corn and soybeans seem to have squeezed by, too.

Greenerywise, we're still on borrowed time. And grateful for this temporary extension of the due date.

New Features In Appliances

Today's consumer is more of a homebody, more family-oriented and more inclined to entertain at home. But because people are on the run, often with both spouses working, cooking appliances that offer convenience and good looks, along with no-muss, no-fuss cleanup, are becoming more and more desirable. White-on-white and Eurostyling continue to be popular, but all-black and now all-almond are attracting the consumer's attention.

Innovations in cooktops include modular styles that enable users to change modes easily — for example, from coil elements to a grill, a griddle or a wok. Rotating cooktops, designed for island setups, can be used from either side.

The newest ranges sport recessed knobs and rounded, curved handles. Smooth, seamless surfaces make cleaning easier. Gas ranges feature sealed burners that minimize drips and spills. Freestanding electric ranges often combine the high-empowered benefits of halogen and radiant heat. Ceramic surfaces add drama, as well as practicality. Wall ovens offer a range of options — conventional, convection, microwave, baking and broiling — in one unit. Preset electronic controls that regulate preheat, bake, broil, self-clean and delay baking options are popular. Although self-cleaning adds to the cost, consumers seem more than willing to pay for this convenience. The 30-inch freestanding electric range remains the most popular choice. But, with the advent of sealed burners and self-cleaning ovens, gas is giving electric a run for its money.

Consumers with special needs, such as the elderly, arthritics, the wheelchair-bound, will welcome innovations, such as front controls for easy access, blade-type controls that are easier to operate than knobs, and electronic touch pads with large readouts.

Microwaves are growing in size and popularity. Consumers show increasing interest in over-the-range and built-in models. The convention-microwave oven, like the convection range, remains only a small part of the market.

A Wardrobe With A Future

Proper storage can keep garments looking good season after season. Read the following storage tips for a longer-lasting wardrobe.

Follow the garment's care instructions and wash or dry-clean everything before storage. Garments that look clean may have invisible stains that will appear over time. For example, if beverage stains are blotted up, they will seem to disappear when the area dries. But, if left untreated, the sugar in the beverage will oxidize, causing a yellow or brownish stain. It is also important to make all necessary repairs prior to storage so garments will be wear-ready.

Store items in a cool, well-ventilated area, away from artificial or natural light. Avoid hot attics, damp basements and garages. Store woolens in cedar chests or other airtight containers. Add mothballs to the latter, and be sure they are suspended above or separated from the clothes. To minimize wrinkles in sweaters and other knits, fold and wrap them in white tissue paper before storage.

Teams Do Well In KILE Contests

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Football wasn't the only game on Saturday's collegiate schedule. Teams came from as far away as Florida and Minnesota competed in the collegiate and junior livestock judging contest, held in conjunction with the 37th annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

Penn State University did well. Students on their intercollegiate judging team placed in the top two for all categories of the livestock contest.

PSU's Henry Zerby was the high scoring individual overall, with 929 points. Students from the University of Illinois took the next two spots, with John Bickelhaupt scoring 928 and Luke Lemenager scoring 919.

The University of Illinois took first place in the overall team, scoring with 4,536 points. Penn State picked up the runner-up spot with 4,518 and Ohio State placed third with 4,502 points.

With 2,395 points, the Pennsylvania 4-H team took first place in the junior category for 4-H and FFA judging teams. The Maryland 4-H team scored 2,341 points for second place and Ohio's 4-H team finished third with 2,335 points.

In the high scoring individuals, Maryland 4-H team member Randy Mullinix scored 818 points for the win over Ohio and Pennsylvania students. Jacob Schaad of Ohio's 4-H team was second with 814 points and Matt Sellers representing the Pennsylvania 4-H team finished third.

Contestants judged five classes of beef cattle, three classes of sheep, and four classes of swine.

Pepper Tips

Peppers are a power house for vitamin C. In equal portions, green peppers have one-and-a-half times the vitamin C of oranges and red peppers have almost four times as much. An added plus: one red pepper has more than a whole day's Recommended Daily Allowance of vitamin A.

The fall football season is upon us. For many avid football fans the festivities begin long before the teams take the field. Tailgating parties are popular in stadiums across the Commonwealth, as a pre-game warm-up for fans.

Whatever the reason — crisp, cool fall weather; good friends; or the mounting of excitement of the game — appetites seem to increase as the game approaches. To avoid a delay in dinner penalty, the Pennsylvania Beef Council has produced a new brochure which contains ten recipes guaranteed to score extra points at any tailgate meal.

From Penn State Coach Joe Paterno's own "Half-Time Meatball Sandwiches" to "Hot 'N Spicy Chunky Beef Chili," the recipe booklet offers quick and easy tailgating recipes which will satisfy the most ravenous appetite.

To obtain a free copy of the recipe booklet send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Tailgate Recipes, Pennsylvania Beef Council, 4714 Orchard Street, Harrisburg, PA 17109.

Here is a recipe from the booklet.

ITALIAN BEEF TRI-TIP SANDWICHES
35 Minutes

1-1½ pounds beef tri-tip (bottom sirloin) roast
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon oil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 large green bell peppers, cut in half lengthwise and seeded
1 can (13 ounces) single-strength beef broth
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon each crushed red pepper pods, and Italian seasoning
6-8 French bread rolls, each 5 inches long, split horizontally

Combine garlic, oil, salt and pepper; spread evenly over surface of beef tri-tip roast. Place roast on grid over medium coals. *Grill 30 to 35 minutes, turning occasionally. (Roast will be rare to Medium.) During last 15 minutes of grilling, place peppers on grid, cook until tender, turning occasionally. Remove roast from grill; allow to stand "tented" with foil 10 minutes for easier carving. Meanwhile, combine broth, water, red pepper pods and Italian seasoning in saucepan. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer, covered 10 minutes. Carve roast across the grain into very thin slices or slice with meat slicer. Cut peppers into strips. Place equal amounts of sliced beef in rolls, top with equal amounts of pepper strips and serve with broth mixture. 6 to 8 sandwiches.

Note: A beef tri-tip roast will yield four, 3-ounce cooked trimmed servings per pound.

Note: Recipe may be doubled. Roasts may be grilled, covered and refrigerated up to 24 hours ahead. Add sliced beef to hot cooked broth; stir to warm beef. Assemble as above.

Communicating With Physicians

With all the recent talk about health care reform, I think it is appropriate to talk about what we as consumers can do to improve the quality of the care we get. The changes being planned by the federal government will take momnths, even years to be acted on. You can do something now to assure that your physician is really giving you your money's worth.

Many people think that the doctor is solely responsible for their health care. Nothing could be further from the truth. Health care really requires a team — the physician AND you. And as you work together, results are improved if you follow a few communications guidelines. If you are a caregiver taking a mother, spouse or aunt to appointments, you can play a supportive role in the process, too.

More often than we realize, illnesses may be disdiagnosed because of a lack of communication. A person may be treated for depression when the real problem is anemia. A relative may receive the news that he has hardening of the arteries or a mental health problem when a hearing loss is really the culprit of changed behavior. And it can work the other way as well. When a doctor and patient don't spend enough time getting to the root of the problem, a serious condition may be glossed over.

So, you can be a part of your own personal health care reform. First, be prepared to talk honestly with your doctor. Describe symptoms in the chronological order that they occurred. Sometimes writing down your thoughts in advance helps. Don's shy away from conversations because of embarrassment about a condition or pain.

Secondly, take the initiative to ask questions. Asking a question slows the physician down and causes her to focus on you and your perspective. Ask for clarification on the use of a prescription. Ask for information pamphlets related to the diagnosis. Request that your doctor print the medical terms and the "layman's terms" for the situation you are experiencing on a piece of paper that you can take home.

When your treatment involves tests, ask why the test is being done and what it will involve. Having some idea in advance of the procedure helps elevate some of the anxiety you may have. And when the results come back, don't just hear your figures, ask your physician to explain the range of scores. Explore what things might affect the score you received. If a test is offered at a different time, could different results occur? She should put the scores in a perspective of total risk. Even though it is unlikely, ask if the tests could be incorrect. Mistakes do happen. For a major concern, you may request verification of results or order a second test.

Unless you take some action, your health care concerns may be lost in the crush of demands on the medical professionals in our communities. You need to take the time to be an active partner in your own care. This involves having the willingness to ask questions until you are satisfied with the information obtained. As a consumer, you are not powerless. If you are displeased with the care you are getting, take steps to check other options. Your health care is a team effort. Don't neglect your part. You deserve quality care.

ANSWER — Joan Young, Lititz, wanted a recipe for Seafood Salad made with tiny pasta shells. Thanks to Josephine H. Matenus, Dallas, for sending a recipe.

Seafood Salad

½ pound sea legs, cut in small pieces
½ cup pasta shells
1 celery rib, chopped
3 hard boiled eggs
1 tablespoon onion, chopped
¼ to ½ green pepper, chopped (optional)
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

Boil pasta shells. Drain and cool. When cool, add celery, hard boiled eggs, onion, and pepper. Add sea legs, mayonnaise or salad dressing. Mix together ingredients.

ANSWER — Janice Rehmyer, York, requested a recipe for a crisp coating chicken recipe, baked or fried, that's healthy. Thanks to Josephine Matenus, Dallas, and to Tina Forry, Lebanon for sending recipes.

Oven Fried Chicken

⅓ cup vegetable oil
⅓ cup butter
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons black pepper
2 teaspoons paprika
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon dried marjoram, optional
8-9 chicken pieces

Place oil and butter in shallow cooking pan (a jelly-roll pan is perfect) and put in a preheated 375 degree oven to melt. Set aside. In a large paper sack, combine flour and seasonings. Roll the chicken pieces, 3 at a time, in the melted oil and butter mixture, drop chicken pieces in sack and shake to coat. Place chicken in pan, skin side down. Bake for 45 minutes. With a spatula, turn over and bake 5 to 10 minutes longer or until the top crust begins to bubble. Serve hot or cold.

Country Fried Chicken

1 2½ -3 pound chicken, cut up
½ cup milk
1 egg or 2 egg whites
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons garlic salt or powder
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon black pepper

Blend milk and eggs. Combine flour and seasonings in a bag. Shake chicken in seasoned flour. Dip chicken pieces in the milkless mixture. Shake chicken a second time in the flour mixture.

To pan fry, use ½ to 1-inch oil in pan. Heat to medium high. Brown chicken on all sides. Reduce heat to 275 degrees. Continue cooking until chicken is tender for 30 to 40 minutes. Do not cover. Turn chicken several times during cooking. Drain on paper towels.

ANSWER — Dottie Kemmerling, Lehigh Valley, wanted to know how to dry tomatoes. Thanks to Alice Stickler, Lawrenceville, for sending directions.

Dried Tomatoes

Slice fully ripe tomatoes onto a pan or baking sheet. Place in 150 degree oven for 6 to 8 hours. Oven door should be left ajar for air circulation. Tomatoes are turned once every hour. Dried tomatoes should feel like soft leather. Store in a glass jar. If moisture forms, place in oven again and continue drying.

True sun-dried tomatoes require several days of low-humidity and warm sun. Tomatoes need to be protected from bugs or flies. They also need to be covered and moved inside on a nightly basis so they don't absorb moisture from the night air.

ANSWER — Tina Forry, Quentin, wanted a recipe for dough-like ornaments to hang on a Christmas tree. Thanks to Doris Brenize, Shippensburg, for sending a recipe.

Christmas Cookie Tree Ornaments

4 cups flour
1 cup salt
1½ cups water

Measure flour and salt into a large bowl. Stir to blend. Add the water and stir well. Mixture will be stiff. Put onto floured surface and knead until soft. Roll dough and cut out designs with cookie cutters. Using a straw, punch a hole in the top of each cookie. Let air dry 3 to 4 days. Paint or decorate as you like. Put a string or an ornament hanger through the hole. Hang on your Christmas tree.

Remove chicken and vegetables to a plate; cover with foil; keep warm.

In a small saucepan, stir milk and cornstarch until smooth. Gradually stir in 2 cups cooking liquid, bringing to a boil over medium heat. Boil 1-2 minutes until thickened.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Sally Kaltreider, Brodbecks, wanted a recipe for lasagne that does not need to be precooked. Thanks to Alice Stickler, Lawrenceville; Mary Hess; Barbara Glick, Gap; Carol Miller, Huntingdon; Tammy Fox, Myerstown; and others for sending recipes.

Italian Sausage Lasagne

1 pound bulk Italian sausage or ground beef, browned
1 medium onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
½ teaspoon salt
16-ounces whole tomatoes, undrained
15-ounces tomato sauce
12 lasagne noodles, uncooked
16-ounces ricotta or cottage cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1½ teaspoons dried oregano leaves
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook and stir sausage or ground beef, onion, and garlic in 10-inch skillet until brown; drain. Stir in 2 tablespoons parsley, sugar, basil, salt, tomatoes, and tomato sauce; break up tomatoes. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered until slightly thickened about 45 minutes.

Mix ricotta cheese, ¼ cup Parmesan cheese, 1 tablespoon parsley and oregano.

Spread 1 cup of the sauce mixture in ungreased rectangular baking dish; top with 4 noodles. Spread 1 cup cheese mixture over noodles; spread with 1 cup sauce mixture. Sprinkle with ⅔ cup mozzarella cheese. Repeat with 4 noodles, the remaining cheese mixture, 1 oup sauce mixture; and ⅔ cup mozzarella cheese. Top with remaining noodles and sauce mixture; sprinkle with remaining mozzarella, and Parmesan cheese. Bake uncovered in 350 degree oven until hot and bubbly, about 45 minutes. Let stand 15 minutes before cutting. Serves 8.

Tammy Fox writes that she uses this recipe all the time. She said the uncooked lasagne noodles cook as the mixture bakes. She often uses her own homecanned spaghetti sauce, which is a little thinner.

ANSWER — A reader from Blain wanted a recipe for making grape juice. Thanks to Tina Forry, Quentin; Alice Stickler, Lawrenceville; Doris Brenzle, Shippensburg; and others for sending recipes.

Homemade Grape Juice

1 cup grapes for each quart jar
⅔ cup sugar
Water

Into each quart jar, put grapes, sugar, and water to fill. Stir; seal. Process in boiling water bath for 12 minutes in canner. Wait 6 weeks before using.

Fig Snack

Consider figs the next time you reach for a nutritious snack. Five dried figs are extremely high in potassium and are a good source of protein, iron and fiber. Like most dried fruits though, they are not a low-calorie food. Enjoy them in moderation.

Ice cream still represents the largest share of dessert orders at restaurants, according to the NPD Group, a marketing research company based in Park Ridge, Illinois. Among dessert items, ice cream accounted for 38 percent of restaurant orders in 1991.

Project Aims To Reduce Cancer In Appalachia

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — This year, cancer will kill 30,300 Pennsylvanians. While following medical guidelines can reduce cancer risk, many residents of Pennsylvania's Appalachian region do not have access to adequate cancer prevention information and medical resources. Not surprisingly, cancer rates in many Appalachian counties top the national average.

"Appalachia has more than two million residents, many of whom have limited resources, never finish high school, and lack decent transportation and health care," says Dr. Audrey Maretzki, professor of food science and nutrition in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Studies have shown that people with low incomes and limited education face a higher risk of getting cancer and dying from it. Combine that with the lack of medical facilities in many Appalachian communities, and you're looking at a serious public health problem."

Maretzki heads the Northern Appalachia Leadership Initiative on Cancer (NALIC), a collaboration among Cooperative Extension offices and the American Cancer Society in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland; Penn State's College of Medicine; and the Pittsburgh Cancer Institute.

The project aims to unite rural Pennsylvanians in local coalitions that will create cancer-control plans for their communities. The plans will provide a model for future cancer detection and education programs.

The effort is one of four cancer control projects in the Appalachian region recently funded by the National Cancer Institute. Each project will run for five years.

For more information about the Northern Appalachia Leadership Initiative on Cancer, contact your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office or Ann Ward at (814) 863-8693.

Green Oranges

Give greenish oranges a second look. They are often riper and sweeter than orange-hued ones. In general, ripe oranges are firm and heavy with a smooth skin.

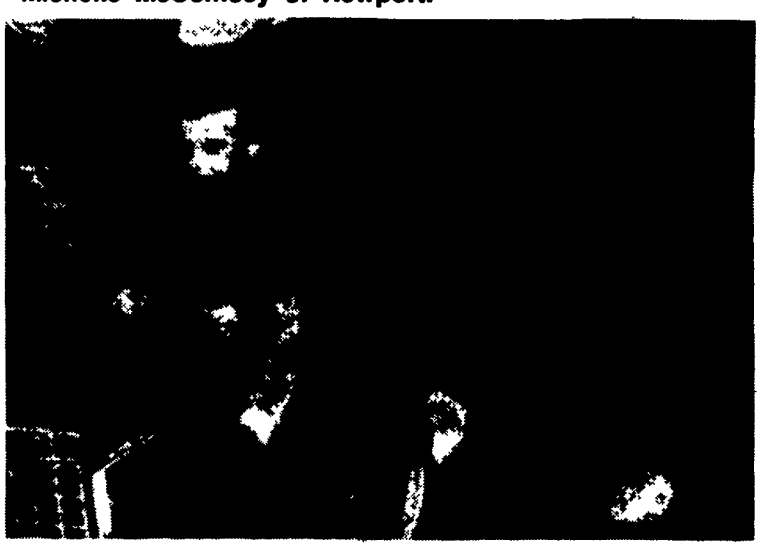
Kid's Day At Keystone International Exposition

Getting an early start in learning the skills of auctioneering is Clay Brubaker. The two-year-old is the son of Ken and Ginger Brubaker of West Chester. Ken auctioneed the Hampshire sale during KILE.

A soft pretzel lures Jareth Shirley, 5, away from the many activities for children during KILE. Jareth is the son of Michelle McComsey of Newport.



All set for take-off is this contestant in the Kiddie Pedal-Power Tractor Pull sponsored by Evergreen Tractor.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) —For 37 years the Keystone International Livestock Exposition showcases the nation's top sheep, horses, swine, and cattle during October at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

It's an exciting event for many children who accompany their parents to the five-day show and for those who visit just to admire the animals.

Every year entertainment for kids gets bigger and better. Especially on Saturday. That's Kid's Day at KILE.

Attractions include Agri-Kid Olympics, Kiddie Power Pedal-Power Tractor Pull, a petting farm, and Hatfield Racing Pigs.

If you are wondering what Agri-Kid Olympics means, here's the scoop. Kids compete in sack races, wheel barrow races, laughing contest, horse shoe pitch, hog-calling contest, and learning how to auctioneer. Sponsored by Lebanon Valley Bank, the olympic winner in each category receives a trophy.

During the day The Pied Piper played his bagpipes as he wandered around the Farm Show Complex. Ray Owen also entertained with songs.

The attractions for kids at KILE is a lot more than planned activities. For some, it's just fun to sit in the stands and watch shows such as the Scottish Highland cattle competition. And, of course, there is always plenty of food to eat.

Here are some pictures of kids who enjoyed KILE.

Seven-year-old Alex, right, gives his brother Chris, 5, a hug for earning a ribbon in the tractor pull. The brothers are the sons of Jeff and Sue Werner of Jonestown.

Ten-year-old Gabrielle Dussinger of York listens to the Pied Piper lull a crowd with his music. Gabrielle is the daughter of Howard and Charles Dussinger.

Saturday is Kid's Day at KILE. These kids watch as others participate in the many contests held during Agri-Kid Olympics sponsored by Lebanon Valley National Bank.

Pa. Pork Producers Honor Glass Lounge

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Glass Lounge restaurant in Susquehanna Township, Dauphin County was presented an award for featuring pork products by the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE), held at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Located at 4745 North Front Street in Susquehanna Township, the Glass Lounge has been owned by Susan and Gary Sayers for the last nine years. Open every day except Sunday, the restaurant has 23 employees, including three cooks.

Long known for their steak and seafood dishes, the Glass Lounge is also noted for pork products, including 1 1/2 - 2 pound ham steaks, pork chops, and lunches featuring ham and grilled ham and cheese sandwiches. Fresh, quality pork is often obtained from local producers and is custom-cut to the restaurant's specifications.

The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Association developed the award program to recognize restaurants that work to promote the consumption of meals featuring pork. The Sayers were presented with an inscribed pewter plaque by Harry Bachman, chairman of the KILE Swine Show, and Dennis Grumbine, chairman of the KILE exposition.

Dr. John Ziegler, professor emeritus in food science at the Pennsylvania State University, helped develop the recognition program and was in attendance at the presentation.

Rabies, Quarantine, Rules Do Not Block Kerra From Manheim Farm Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — For Kerra Allen, a first-place standing in Lancaster County's Shepherd's Lead Line could not have been more amazing. The 12-year-old thought her dream of even entering the contest was an impossibility because their farm was quarantined when a rabid skunk was killed on the property last Saturday afternoon.

That was the day the Allen's pet dog's continual barking brought them running. The dog stood face to face with a skunk. Because it was high noon and the skunk was within 20 feet of the house, Kerra's dad, Allen, was suspicious the skunk was rabid. After he killed it, Allen had it tested.

On Monday, the Department of Agriculture confirmed that the skunk was rabid. The skunk showed puncture marks on its nose that indicated that it had been in a fight. Although it cannot be proved, officials suspect that it might have had a fight with one of the Allen's farm animals. All animals on the Allen farm are quarantined until February.

The Shepherd's Lead Line at the Manheim Farm Show was only hours away when Kerra was notified that her sheep Bubba would not be allowed to participate.

Crushed, Kerra saw her plan disintergrate of not only winning the lead line but also of competing and selling her market lamb. When Farm Show officials, Jay Mylin and Sue Donches, heard of her predicament, they hurriedly made allowances. She could participate, they decided, if she could borrow a sheep that was halter broken for the lead line.

At 7:30 p.m., Kerra and her mom scanned the pens of sheep housed in the Farm Show barns in search of an eligible sheep. For lead line competition, not only does the sheep need to be halter broken but also be representative of the best of the breed. In the lead line competition, the shepherd must dress in a 100 percent wool outfit. Entrants are judged on poise and presentation along with the control and appearance of their sheep.

Manheim Farm Show Queen Marci Harnish, who is also Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess, hands a blue ribbon to Kerra Allen for her first place win in the Lancaster County Lead Line.

Thanks to the Frank Stoltzfus family of Elizabethtown, Kerra borrowed one of their sheep. Fortunately, the sheep cooperated by walking sedately by Kerra's side during the competition. The sheep became rowdy and uncooperative as soon as the show was over, but by then Kerra was clutching the first prize.

Kerra modeled a navy riding jacket with red, navy, and white plaid skirt. The sheep she led sported a matching Woolrich tie.

Gift Ideas To Use End-Of-Season Produce

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — Christmas gift ideas from the kitchen start early for the person who wants to give only the best. That's why Mifflin-Juniata County Home Economist Jane Beightol selected using late summer garden bounty as her topic for the Homemaker Leader meeting held recently in Lewistown. Fifteen leaders attended and brought with them small cnaning jars to sample the quick pickling recipes Beightol had planned.

"If you want good quality pickled foods, you have to start with good quality produce," Beightol stressed. And the recipes she selected for that day weren't your run of the mill cucumber pickle recipe. She chose sweet pickled onions, spiced pineapple and spicy grapes.

Before the women divided into three groups to prepare the recipes, Beightol went through some Penn State Univewrsity pamphlets on preparing and canning pickled foods and suggested recipes for easy pickled gifts from the kitchen.

Participants at the Homemaker Leaders Meeting prepare to serve Christmas cucumbers while the spiced pineapple recipe is prepared for processing.

A Spicy Grape recipe is readied for the canner. Too many cooks did not spoil the recipe in this case!

Beightol said if you did want to make pickles, don't buy cucumbers from the grocery store — pick them fresh. As a rule,c an fruits and vegetables within 24 hours of picking. Working with old or shriveled produce enhances your chance of after canning spoilage, making it an expensive loss considering the other more costly ingredients like spices and sugar. Use new spices too, she said. Spices that have been on the shelf for 3-5 years can be used in potpourri.

When Beightol touched the proper canning procedures, she stressed the need to follow approved recipes and up-to-date canning methods. Do not alter the amount of vinegar a recipe calls for and make sure vinegars are of five percent acidity. To become a preservative, the Acetic acid in vinegar lowers the pH of pickled vegetables to below 4.0. That's why red beets as a plain vegetable must be processed in a pressure cooker while pickled beets can be canned in a boiling bath canner. She did not advise using homemade vinegar for canning because the exact acidity level is not known.

Beightol pointed out other helpful hints in the Penn State booklets.

• Pick fresh dill as soon as the flowers begin to open. Three heads of dill equal one tablespoon of seed.

• Soft water is recommended for fermenting cucumbers. To soften water, boil for 15 minutes, then let set for 24 hours. Remove anys ediment and slowly pour the water from the container while not disturbing the remaining sediment. The water is ready to use.

• Old fashioned recipes call for "crispers" such as lime, alum, and grape leaves. If good-quality ingredients are used, these are deemed not necessary. Calcium (lime) and alum increase the firmness of pickled and fermented cucumbers, but they do not do this for quick-process pickles. Grape leaves add a bitter flavor to pickles and help prevent cucumbers from softening.

• Do not use aluminum, copper, brass, galvanized, or iron utensils. Use unchipped enamelware, stainless steel, or glass to heat pickling liquids.

• Food processed in a boiling-water canner less than 10 minutes must be filled into sterile jars. Make sure water covers the top of the jars by one inch.

• Chill pickled foods before serving to enhance flavor and texture.

• Never double or triple a pickling recipe.

• Do not use wax-coated cucmbers for pickling. The waxy surface cannot be penetrated by the pickling solution.

At the homemakers meeting, three groups of women chopped, sliced, cried (the onions), measured, mixed and heated the ingredients for their pickled Christmas gifts. Fixed up in a basket with embroidered jar lids, ribbons or fancy cloth or paper, the canned produce make a very special from-our-home-to-your home Christmas gift.

Here's the Penn State approved recipes the homemaker leaders used, plus some others.

A nice way to dress up any gift is with counted cross stitch extras such as these jar tops.

Sweet Pickled Onions

8 cups sliced onions
Boiling water
1 cup white vinegar
1 cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons pickling salt
½ teaspoon mustard seed

Cook onions in boiling water 4 minutes; drain. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients in large saucepan; bring to boil. Add onions, simmer 4 minutes. Quickly pack into clean, hot jars. Fill to within ½ -inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers onions. Cap each jar. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Makes 2-3 pints.

Siced Pineapple

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup red wine vinegar
1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
3 sticks cinnamon, broken
½ teaspoon whole allspice
¼ teaspoon whole cloves
2 fresh pineapples

Combine brown sugar, vinegar and pineapple juice in a large sauce pot. Add spices tied in cheesecloth bag. Cover; simmer 20 minutes. Peel pineapple; remove eyes; and core; cut into sticks. Add pineapple to syrup; simmer until heated through. DRain; reserve syrup. Heat syrup to a boil; remove spice bag. Pack hot pineapple into hot jars, leaving ¼ -inch head space. Pour hot syrup over pineapple, leaving ¼ -inch head space. Remove air bubbles. Adjust caps. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Yield: about 4 pints.

Spicy Grapes

2 pounds green seedless grapes
1 cup sugar
2 cups white vinegar
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 (3-inch) stick cinnamon

Wash grapes. Combine sugar and vinegar in saucepan. Tie cloves and cinnamon in cheesecloth bag and add to saucepan. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Add grapes and return to boiling. Simmer slowly 1 to 2 minutes or until tender. Remove spice bag.

Remove grapes with slotted spoon and pack into 2 hot, sterilized pint jars. Bring syrup back to boiling. Pour boiling syrup over grapes, filling to within ¼ -inch from the top. Adjut lids.

Process in boiling water bath 5 minutes. Start to count the processing time when water in canner returns to boiling. Makes 2 pints or 4 half pints.

Christmas Cucumbers

7 large cucumbers
1 gallon water
1 cup pickling lime
1 bottle (1 oz.) red food coloring
1 tablespoon alum
1 cup cider vinegar

2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
10 cups sugar (Yes, this is the correct amount, but servings are small)
4 cinnamon sticks
4 ounces red hots (cinnamon candies)

Day 1: Peel cucumbers into ½ " slices. Soak in 1 gallon water and 1 cup lime overnight.

Day 2: Drain, wash, and soak in clear water 4 hours. Remove centers so they will look like rings (Center piece of donut cutter works well). Place cucumbers in large kettle.

Cover cucumbers with water. Mix 1 cup vinegar, bottle of red food color, and alum and add to cucumbers. Heat and simmer for 2 hours. Drain. Discard liquid.

Then bring to boil 2 cups vinegar, 2 cups water, 10 cups sugar, cinnamon sticks, and red hots. Pour over drained pickle rings. Let set overnight.

Day 3: Next morning pour liquid off and bring to boil; pour back over pickles.

Day 4: Repeat Day 3.

Day 5: Repeat Day 3, but this time pour boiling liquid over cucumber rings that have been put into pint jars. Put in boiling water bath for 20 minutes.

Makes approximately 7 pints.

Rabies, Quarantine, Rules Do Not Block Kerra From Manheim Farm Show Competition

Rabies, quarantine, and contest rules almost kept this 12-year-old from entering Lead Line competition at the Manheim Farm Show. When Kerra Allen placed first, she gave her grandmother Carol Borry a hug.

Second place went to Angie Erb of Elizabethtown. The 17-year-old is an FFA member at Lancaster Mennonite High School. She wore a knit sweater and wool skirt while her sheep Frisky wore a coordinating teal blue bow tie. Angie, the daughter of Richard and Grace Erb, had placed first in last year's competition and has accumulated several other ribbons in past competitions.

Third place went to Sarah Zurin, 12. She led her Dorset Lizzie, who although beautiful had a mind of her own and did not appreciate walking around the show ring. Sarah wore a multi-colored sweater and navy skirt. She is the daughter of Gary and Judy Zurin of Mt. Joy and a seventh grader at Manheim Junior High School.

Judges for the Lead Line were Mary Alice Fyock, a free-lance home economist, and Ken Rutt, a Hampshire breeder.

While the first place win definitely brightened Kerra's outlook, she still has some hurdles to cross to accomplish her plans for the Manheim Livestock Auction. Kerra is the girl who last year donated the earnings from her sheep to Clare House, a temporary shelter for homeless women and children. About $2,000 was raised at the auction, and since then, people who have read news reports of the story have donated almost $9,000 to Clare House. Kerra wanted to make that $10,000 by selling her market lamb this year at the auction. Now the quarantine prevents her from selling the animal.

Although Farm Show rules state that all market sheep must be owned by June 30 of this year, the officials have made an exception in this case. They are allowing Kerra to sell a sheep that someone is giving her.

On Monday, Kerra was unsure how the sheep would perform in the show ring but she was optimistic that her goal can be reached.

A conglomerate bid for her lamb was being organized by Tom Drumm at (717) 627-0443. Although the sale will be over by the time this paper is delivered, contributions to Clare House may still be made by send a check to 50 A South Broad St., Lititz, PA 17543.

The quarantine affects many other areas of the Allens' life. At several other county fairs, Kerra has shown a ewe that has been undefeated in its breed. She planned to take it to the Pennsylvania Farm Show, but the Allen farm will still be under quarantine in January.

The Allens are also well known for the Chincoteaque ponies they raise on their farm. These were to be used to raise funds for several non-profit organizations by offering kids pony rides at several events. That too, will not be allowed under quarantine.

Although the dog had a rabies shot, none of the barn cats, sheep, or ponies have had shots. The dog was given a booster shot and the other animals will be watched closely for any evidence of the deadly disease.

"Of the more than 9,000 things that could go wrong, the idea of rabies never entered our minds," said mother Kendy. "We don't understand why this happened but we believe that God works all things together for good."

Kerra agreed. On Monday night at the Manheim Farm Show, things were definitely turning out much better than she expected for the quarantined farm family.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We've just spent two weeks in Canada. The first day was spent on three airplanes as we flew to Edmonton. There was no turbulence and not even a drop of coffee was spilled as we were served a nice meal of chicken and vegetables. A limousine met us and took three couples from our tour to a hotel.

There were three elk just a few yards from our restaurant window and as we dined they nibbled on bushes on the lawn. The next day was spent on a train to Jasper and on the way we saw snow-topped mountains and more evergreen trees than you can imagine. In the morning we discovered that frost had killed all of their flowers.

The following day a bus drove us through the Queen Elizabeth Range of mountains. We were lucky as we saw a grizzly bear in the woods and our bus stopped so that we could watch it. Farther down the road we also saw big horn sheep and some very white mountain goats high on the rocks.

Fur traders were in this area as early as 1671 from the Hudson Bay Co. On our way to Lake Louise we stopped at several water falls to take pictures and to stretch our legs. Our bus driver was very knowledgeable and talked incessantly.

Evergreens grow slowly here and some are only 10-feet tall but they are 300 years old. Our group took a snocoach high up on a glacier with ice 1,000 feet deep. It was surprising to find that the temperature was 40 degrees and sunny. Here the elevation was 10,000 feet and trees only grow up to the 7,000 foot level. More next time.

Weave Honeysuckle Basket

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Susan Kelleher, recently listed by Early American Life magazine as one of the 200 best traditional craftsworkers, will lead a honeysuckle basketry workshop at the Hershey Museum on Tuesday, October 26 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Under the direction of Ms. Kelleher, participants will make a small honeysuckle basket using wicker basketry techniques. In addition, instructions will be given on how to gather and prepare honeysuckle vine as well as information on natural dye materials.

Honeysuckle vine grows wild throughout the Mid-Atlantic region and has long been gathered and prepared to be woven into baskets. Susan Kelleher is known for her exceptional traditional basketry. In addition to honeysuckle, Susan works in a variety of materials including white oak.

Registration deadline is October 15. Class fee is $28 including materials. For registration information call (717) 534-3439.

The Hershey Museum is a non-profit, educational and cultural organization administered by The M.S. Hershey Foundation and is located at the west end of Hersheypark Arena.

Extension Helps Kids Say No To Tobacco

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Despite all the evidence that smoking leads to cancer and heart disease, about 24 percent of adults in the United States still light up. Children also use cigarettes and smokeless tobacco products in high numbers. Of the estimated 3,000 youth each day who take up the habit, one-fourth are likely to die someday of a tobacco-related disease.

"Nearly 90 percent of today's smokers began before age 21," says Dr. Alan Snider, professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "The age that kids first try tobacco products is dropping, especially among girls. Some kids start smoking when they are only nine years old, and a few are as young as four years."

To counteract the use of tobacco products by children and teens, the Tobacco Control Program of the Pennsylvania Department of Health has funded a three-year project, called Community Coalitions for Tobacco-Free Youth.

Penn State Cooperative Extension, in collaboration with the Fox Chase Cancer Center in Philadelphia, will help develop community coalitions that aim to prevent tobacco use by children and adolescents in counties in each of the Pennsylvania Department of Health's six health districts.

"Our goal is to prevent kids from becoming even occasional users of cigarettes or snuff," says Snider, who co-manages the project with colleagues at Fox Chase. "Extension has done research and developed programs to help urban youth avoid tobacco, but efforts in rural areas have been limited."

Extension staff will work as field coordinators in six of the seven target counties. They will recruit, organize and train coalition members, including parents, educators, health workers, clergy, business people, and government and law enforcement officials as well as youth themselves.

Pruning Workshop

Please bring appropriate clothing and eye protection, a hand pruner and loppers.

The course will be held on Saturday, October 23, at Greenway Gardens from 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The fee for this course is $18 and includes all handouts. Registration forms are available at most area garden centers and Carroll County Public Libraries or by calling the Carroll County Extension Office at (410) 848-4611 or (410) 875-2801.

Although yogurt is an ancient food, it remained relatively obscure in the U.S. until the 1970s. Americans ate an average of 4.1 pounds of yogurt per person in 1990, four times as much as in 1970, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $129 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past six years, we returned more than $129 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $36,600 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.7 million a month.

Robert B. McSparran
President

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Adams Co. Sets Meeting Date

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Plans for the 42nd annual meeting of the Adams County Holstein Association were confirmed by the board of directors in a meeting held Sunday afternoon, Sept. 12, at the home of its president, Marvin Brown, Littlestown. The meeting followed a family picnic by board members.

Scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 28, at 7 p.m., in the social hall of York Springs Community Fire Company, the event will feature an election of directors, a report on the newly formed Junior Holstein Club, and a report by committees on major activities of the club during the past year.

County Extension Agent Thomas E. Piper is to present a slide-illustrated report on the tour visits made to farms in Carroll County, Maryland, and is to introduce Dr. Harold Hawk, research physiologist from the Dairy Reproduction Laboratory, USDA, Beltsville, Md., as speaker.

Reservations to attend the dinner meeting should be made by Oct. 21 by calling any member of the board of directors. All live within the "717" area code region — Marvin Brown, 359-7456; Jeffrey King, 528-4211; Vincent Lobaugh, 677-8739; Robin Thompson, 401-751-6370; Steve Wood, 359-7407; Janet Ludwig, 528-4792; Jeffrey Roche, 624-3537; Adam Lobaugh, 677-8786; Guy Kehr, 359-7276; or Dan Waybright, 334-4995.

Plans are developing on schedule for the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention to be held Feb. 11, 12, and 13, 1994, and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Convention to be held Feb. 24, 25, and 26, 1994.

Hosted by the breeders in southcentral Pennsylvania, both events are to be held at the Ramada Inn, Business Route 15, south of Gettysburg. Steve and Chris Wood of Penn-Gate Farms, Littlestown, are co-chairing the committee to make arrangements for the state convention.

Working with the theme "History and Holsteins," the committee is set to meet on Nov. 12 to advance plans for the convention and a breed consignment sale which is to take place at the Ramada Inn at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 26, 1994.

The board voted to participate in another cheese sale as a fund raiser. Mary Kay Roche is to direct the sale of two tons of cheese to be delivered about Nov. 10. Orders for 5-pound blocks should be placed with any of the directors listed above by Oct. 6.

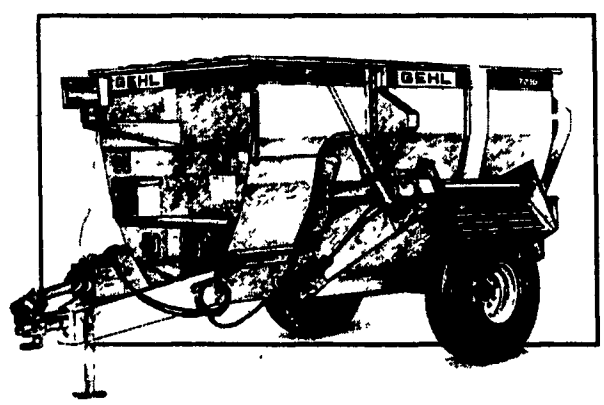
The Gehl Scavenger® II is the "original" V-Tank spreader and still the best. It delivers outstanding performance in all types of manure, from liquid to semi-solid to pen-packed or even frozen manure.

- Patented square-tube auger – Hydraulically powers up and down to break up solid material.
- Variflo discharge – Spreads smoothly and evenly for complete application control.
- Five models – From 192 to 596 bushel heaped capacities to match your operation.
- 10-Year warranty – Against rust-through on the tank for peace of mind.
- Options include – Truck-mounted units and hydraulic lids.

GEHL TMR MIXER FEEDERS ARE #1



Nothing makes a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action – Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy Efficient – Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built To Last – Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Six Sizes – 150 to 500 cubic feet capacities.
- Three Styles – Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation.

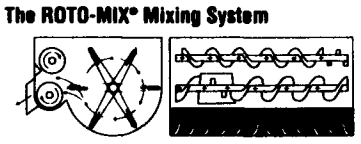
"Zone feeding convinced me."

"I'd heard talk around the industry that ROTO-MIX® Feed Mixers were good, but guys like me need to see it for themselves. So we bought a ROTO-MIX and fed half of the yard with it and the other half with an auger mixer for a year. The ROTO-MIX fed cattle consumed from .5 to 1 lb. more feed per day than cattle fed from the auger mixer. That was proof enough for me. We bought another ROTO-MIX and put our old auger mixer out to pasture. For my money, nobody delivers feed to the bunk better than ROTO-MIX."

Thane Moore, Manager
Sauvage Feed Yard, Oberlin, KS

The ROTO-MIX® Mixing System



The ROTOR lifts the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger. This gives you a fluffier ration at lower power requirements. The feed moves through the mixing chamber, eliminating dead spots, pile up in corners and auger tunneling through feed

The ROTO-MIX patented mixing system provides faster mixing with less horsepower and less grinding of flaked and high-moisture grain, pellets and other ingredients resulting in less fines in the bunk and increased consumption per head

LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — "Total surprise!"

That's how 10-year-old John Stauffer summed up his experience of showing the champion market hog at the Manheim Farm Show on Monday night.

In his second year of showing, John said that this was his first experience with anything near a top placing.

His heavyweight champion weighed 266 pounds. According to judge Ken Weinbark, "It's a pig that complies with all standards of the pork industry. It's long bodied, very dimensional front and the whole way through, and has a good set of legs."

Weinbark, the Lebanon County Extension agent, stressed the importance of raising hogs that comply with the industry's standards.

John, the son of John and Cathy Stauffer of Manheim, said that he raised four Bluebacks (a crossbred with characteristic blue spots on the rump) that he got from White Oak Mills for the show. Basically, he doesn't do much with them except to let the pigs run loose in the barnyard for about 30 minutes daily during the last couple of weeks. John is a fifth grader at Lititz Area Mennonite School.

Reserve champion market hog was shown by Amy Becker of Manheim. It's a family tradition for Amy or one of her two sisters Karen and Melissa to win. This year with her oldest sister no longer showing, Amy scooped the mediumweight championship before the overall reserve title.

"I personally thought the pig was terrible. I don't know why, I just didn't like it," she said. "But my dad thought it was a good one so I showed it," the 12-year-old said.

The Becker sisters are the children of Marlin and Nancy who raise about 50 pigs on a nearby farm. Amy and Melissa brought 11 pigs to the show to earn several first, second, and third ribbons in their classes. Amy and Melissa also took second places in their respective classes of showmanship.

"If you don't have the best pigs, you can always win at showmanship," is Tracy Bollinger's philosophy.

She was right. The 16-year-old placed first in the senior division and her sister, Amy, placed first in the 14-15-year-old division.

The sisters are the daughters of Eugene and Carol Bollinger of Manheim, where they raise both sheep and pigs. Tracy is president of both the Lancaster County Swine Club and the Woolies Club.

The Bollingers brought 18 of their 60-head swine herd to the show. Although the sisters keep their prize money separate, they are supportive of each other.

"I'm just as happy if my sister wins as I am if I win," 14-year-old Amy said. She impressed the judge with her showmanship because, unlike other exhibitors, she stopped her pig when the judge attempted to feel the loin of the hog.

In the 11 to 13-year-old showmanship division, Nathan Umbrell emerged as the winner. Last year, he was the reserve winner at the Manheim Farm Show. The son of Dennis and Linda Umbrell of Elizabethtown remained calm no matter what and always kept his eye on the judge, according to Weinbark.

In the novice division, Kyle Ward placed first in showmanship. The fifth grader is the son of Dan and Karen Ward of Elizabethtown.

WARREN (Warren Co.) — Good pasture management involves much more than simply turning sheep onto forage. To obtain efficient animal production over a number of years, the needs of the plant as well as the needs of the animal must be understood.

The number of animals grazing a certain area of pasture is a factor that must receive high priority in the management program. To maintain adequate plant production, some forage must be left at the end of the grazing period. Overuse will weaken the plants and regrowth will be slower.

A good rule of thumb is to remove only half of the current year's growth during the growing season. When the plant is dormant, up to 65 percent of the current year's growth can usually be removed without harming the plant.

Also, rotation systems where plants are given adequate rest periods for recovery allow for more complete utilization of the standing crop without harm to the grazed plants.

Adjusting the number of animals to the pasture is not easy since plant growth is not uniform throughout the year or from year to year.

In our area, forage growth is fairly rapid in the spring and early summer and relatively slow or non-existent during the dormant season. In drought years, considerably less forage will be produced than in normal years.

The objective of a management plan should be to avoid overgrazing during periods of slow growth, and to avoid wastefulness or increase the efficiency of harvest during periods of rapid growth.

Often times it is possible to harvest excess forage as hay or silage during periods of rapid growth and feed it during times of slow growth.

In drought years it will be necessary to reduce the number of animals and/or private supplemental feed.

Grazing intensity on range is often defined in terms of stocking rates. Stocking rate is the number of animal units that are grazed on a certain area of land for a specific period of time.

An animal unit is the equivalent of five sheep or one cow. An animal unit month (AUM) is the amount of forage required by an animal unit for one month.

The distribution of livestock is how uniformly the different sections of the pasture are grazed. Livestock often spend most of their time near water. Consequently, areas close to water are often overgrazed while areas far from water are lightly grazed.

Kinds of vegetation and steepness of slope also cause livestock to graze certain areas more than others.

Development of water sources and use of salt and mineral supplements may aid in achieving uniform range utilization.

Fences can also be used to force the use of poorly utilized pasture. Fencing is an added expense and must be weighed against the potential benefits. Electric fences can be used with sheep and can be constructed at a much lower cost than conventional fences.

Some plants are selectively grazed by animals at certain times of the year and ignored during other periods.

Grazing animals usually prefer plants that are actively growing. As grasses and forbs mature their protein content and digestibility drop.

Pastures usually provide an excellent source of nutrients for sheep during spring and early summer.

However, deficiencies often occur when forage is dried, mature and weathered. Most grasses have lost 85 percent of their vitamin A (as carotene), 75 percent of their protein and 65 percent of their phosphorus before winter.

Even so, most operators usually provide livestock with supplemental protein and energy during winter.

Photosynthesis is the process through which green plants maintain life and achieve growth. The leaf of the green plant is the food producer, or the manufacturer of foodstuffs. It is through this process that the plant is able to grow.

Plant life is affected by grazing. Some vegetative material (leaves) is removed every time a plant is grazed. As the green leaves are removed, the plant's ability to produce foodstuffs (photosynthesis) diminishes.

If the rate of carbohydrate use exceeds storage for a given length of time, plants eventually weaken and die. Plants are most susceptible to grazing damage during July and August in our area.

Grazing management tries to either minimize livestock use during these periods or rotate stock to prevent the same pasture from being grazed during the same season in successive years.

White-New Idea Announces Round Balers

COLDWATER, Ohio — Three new round balers (4800 Series) are being introduced this fall at farm shows across the United States and Canada by White-New Idea.

The bale chamber makes bales with a relatively low density interior for high quality forage throughout the bale. The outer edge is very dense to protect the high-quality interior.

In addition to significant design improvements, the New Idea 4800 Series round balers are red. According to Curt Martel, VP Sales & Marketing at White-New Idea, "The change to red helps reinforce our focus on hay tools. With this change, we're also placing more emphasis on the management side of hay production. We feel it is important to discuss how our equipment can help dairy and cattle operations retain as much relative feed value (RFV) as possible for feeding."

All three of the new 4800 Series round balers feature a new pickup design for smoother feeding of large, high-quality alfalfa hay windrows or high-bulk stover. The new baler series also features splined shafts and bearings in the belt rollers for quieter, smoother operation.

Another operator-friendly design change is the large, hand-turn knobs on the shields. These knobs give the operator quick, easy access to areas requiring routine maintenance.

The new 4800 Series round balers feature numerous design advancements, making bales with a relatively low density interior for high quality forage throughout the bale and a dense, protective outer edge to hold its shape.

The 4865 baler makes a six-foot high (diametter) by five-foot wide, 2,000-pound bale. This baler is available with or without net wrap. With the net wrap attachment, operators can go from net to twine wrap or back just by flipping a switch. There is no need to rethread. If the operator won't be switching back and forth, the eight-ball twine box can be used to store an extra roll of net instead of twine.

The 4845 baler makes a four-foot high (diameter) by five-foot wide, 900-pound bale. This baler is also available with or without net wrap. In addition to the improvements listed above, this model also features a new bale ejection system and a centrally located twine storage box. These changes give the baler a totally new look.

The 4844 baler makes a four-foot high (diameter) by four-foot wide, 700-pound bale and features the new centrally located twine storage, new pickup design, quieter operation, easy-to-turn knob fasteners, and a new look.

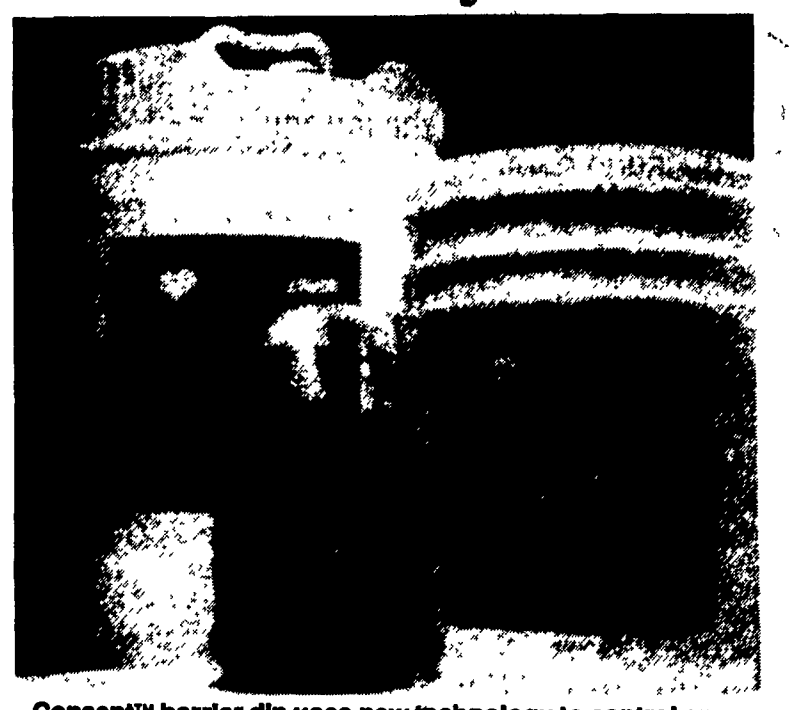
New Technology Fights Mastitis Naturally



Consept™ barrier dip uses new technology to control organisms that cause mastitis, without the disadvantages of conventional chemical-based dips.

NAPERVILLE, Il. — Control the organisms that cause mastitis with a revolutionary new barrier teat dip formulated to reduce the hassles commonly associated with the barrier dips available today.

Surge Consept™ Barrier Dip uses a gentle polymer formulation that creates an all-natural antiseptic barrier to help protect teats between milkings.

The all-natural Ambicin N™ germicide and polymers in Consept Barrier help seal out the mastitis-causing organisms prevalent in a cow's environment. Tests at Cornell University under protocols consistent with those recommended by the National Mastitis Council and field tests on dairy farms across the United States prove Consept Barrier is extremely effective in controlling mastitis.

"Our research shows that dairy producers want the most effective protection on the market without the consern of skin irritation," said Brian Wilkins, marketing and business development manager for Babson Bros. Co. "Conventional chemical-based barrier dips have the potential to irritate teats, so we developed a natural germicidal barrier teat dip that is gentler on teats, yet still gives effective protection against mastitis-causing organisms."

Ambicin N is a bacteriocin, or a naturally-occurring protein produced by one bacteria to kill another. Consept Barrier selectively kills mastitis-causing bacteria on contact by piercing their cell membrances. Unlike conventional germicides, Ambicin N attacks only bacteria — not skin tissue — so it is gentle on teats and milkers' hands. Its formulation also includes special emollients that condition teats and protect against chapping and cracking.

Unlike base and activator barrier products, Consept Barrier is convenient and eliminates waste because it is premixed in a ready-to-use, stable formula that maintains its potency with every dip. The viscous dark blue liquid quickly adheres to teats, but can be easily removed by the pre-milking hygiene process. Consept™ Pre+Post Teat Dip is the recommended pre-milking dip for use with Consept Barrier.

All Consept udder health products contain Ambicin N, which is generally recognized as safe as a food ingredient.

Disaster Aid Available To Farmers

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — The Weather during the past few years has been very uncooperative to Schuylkill County farmers, and has currently left them in a growing season that is very dry.

Producers were plagued with a wet spring, which gave them great difficulty getting their crops started this year. After the spring rains, many areas of the county haven't seen rain all summer. This causes the crops to be stressed, some to the point of low or no yields at all.

The problems that area farmers face are problems that should concern every citizen of Schuylkill County, for it's the farmer who puts the food on our tables. If they have a bad year, we'll see poorly stocked grocery store shelves or even empty shelves, allowing the food stores to raise prices due to demand and lack of supply.

After several years of poor growing conditions some farmers find themselves too far in debt to continue farming, thus affecting every consumer. All communities should recognize the importance of keeping farmers in business.

Eligible producers may apply for benefits on most crops through March 4, 1994. To be eligible for payments, a producer must have sustained a 35 percent loss to a particular crop while carrying crop insurance; otherwise, a 40 percent loss is required for eligibility. The payment rate for covered losses has been established at 65 percent of the applicable basic payment rate for individual crops.

Details on how to receive financial aid for crop losses are available at the ASCS office in the Fairlane Village Mall or by calling (717) 429-1168.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

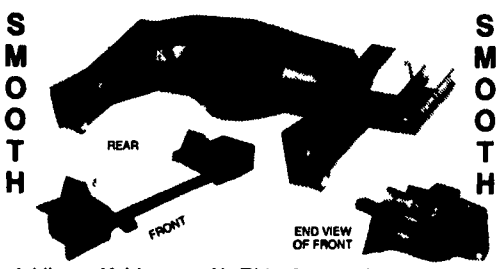
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system.

Optional 12 volt compressor allows changing air pressure setting on the go.

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks. Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy, and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

E. COLI INFECTIONS IN POULTRY

Dr. Patty Dunn
Animal Diagnostic Lab
Dept. of Veterinary Science

Infectious diseases — those caused by invading organisms such as bacteria, viruses, mold, and parasites — are often looked for first when investigating a livestock or poultry health problem.

However, infectious diseases are but one of the many disease categories affecting our domestic food animal species. Diseases caused by genetic abnormalities, nutritional imbalances, and metabolic disburbances are examples of other categories that alone or in combination have become increasingly important.

Disease syndromes such as ascites in broilers and caged layer fatigue in commercial egg layers can cause significant problems in today's high performing chickens. In contrast, certain infectious diseases such as Pullorum disease and mycoplasmosis, which threatened to destroy the developing poultry industry earlier in this century, are extremely rare in commercial birds in the U.S. today.

In general, our knowledge of infectious diseases and the agents that cause them has increased greatly, and control has improved. However, there are still many disease-causing microorganisms that remain as formidable enemies to a healthy poultry flock. In fact, the number one direct killer of poultry worldwide is a bacteria that most of us have heard a lot about — E. Coli.

Most recently, E. Coli bacteria have been in the news for causing foodborne illness in people in the northwestern U.S. Hamburger contaminated with a particularly virulent E. Coli strain was the source of illness in this case. Certain other strains of E. Coli cause severe diarrheas in calves and piglets, and yet others cause mastitis in dairy cows. Unfortunately, domestic poultry species also succumb to several different types of disease conditions caused by E. Coli infections. To follow is information relevant to the recognition and prevention of E. Coli disease in poultry.

Escherichia Coli is the full genus and species name of this gram-negative bacteria. It is a normal inhabitant of the digestive tracts of all mammals and domestic fowl. E. Coli is ubiquitous in the environment where it can persist for a long period of time.

Certain serotypes can be pathogenic in specific host species. Most avian strains of E. Coli are different from those strains that cause disease problems in mammals.

In general, E. Coli is considered an "opportunist" or "secondary invader" when it causes disease in chickens older than one week of age. This means that predisposing factors are necessary to "open the door" for an otherwise healthy chicken with an intact immune system to develop a serious E. Coli infection.

Although differences in opinion exist, many poultry disease specialists think that E. Coli can be a primary pathogen in turkeys, meaning that the presence of a virulent strain of E. Coli can cause disease without any other predisposing factors present. However, the E. Coli infection will be more likely to develop and worsen in severity if one or more of these factors are present.

The predisposing factors to the development of E. Coli infection, also known as "colibacillosis," are many. Concurrent diseases and environmental stresses, often related to improper management, are common conditions that promote the development of colibacillosis. In the chicken, common viral respiratory diseases such as Newcastle disease and infectious bronchitis (including reactions to live vaccines for these diseases) can predispose to E. Coli infection.

The normal host defenses of the bird's upper respiratory tract can be impaired by these viruses, and E. Coli bacteria may invade by the respiratory route into the air sacs. Immunosupressive conditions such as infectious bursal disease often lead to E. Coli infection. Coccidiosis predisposes to colibacillosis by injuring the intestinal wall and allowing the bacteria to enter the bloodstream of the birds. Similarly, in the turkey, respiratory diseases such as bordetellosis, aspergillosis, and Newcastle disease, as well as intestinal and immunosuppressive disease such as hemorrhagic enteritis, are common precursors to outbreaks of colibacillosis.

Suboptimal environmental conditions are the most common predisposing factors for the disease. These are conditions relating to increased bacterial load in the environment as well as increased "stress" on the bird to compete for food, water, and space. Poor ventilation resulting in increased ammonia and dust is the best example. Chilling, overcrowding, and unsanitary conditions are frequent contributors, as are contaminated water and feed.

There are common disease syndromes associated with E. Coli infection: colisepticemia, egg peritonitis, and yolk sac infection/omphalitis. Colisepticemia is most commonly seen in chickens and turkeys between 4 and 12 weeks of age. Clinical signs include depression, decreased feed consumption, labored breathing, snicking, uneven growth, and condemnations (air sacculitis). Post mortem examination often reveals a thick white to yellow exudate covering the surfaces fo the air sacs, heart, and liver. In very acute cases, lesions may be limited to whole carcass congestion with en-

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — James Bays took his position as New York state director of the Farmers Home Administration recently.

Bays, a Smyrna, N.Y. dairy farmer, ran the farm with his father and brother before taking up his position as state director.

"I have a great affection for and sensitivity to rural New York - it's my home, it's my business," Bays said. "I want to be a strong advocate for New York."

A 1974 Cornell University graduate with a bachelor's in animal science, Bays has held the positions of special assistant to the state commissioner of agriculture and markets, regional organizational director of the State Farm Bureau, and assistant to the dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University, where among his many duties he held the position of executive director of the New York State 4-H Foundation, Inc.

Egg peritonitis is very common in laying hens. A large percentage of the "normal" mortality in a caged layer flock is due to this condition in which E. Coli infects the oviduct, ovary, and adjacent body cavity, resulting in an overwhelming inflammation that eventually kills the bird. On post mortem exam, yolk debris and caseous exudate is found in and around the reproductive tract. A tendency toward vent picking increases the incidence of this form of E. Coli infection.

The most important cause of first week mortality in chicks and poults is bacterial yolk sac infection or omphalitis. This condition has also been called "mushy chick disease" or "navel ill." Many other bacteris can be involved, but E. Coli is by far the most common.

E. Coli from the environment can persist on the egg shell or shell membranes during incubation of the hatching egg. The hatching chick can contact the bacteria during its emergence from the shell, and becomes infected through the unhealed navel. The E. Coli grows in the internalized yolk sac, and often causes a septicemia that results in weakness and death. The chick may also pick up E. Coli from its immediate environment in the hatchery or in the brooding area on the farm. Affected chicks are depressed and often have distended abdomens with a thickened, prominent navel. Post-mortem examination reveals a congested, often dehydrated carcass with inflamed vessels of the umbilicus and yolk sac. The yolk sac itself can contain yellow/tan dry exudate, or brown/green watery material. Often a foul odor is present.

The control of colibacillosis is largely aimed at managing the predisposing factors. Proper ventilation, temperature, housing, feeding, and litter management are crucial. Checking drinking water for coliform bacteris levels, both at the source and at the drinker, is a good check of water quality. A sound vaccination program for respiratory diseases and infectious bursal disease, and effective enteric disease control, go a long way toward decreasing the likelihood of significant mortality from coli-septicemia.

Maintaining high standards for clean hatching eggs both at the breeder farm and at the hatchery, as well as stringent hatchery sanitation and brooding conditions, will help prevent losses due to yolk sac infection.

Other means of control are less desirable. Antibiotic therapy is often of limited value because of the increasing antibiotic resistance of many pathogenic E. Coli strains in poultry. Tetracyclines and sulfonamides are most often used, but antibiotic sensitivity screens of an isolate from a particular farm should always be used to guide antibiotic selection.

Several new antibacterials in the fluoroquinolone group are undergoing the approval process for use in food animal species, and should be available for use in poultry within the next one to two years. Those are expected to have good activity against E. Coli. Vaccination with autogenous bacterins (vaccine made from killed bacteria isolated directly from the problem flock) is used rarely and is generally considered to be cost effective only in breeders.

The widespread presence of the E. Coli bacteria, and the multiple manifestations of E. Coli infection, make it a formidable enemy for modern commercial poultry. Understanding and targeting the important predisposing factors on your farm can go a long way toward preventing this bacteria from affecting the health and performance of your flock and from robbing profits from your poultry operation.

Office Helps Bring Down Trade Barriers

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has announced that the Weights and Measures Section of the Maryland Department of Agriculture is working with the federal government and the governments of this hemisphere to eliminate trade barriers, including regulatory trade barriers.

"One of the goals of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) is to set up a common standard of weights and measures between nations. Common standards will save time, money and allow the freer flow of commerce," said Walker.

The United States and Canada have formed a Mutual Recognition Working Group to set up common weights and measures regulations, and a member of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's (MDA) staff is participating in the effort.

"The goal of the Working Group is to make it easier for a scale manufacturer to sell their product in the U.S. and Canada by conducting scale evaluations that will satisfy the requirements of both countries," said MDA weights and measures specialist Constantine Cotsoradis.

"Our laboratory in Maryland will be conducting tests for the U.S. and Canada thus expanding our standing from a national to an international laboratory," Walker said.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An early junior yearling heifer, Indian Creek Della 202 (S: DaEs-Ro Casey 629, D: Indian Creek Delores 962) from Indian Creek Farm, Stahlstown, became grand champion female at the Angus Show on Monday at the Keystone International Livestock Expo (KILE).

The animal, shown by Richard Wilson, Stahlstown, competed in a large class with 12 other animals and against other class winners that exhibited the breed characteristics of structural correctness and soundness that will allow the females to "live a good long life and pass on those genetics to the progeny," said Mark Wahlberg, extension animal scientist, Virginia Tech, show judge.

Reserve champion was exhibited by Kris Whipp, representing QB Land and Cattle Company, Caldwell, Ohio. The early senior heifer class champion was QB Miss Spark 102 (S: R&J Expresso, D: Miss Spark WK 3206).

Company Announces Seed Business Expansion

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Helena Chemical Company announced the expansion of its HyPerformer® seed business as a separate unit of the company.

Milton Allen, formerly division manager for the Florida division, was appointed general manager and will be responsible for overseeing all operations. Dick Guthrie was appointed assistant general manager of HyPerformer. He previously served as director of Helena's Seed Department at corporate.

"The decision to separate this part of Helena's business was based not only on the phenomenal growth of our HyPerformer® seed line, but the commitment we made as a company in developing and servicing quality seed products," said Gary Hancock, president and chief executive officer of Helena Chemical Company. "HyPerformer's business philosophy will continue to be the same as Helena's — quality people, products, and knowledge."

Located on site at Agricenter International in Memphis, Tenn., this new business unit will encompass all areas associated with research and development, quality control, testing, sales and marketing, purchasing, supplier relations, and all other activities for HyPerformer® brand seed products.

"The HyPerformer® brand has been a very profitable segment of Helena's overall business, with varieties from our four major lines of seed (corn, sorghum, cotton, and soybeans) exceeding customer expectations in quality, yield, and profitability," said Milton Allen. He said that the future of agriculture will be increasingly dependent on new technological applications involving seed, and HyPerformer is taking steps now to develop a strong market position in order to meet the needs of its customers.

"Providing the customer with a dependable, quality product is still the main focus point of HyPerformer," said Allen.

With HyPerformer operating as a separate business unit, Helena's seed department will continue to purchase seed from its suppliers and distribute them through its own sales force. Allen said, "HyPerformer will actually be a supplier of seed products to Helena, and we will provide the same quality products and service as any other seed company."

Allen also stated that HyPerformer has everything in place for the upcoming season and has established its sales territories into northern and southern regions.

"These two regions have different approaches in the market," he said. "In the north, which runs from the eastern seaboard to the Rocky Mountains, we'll market hybrid corn, grain sorghum, forage sorghum, as well as brands of alfalfa and soybeans. In the southern region, which runs from southern Virginia to Arizona, we'll focus on cotton, corn, grain sorghum, forage sorghum, millet, and soybeans."

ASSARIA, Kan. — Great Plains Manufacturing Inc. has announced that D&E Equipment of Bloomsburg has recently been contracted to sell and service the Great Plains line of grain drills.

FARM MANAGEMENT

ACT 319 — CLEAN AND GREEN FARMLAND ASSESSMENT

Alan W. Strock
Farm Management Agent

Reassessment is a very popular and controversial topic in southeastern Pennsylvania. Landowners in Chester, Lancaster, and Berks counties are all in the process or soon to be in the process of having their properties reassessed.

Lancaster County's new municipal and county tax rates will be effective on January 1, 1996, and the new school tax rates will be effective on July 1, 1996. Chester County's reassessment is still backlogged in the court system, so no exact time table has been determined. Berks County's reassessed values will be effective on January 1, 1994, with 1992 being the base year values.

Purpose Of Reassessment

A county's reassessment program goal is twofold. It establishes a new assessed value for all property, and establishes a uniform tax base. Each property is appraised or revalued at current fair market value establishing a new assessed value for that base year.

Doing all the appraisals in a short time period equalizes the values and establishes a uniform tax base so that every property owner pays his/her fair share of property tax. Though no tax system is perfect, this should allow everyone to pay their fair share for that year at least.

Alarm Sounding

Reassessment has raised much alarm in the farm community, as their property taxes are likely to be raised more than the typical home owner because of their relatively large land holdings. Frequently these properties have not been reassessed for over 25 years.

One Option

There is one preferential land assessment program that is already Pennsylvania law. This law will probably save farmers collectively hundreds of thousands of dollars in southeastern Pennsylvania.

The Preferential Assessment of Agricultural and Forest Land, or Pennsylvania Legislative Act 319 of 1974, or best known as "Clean and Green Act" allows land parcels which are 10 acres or more in size and which are devoted to agriculture and forest land use to be assessed at a use value, based on soil productivity, rather than fair market value.

The Intent

The intent of Act 319 is to encourage property owners to retain land in agriculture or forest land use and provide real estate tax relief to farm owners.

The Berks, Chester, and Lancaster county commissioners have heartily supported the use of Act 319 in their counties, through the update and revision of all Clean and Green assessments and value per acre calculations.

This is critically important, since this program is administered at the county level and updates will need to be made yearly to keep the assessed value related to the profitability of crop farming.

1992 LAND VALUES

Each year the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Farmland Protection reviews crop production values in each county and develops preferential values for tillable land, pasture land, and woodland.

The June 1992 values for Berks, Chester, and Lancaster county soils were:

Soil Class	Lancaster County	Chester County	Berks County
Class 1	1,126.42	821.77	728.19
Class II	970.80	708.23	627.58
Class III	748.48	546.04	483.86
Class IV	666.96	486.57	431.16
Classes V, VI, VII, VIII	563.21	410.88	364.09

Class I soils have few limitations that restrict their use and are almost all cropland. Class II soils have moderate limitations that reduce the choice of plants or that require moderate conservation. Class III soils have severe limitations or that reduce the choice of plants or that require special conservation practices, or both. Class IV soils have very severe limitations that reduce the choice of plants or that require very careful management, or both. Class V-VIII have severe limitations and are generally unsuitable for cultivation.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Mallary Arena was the site for the EAstern National Milking Shorthorn Shhow.

Mike Reed, manager of Pinehurst Farm in Dalesville, Ind. and breeder of Milking Shorthorn cattle, served as the judge for the 136 cattle shown. Eric Campbell from Canada assisted as associate judge for the event.

Grand champion of the show was a 3-year-old cow named Brookview Demand Juliet - EXP that displayed "dairy character throughout, was long and lean with a capacious udder," that was named best udder in the class. Juliet was owned by Justin John Clark of Cornish Flat, New Hampshire. L. Herbert and Brenda York showed the reserve grand champion cow, a 4-year-old named Sandy River Pebbles, that was described as "outstanding, long, with capacity of udder and an advantage in teat placement." Pebbles was also named best udder in her class.

Lanes Diane, a "well balanced" senior heifer calf "with dairyness and cleanness, that walks out well," owned by James A. Lane, a junior exhibitor from New Vineyard, Maine, was named junior champion. Reserve junior champion went to GMC Kennys Ornament, "a long, powerful, clean front ended" intermediate yearling heifer shown by Gregory A. Clark Jr., a junior exhibitor from Cornish Float, N.H.

Premier exhibitor of the show was William Bartlett of Salisbury, Mass. Premier breeder ended in a tie between William Bartlett and L. Herbert and Brenda York of Farmington, Maine.

FAR MANAGEMENT

ulation included in Act 319. This article will cover only the major ones, so be sure to check with your county agent, accountant, county assessment office, or other professional before you decide to enter into Act 319.

Only unimproved land is affected by this preferential assessment. So remember, farm buildings and farm homes will still be assessed at fair market value.

Requirements

The parcel of land must be devoted to an agricultural use for the three years preceding the application and be not less than 10 contiguous acres in area, or have the anticipated yearly gross income of $2,000.00.

Land must currently be farmed and have been farmed for the past three years, or is capable of being farmed or be forest land producing at least 25 cubic feet of annual growth.

All the land on one deed must be entered into the program. Portions of a deed can not be split off in anticipation of selling the land.

Basis Of The Assessed Value

The land assessment will be based solely on the productivity of the soil. Each soil type in the county will have an assessed value per acre attached to it. This value will reflect the possible agricultural productivity of that specific soil type, based on the profitability of a corn or corn/hay rotation.

This agricultural assessed value will take into account the yield potential and all cropping expenses, and then capitalize the average net profit per acre by dividing by the average mortgage interest rate over the past five years, plus the actual tax rate of the county.

Split-Offs

Two acres of land can be split off annually, up to the lessor of 10 percent or 10 acres of the farm without the roll-back penalty. The use of the split-off land must be in residential, agricultural, or forest reserve. The person to whom you conveyed the split-off must occupy the residential dwelling that would be constructed on this land.

Rollback Taxes

When the use of land is changed from agriculture, rollback taxes are due. Taxes up to 7 years back are always payable by the person whom is responsible for changing the land use.

A 6 percent simple interest charge will also be added to the rollback taxes. You will not be charged interest on the interest on any of the rollback penalty or interest, but the interest will accrue from the date the tax was due.

The rollback taxes are the difference in what was paid and what the taxes would have been for that period. The rollback taxes and interest are due on the day of the change in use of that land.

For Example

Assume the taxes to be $4,500 under the normal assessment and $2,500 under Act 319. Assume in 1993, the 10th year after you elected to join Act 319, you changed the use of the land. Since the back taxes are due on only the last seven years, here is the calculation of the rollback taxes and penalty:

Year	Roll-back tax	Interest at 6.0% APR	Amount due
7-4th year-1987	$2,000.00	$840.00	2,840.00
6-5th year-1988	$2,000.00	$720.00	2,720.00
5-6th year-1989	$2,000.00	$600.00	2,600.00
4-7th year-1990	$2,000.00	$480.00	2,480.00
3-8th year-1991	$2,000.00	$360.00	2,360.00
2-9th year-1992	$2,000.00	$240.00	2,240.00
1-10th year-1993	$2,000.00	$120.00	2,120.00
Totals	$14,000.00	$3,360.00	$17,360.00

When Are Applications Due?

Applications are due at the county board of assessment from March 1 to June 1 inclusive, of the vear preceeding the year you elect to enter into the Act 319 covenant with the county. After the initial election, the tax assessment under the act shall continue until a land use change takes place.

Miscellaneous

Your tax assessment under the act may change because of a reassessment of your land by the county assessor.

Upon death of the owner, the deed restriction continues to the heirs.

For more information, call your county real estate tax assessment office or your local cooperative extension office. In Berks County, call Donald Hain at (215) 478-6275. Farmers in Berks County will be receiving their new Act 319 values by the end of September for the 1994 taxes. In Chester County, call Jeffrey Laudenslager or Harriet Diehl at (215) 344-6105. In Lancaster County, call (717) 394-299-8399.

Entries Due For Angus Beef Project

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Cattle producers who want to experience retained ownership and collect carcass data are invited to enter the 1994 Certified Angus Beef Value Discovery Project. Entry forms are available from Kelly Frank, the project's coordinator, at (303) 362-4315. Entries are due November 1.

An entry consists of five or six steers, sired by registered Angus bulls and born between December 1, 1992, and April 30, 1993. Steers, weighing 550 to 850 pounds, must arrive at Decatur County Feed Yard, Oberlin, Kansas, between November 29 and December 1, 1993.

Steers must also meet Certified Angus Beef (CAB) Program live animal specifications. These specifications are predominantly black hair color (at least 51 percent of the hair coat is black), typical beef-type conformation (no visible dairy influence) and no excessive hump or long, floppy ears (no visible Brahman influence).

The Value Discovery Project provides producers the opportunity to retain ownership of a small number of cattle in an efficient, commercial feedlot environment. By experiencing retained ownership, producers of Angus-type cattle also obtain needed feedlot performance and carcass data. More than $10,000 in prize money and premiums will be awarded in the categories of feedlot performance, retail yield, carcass value and acceptance into the CAB Program.

To provide consumers with consistent, high quality beef, industry leaders stress the need for producers to learn about the end product their cattle produce. As stated at the 1993 Value Discovery Project symposium by Dr. Bill Mies, Texas A&M University, "You cannot change what you cannot measure."

He said, "Information about your cattle will be your best selling point in 10 years."

VINTAGE JOHN DEERE DEALERS INVENTORY SALE

Total contents of abandoned John Deere Equipment Dealer. Due to failing structure we will liquidate the remaining contents of what was once a well stocked dealers inventory of John Deere Parts for Vintage Two Cylinder Tractors, and some late model machinery. Many castings, and motor parts such as pistons, rings, valves, and manifolds for various machinery. Very little sheet metal, some large castings, and many items such as but not limited to: planters, disks, harrows, plows, harvesters, drills and spreaders. Many hoses, belts, conveyors, chains, transmission parts, carb. - mag. and electrical parts drawers. Mower knives, rake teeth and rock guards by the box. Many file cabinets full or parts too numerous to list or count! Many odd items, and old equipment for salvage around yard, in weeds, over, under and where found on two acre site.

Some parts are water damaged, many parts show rust or decay, many are like new. Also offered are some WWII vintage machine tools in poor condition.

This offer is made subject to the sale of the total inventory, to a first $10,000, or best cash offer. Subject to the discretion of the agent for the sale. Sale is open to anyone, group, or dealer... .

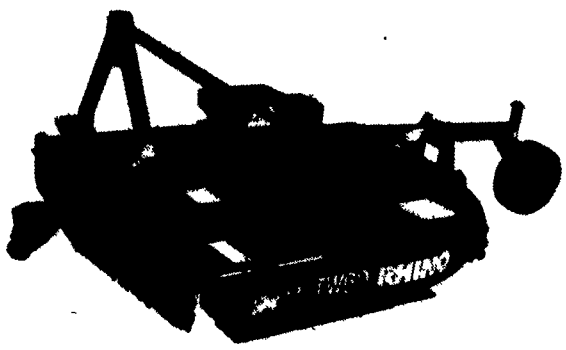
SEE BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. FOR ALL TYPES OF YOUR ROTARY CUTTER NEEDS...INCLUDING OFFSET SLOPE, TURF MOWING AND SHREDDING EQUIPMENT!

Quality, Dependability, and Performance and three great reasons why the TWISTER family of medium-duty cutters from SERVIS-RHINO is mowing the competition down!

TWISTER

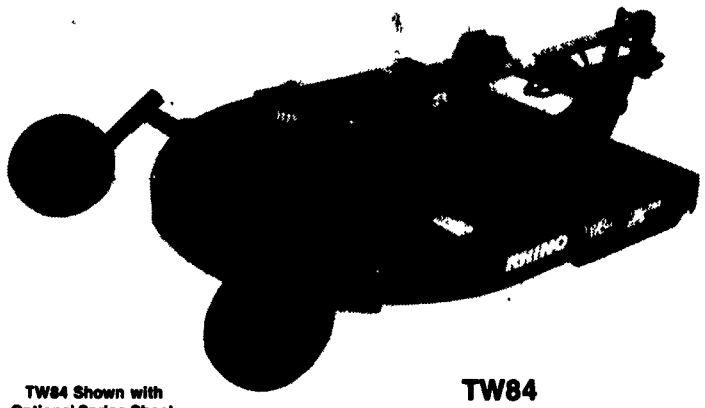


TW60

The TW60 mows a full 5' swath and is available in 540 RPM and three-point lift The TW60 requires only a 30 HP tractor (with adequate front weight) to save on operating costs The tail-wheel beam of the TW60, 72, and 84 lift-type cutters are easily adjustable for different cutting heights

TW72

The TW72 mows a 6' swath of material and can be operated on a tractor as small as 40 HP (with adequate front weight) The floating top linkage of the "A" Frame allows the TW cutters to follow the contour of the ground in rough conditions without damage to the hitch



TW84 Shown with Optional Spring Shock Absorber

TW84

The TW84 mows a 7' swath and is available in 540 or 1000 RPM and as a pull- or lift-type unit to fit a wide range of tractors An optional heavy-duty "A" frame is available for working in demanding conditions. The lift-type unit is available with one or two tail-wheels and requires a 60 HP tractor (with adequate front weight) while the pull-type TW84 requires only a 30 HP tractor for many conditions. A parking jack is standard on pull-type units.

There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence To get it, you need accurate, even seeding

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers

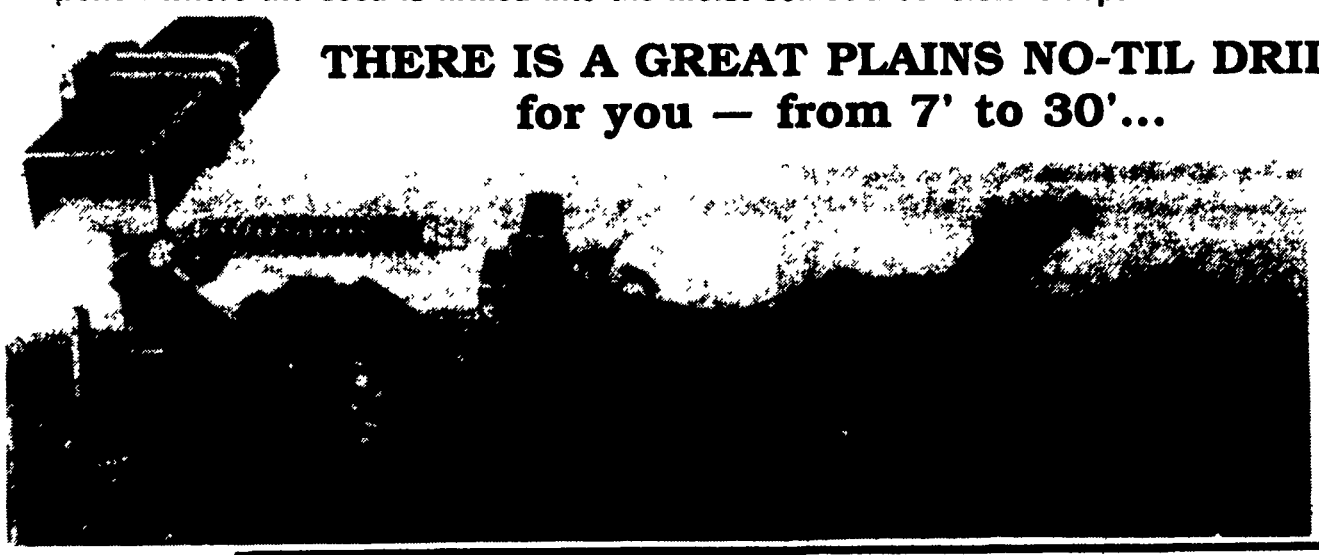
Great Plains

THE NO-TILL GRAIN DRILL LEADER...

Great Plans delivers good, even stands in a wide variety of soil and residue conditions. The components are simple: The coulter provides a mini-seedbed and the depth gauging press wheel runs smoothly on the soil cleared by the coulter (and then by the opener), ensuring accurate depth control of the opener. The opener delivers the seed to the bottom of the seed trench where the seed is firmed into the moist soil at a consistent depth.



THERE IS A GREAT PLAINS NO-TIL DRILL for you — from 7' to 30'...

Dedicated to the science of no-till seeding.

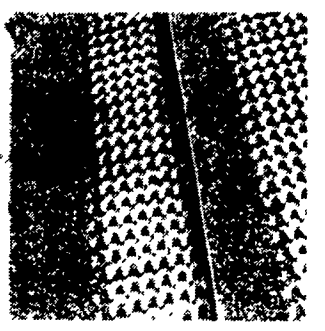
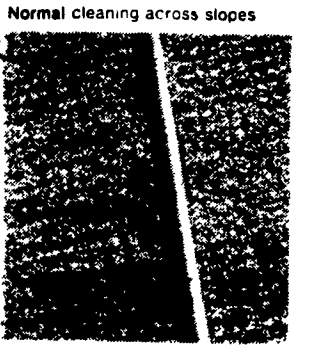
COMBINING SLOPES — THE MF 3-D CLEANING SYSTEM

MASSEY FERGUSON



Normal cleaning across slopes



3-D in operation

With the MF-3-D cleaning system, the crop is distributed evenly across the full width of the sieves, performance remains stable and output maintained.

The 3-D cleaning system provides dynamic slope compensation which means that the upper sieve moves sideways against the slope of the hill. The degree and direction of these movements depend on the inclination of the slope. Quick reaction and of course equal performance in any direction on slopes of up to 20%.

With the MF 3-D system you can operate at the same speed on slopes as on flat land. Daily performance can be maintained.

BARN CLEANERS

Built to clean faster... built to last longer!

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.
You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

"BUY THIS UNIT", or one like it to store your high-moisture shelled corn and save a lot of energy. With the cool spring and slow start for a lot of corn fields, this may be another harvest season coming up when the corn dries slowly...

20x72' About 17,000 Bu. Capacity Shelled Corn Poured Concrete, No Used Silos, No Rebuilt Silos, No Preowned Silos

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY (B.T.U.'s) TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Lets discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

JIM, EVELYN & CHRISTINE WEISSMANN - Callicoon Center, NY

Located in the heart of the Catskill Mountains, Sullivan County, NY, Jim is the fifth generation to operate the dairy. It consists of 200 acres and they milk 44 holsteins (started in 1860).

Jim & Evelyn decided to try Purina Dairy Rations after a trip with other dairymen from NY and PA to the Purina Research Farms in Gray Summit, MO, in the fall of 1992.

They feed a split cart program of Purina Hi-E Milking Concentrate B-35 UIP and cracked corn. They are fed according to production as calculated by Purina DM Bob Kieselowsky and agent Eddie Moran.

The Weissmann's feed 25 lbs./head of corn silage and 8-12 lbs. of mixed hay.

Jim comments, "Since switching to Purina our butterfat has moved up from 2.8% to 3.6% and our cows have averaged 65 lbs./cow for the past 9 months. Cow condition is much better and we have had less milk fever and ketosis problems".

"We like the availability of Dr. Don Deetz, Purina's Dairy Consultant, who works well with our veterinarians - Dr. Joe Nebzydoski, Youngsville, NY, and Evelyn Crish, Hawley, PA."

The Weissmann's feed a day cow program of Purina D&H complete 16% and Easy Care Blocks with grass hay.

We thank Jim, Evelyn & Christine for sharing their story and wish much success in the future.

Producers Should Analyze Corn Test Plots, Take Notes

VERN ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

BERRYSBURG (Dauphin Co.) — All corn variety trials are not equal, but all can reveal very useful information about the varieties planted, according to Dauphin County Extension Agent Paul Craig.

Throughout the year, local trial plots can be observed for germination success, rapidity of growth, etc.

But late summer and fall, just prior to harvesting, is especially the season for field day open houses — cooperating businesses sponsor demonstration activities of implements, inspections of seed variety plots, and, usually, guest speakers.

As long as those who visit these events take notes and approach the review with a specific agenda, a great deal of insight into the applicability of a specific variety can be gained.

According to Craig, if a producer is really on top of efficiency in selecting varieties to plant, the comparisons and record keeping never really stop.

He said that, in his opinion, a producer should probably be switching varieties every five years in order to stay with the best the industry has to offer.

But he also said that prior to switching varieties, at least two years of observing that variety should be done before changing the whole farm's production strategy. As a suggestion for best evaluation, Craig said planting small plots that are designed to provide objective results is a good way to determine whether a variety is suited for a particular farm.

While these techniques are available, not every producer follows a systematic evaluation in selecting new varieties.

"I read somewhere that the majority of decisions made on which seed variety to purchase are based on knowing the salesman," Craig said.

And while that may be good news for seed companies, to Craig it means more producers are at risk of taking in a lower yield or having a crop failure

(Turn to Page 12)

Paul Craig, Dauphin County Extension agent, inspects the condition of an ear of corn in a university trial done by Penn State University. Craig said that producers should visit test plots when they can and compare differences between end-row ears at a corn variety test plot, look for ear heighth, ear number, barren stalks, husk length and configuration, apparent pest and disease tolerance, apparent differences in soil type and drainage between specific plants, etc., and keep notes on each aspect for each variety example inspected.

THE EARS HAVE IT

With corn, you can tell some things about a crop by looking at the ears.

In a place like Pennsylvania, in a year like 1993, you'll encounter lots of different-looking corn ears. The appearance of these ears can tell you a little about the corn crop you're looking at.

Let's discuss a few of the characteristics about ears and what they mean.

The first characteristic is size. The rule of thumb is that half pound ears mean that your population is about optimum for the conditions. Large ears are not necessarily an indication of a high yield. Last year, I checked a field that went just over 200 bushels with 18 rows of kernels per ear with about 37-38 kernels per row — not an exceptionally long ear. The secret to success here was a uniform stand of 27,000 plants per acre at harvest. This year, despite the spotty weather we've had, there are fields that will repeat or top that yield.

One aspect of ear size is kernel rows. The number of rows on an ear usually varies from about 16-20 in a good year. The

Growers Urged To Voice Support For Ethanol

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — During the next two months, corn growers are urged to contact the Clinton Administration and strongly voice their support for ethanol, according to the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has until December 15 to finalize ethanol's role in the Clean Air Act's Reformulated Gasoline (RFG) program.

"There is no scientific or environmental reason why ethanol should not be allowed to fully participate in the RFG program on a year-round basis," said Randy Cruise, a Pleasanton, Neb., corn grower and NCGA president. "The Clinton Administration and particularly EPA need to know corn growers fully support ethanol and that we expect it to receive the opportunity to fairly compete in the marketplace with other oxygenates."

Under current Clean Air Act emissions standards, during the summer ethanol cannot be blended into reformulated gasolines without significant restrictions. Critics of ethanol have erroneously charged that its higher evaporation rate increases ozone formation. But a recently completed independent study commissioned by the Council of Great Lakes Governors demonstrates conclusively that a 10 percent ethanol blend and an 11 percent MTBE blend perform similarly in improving air quality.

As market opportunities for ethanol grow, NCGA estimates demand for the home-grown fuel could eventually exceed two billion gallons per year, requiring 800 million bushels of corn.

To voice your support for ethanol, write to President Bill Clinton, The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20500 or call (202) 456-1111, or contact EPA Administrator Carol Browner, USEPA, 401 M. Street, SW, Washington, DC 20460.

Compost Bags Cut Disposal Costs

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Bags made of a new biodegradable polymer are being used for the first time in North America to collect grass clippings and other yard materials.

The new bags are being composted along with leaves and grass clippings as part of a program that demonstrates how a community can dramatically reduce disposal costs while preventing more than 500 tons of organic materials from being landfilled or incinerated every year.

These new bags are made from Novon (R) polymer grade M4900, which is based on starch from corn and potatoes and other materials that biodegrade completely such as paper, leaves, and wood chips during the production and end-use of compost. Bags made from Novon polymer combine all of the benefits and convenience of plastic bags with the compostability of paper bags. They are designed to be used for community yard trimming collection programs.

Novon Products Group produces Novon specialty polymers for use in the production of bags as well as other applications. As an example, Bio Bags & Film Company, Inc., of Clifton, N.J., an affiliate of Andmar Plastic Company, used Novon polymer M4900 to make compost bags for the community of Haddonfield, N.J.

The Novon compost bags are water-resistant, flexible, stretchable, lightweight, and thin. Because they are translucent, it is easy to identify contents to assure compliance with the program, which accepts only grass clippings, leaves, plants, brush, and weeds.

Novon Products Group, Morris Plains, N.J., a division of Warner-Lambert Company, manufactures and markets Novon specialty polymers, a blend of starches and other completely biodegradable materials.

Consumers have an easier, and less messy, time collecting their leaf and grass clippings for municipal composting with new Novon (R)-based biodegradable compost bags. The bags perform like plastic but completely biodegrade like paper, without the common problems of rips and tears.

Troop Attends Leadership Program

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — H. Grant Troop of Quarryville was one of 23 corn grower-leaders from across the nation who participated in the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) Leadership Development Program, sponsored by Ciba Plant Protection.

Participants gathered in Greensboro, N.C., for four days of hands-on workshops. Topics included parliamentary procedure, communicating with different personality styles, getting key messages across through the news media, and current NCGA issues such as the North American Free Trade Agreement and legislation affecting ethanol.

"Agriculture is a complex, dynamic industry. It's becoming even more important to tell our story to the general public and to decision makers in a clear, concise manner. This program strengthens our communications and leadership skills," said NCGA President-Elect Pete Wenstrand, a graduate of the program and farmer from Essex, Iowa.

More than 200 farmers have graduated from the program, including 12 members of the NCGA and National Corn Development Foundation executive committees.

Participants will also travel to Washington, D.C., next March to put their skills to work. Among other activities, they will visit with members of Congress about issues important to corn farmers. This is the ninth annual leadership development class. Ciba has been the program sponsor since its inception.

"The success of any organization — business or volunteer — depends on leadership," said E.J. Bontempo, president of Ciba Plant Protection. "By being involved in NCGA, these leaders serve all of agriculture."

Consider Options On Corn Handling

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — You have a stand of corn still in the field, left in a sorry-looking state by this summer's drought. What is your best or most economical course for this crop?

Green chopping is one option, but the possibility of nitrate levels above safe limits caused by the corn's stunted growth is an important consideration. Laboratory testing of drought-damaged corn before feeding as green chop is an absolute must. While cattle and sheep can digest low levels of nitrates without harm, higher levels will induce illness.

When laboratory tests show nitrates up to 1,000 parts per million (ppm) (or 0.1 percent on a dry basis), usually no ill effects result. At nitrate levels between 1,000 and 5,000 ppm, it's safer to give this feed to non-pregnant animals only. When feeding pregnant animals, dilute the feed with safe forage at half and half.

Above 5,000 ppm (or 0.5 percent) in dry matter, nitrates will produce rapid, heavy breathing, frothing of the mouth, diarrhea, frequent urination, staggering, convulsions and death. Sometimes, acute cases have been saved by quick intravenous injection of 4 percent methylene blue solution at 100 milliliters per 1,000 pounds bodyweight. Additional treatment with vitamin A injections at 60 to 100,000 units per cow per day has also been helpful.

Ensiling is another option for drought-damaged corn; if nitrates are present, ensiling can reduce the amount by half. But watch for brown nitrous oxide gas flowing out of vertical silos — it's deadly to breathe. When you suspect the presence of nitrous oxide gas, don't take chances. Test the silage before endangering animals and people.

Perhaps you are short on forage this year and you plan to buy corn silage or green chop from your neighbor. What's a reasonable price? Feeding value of corn silage depends on kernel content, and market price determines the silage price.

Table 1 shows the potential price range under present conditions from about $15/ton for poor silage to $29/ton for good corn silage. The table prices are at the farm silo.

Table 2. Fertilizer Value of Drought Corn

How bad?	Estimated yield of silage (35% dry matter) would be in tons/acre	which contain this fertilizer value in average lb per acre: Nitrogen	Phosphate	Potash	which translates to these $ values per/acre
Terrible and no grain	4	57	12	60	25.05
Very bad--about 25 bushel kernel yield	7	82	18	90	36.70
Bad--about 50 bushel corn	11	117	35	100	51.00
Stressed some --75 bushel corn	14	132	52	120	61.60

Table 1. Value ($) of Drought Corn Silage (35% dry matter/ton)

if kernel yield might be in bushel/acre:	then probable feeding value in %TDN will be:	and if corn kernels are priced per bushel: $2.00	$2.50	$3.00	$3.50 then corn silage price should be in $/ton
10	60	16.29	19.07	21.86	24.64
40	63	17.10	20.03	22.95	25.88
80	66	17.91	20.98	24.04	27.11
120 and more (=normal)	70	19.00	22.25	25.50	28.75

If the corn is still in the field, deduct the chopping, hauling and silo-filling costs from the table price at about $5 per ton, assuming long-distance hauling is not involved. Corn silage prices refer to a 35 percent dry matter content. If this differs, adjust prices accordingly.

How much silage potential is there in a particular field? You can expect 1 ton of drought-damaged corn silage for each 5 bushels of estimated corn grain yield per acre. Another way to look at it is — for every poor stand, expect 1 ton of silage for each 1 foot of corn height without the tassel.

When should you plow the corn under? Three instances in which you might consider this option are if you can't sell your bad corn, if you don't need to make silage yourself or if the crop is loaded with nitrates. But not all is lost. Corn contains nutrients that can save you money on fertilizer next year.

Table 2 shows some useful data. If a farmer cannot use or sell the bad corn at between $25 to $60 per acre, depending on severity of drought damages, then it's more profitable for them to plow it under. Assumed fertilizer values are 2 cents per pound for nitrogen or phosphate and 13 cents per pound for potash.

Thus even under the worst drought circumstances, some corn production costs can be recovered. Just sit down and make some alternative calculations.

How To Export 50 Billion Corn Bushels

CORN TALK NEWS
PENNSYLVANIA MASTER CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Plymouth colonists quickly learned from the Native Americans to communicate about the value of corn, setting the stage for domestic trade.

"...Plymouth settlers began to praise corn as more precious than silver, and those that had some to spare began to trade with another for small things by the quarts, etc., for money they had none... Byt 1624 they had enough surplus to sail a shalop (small ship) loaded with corn North to the Kennebec River Settlement of Maine, where they traded the cargo for seven hundred pounds of beaver furs." (Hardeman, 1981)

Exports Short Colonists

Once domestic trade was firmly established, exporting corn began in earnest. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) began record keeping in 1867, and it is likely that the first recorded exports went to Caribbean countries and English colonies. It took 22 years to export the first billion bushels of corn; the 10-billion bushel mark was reached in 1967. Since the U.S. Feed Grains Council was formed in 1960, over 43.4-billion bushels of corn have been exported.

Corn As A Feed Grain Export

Although the council was not established until 1960, the concept of developing export markets for corn as a feed grain may have been imagined much earlier.

"Though corn was by far the greater crop (than wheat), most of it was marketed in the form of animals and dairy products. Old World peoples did not appreciate the value of corn as a food for human beings, and they grew most of their own food crops for livestock. Therefore, corn did not enter into the exports from America in such large proportions... as did wheat.

"As the statistician for the Commissioner of Agriculture said in 1868, the farmer exported only ten bushels of corn out of a thousand he grew, got two dollars for it (the 10 bushels), and the cost of shipping it from the Prairies to Europe was the price of thirty bushels. Consequently, a crop so exhausting to the soil ought to be kept at home." (Shannon, 1945)

Today, USDA figures indicate that corn exports are about 28 percent of the crop, with value-added products using 2.5 percent more. The United States has become the world's dominant exporter of corn, a success that has come through production and market development. The council has enhanced these successes and is pleased to host the 50-Billionth Bushel Jubilee as a modern-day effort to educate others about the importance of the export market.

Between The Rows

number of rows on an ear is usually determined quite early, six weeks or so after planting. Normally the number of rows is fairly strongly fixed, but severe early season stress can cut the number of rows per ear. This year, I've found ears with as few as 12 rows to as many as 20. The early drought stress encountered in areas such as northern Lancaster County and central Pennsylvania had this effect and resulted in a ceiling on yield potential.

Another aspect of ear size are kernels per row. The potential numbers of kernels per row is set just after the number of rows is fixed on the developing ear. Kernels per row is affected somewhat by genetics, with the later hybrids generally having the potential for more kernels per row. This characteristic is also frequently influenced greatly by environmental conditions. An early season stress such as nitrogen deficiency can often result in short ears. Later in the season, pollination problems caused by heat or drought stress or insect feeding can further reduce kernel number.

Dry conditions resulted in some pollination problems in corn at our Rock Springs research facility. In the past, I've seen similar pollination problems due to rootworm beetles clipping silks. In some cases, pollination problems are limited to the ear tips, since the silks near the tip of the ear are the last to emerge.

The number of kernels per row can also be affected by other factors. One of these is called kernel abortion. Aborted kernels will appear as small whitish shrunken kernels near the end of the ear. These are often the result of a late season stress factor that reduces the sugars available to fill kernels. As a result, the plant aborts some kernels on the ear so that the remaining kernels can be reasonably well filled out. Typical late season stress factors in Pennsylvania include drought, foliar disease, nitrogen deficiency, and extended periods of cool, cloudy weather. This year some areas had a second droughty period in mid-late August which caused a significant amount of kernel abortion.

A third factor which can reduce kernel numbers and seems to be common this year is bird damage. Bird damage is most common in areas with a lot of birds, such as fields bordering woodlands, rivers, or lakes. The problem seems to be exacerbated in some areas this year because late season rains stimulated ear expansion beyond the end of the husk tissue. The symptoms of bird damage are a bare cob on the end of the ear surrounded by a shredded husk.

Another aspect of size is grain fill. Well-filled ears should have kernels squeezed together, with little space between them at maturity. The depth of kernels can also vary. In some areas this year, conditions for grain fill were near excellent. There we should expect well-filled grain and good test weight corn.

Observing corn ears is no substitute for careful observation throughout the season, but it can provide some clues as to how you're management system is working. Take some time this year and listen to what your ears are telling you.

Bird damage is a problem to many growers this year.

Contribution Of Corn Exports To Domestic Utilization

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In the United States, demand for corn is determined by domestic utilization as well as international demand. U.S. farmers must produce the quantity of corn necessary to meet both domestic and international demand in order to maximize their returns and minimize their per unit costs of production. The export market can greatly influence total demand and corn producer incomes.

Exports of corn as a percent of total production have doubled since the 1960s. Between 1988 and 1992, exports have averaged 28.2 percent, or more than 1 out of every 3.5 acres of corn harvested in the United States.

Exports of value-added corn products, such as corn gluten feed, corn oil and high fructose corn syrup, have more than doubled only 3.06 million metric tons (mmt) in 1982 to over 7.35 mmt in 1992. The combined exports of value-added corn products and whole corn have accounted for an average of 30.6 percent of corn production in the United States during that time period.

Increases in corn exports to meet increases in international demand translate into increased domestic farm prices for corn. Recent studies have found that for every 100-million-bushel (2.54 mmt) increase in exports, the domestic price of a bushel of corn increased by 7 cents in 1992.

U.S. exports of corn this year are way ahead of last year's export pace. As of March 25, U.S. corn exports totaled 1.3 billion bushels (bbu), compared to only 1.1 bbu during the same period last year; this represents an 18 percent increase. The U.S. Feed Grains Council's World Feed Grains Demand Model forecasts U.S. corn exports increasing from 1.5 bbu in 1992 to 2 bbu by 2001, or a 3.1 percent annual increase.

For more information about domestic corn utilization and prices, contact the U.S. Feed Grains Council, 1400 K St., NW, Suite 1200, Washington, D.C., 20005, (202) 789-0789.

China Faces Poor Corn Quality

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Recent field visits to feedmillers and end-users support trade intelligence reports that Chinese corn exports are under some pressure due to poor quality. Shipments over the past two months have contained high levels of aflatoxin, moisture, mold, and heat damage.

Buyers in Malaysia are blaming the poor quality on several factors, primarily China's wet harvest and storage conditions during the winter. The lack of credible export quality inspections at Chinese ports and the "renegade traders" — alleged merchants of poor quality corn — are also to blame. Malaysian buyers have started paying premiums to other origins to get better quality corn, which bodes well for the United States.

Council Fills Chemurgists' Shoes

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A half a century ago, people like Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and agriculture editor Wheeler McMillan attempted to develop industrial markets for renewable resources.

These "Farm Chemurgists" applied new knowledge in science to farm surpluses in order to design a variety of improved products. They urged USDA to adopt the "new uses" research and development program.

However, supporting legislation was blocked by the oil industry's intense lobbying. In addition, their initiation failed because there was no economic incentive for industry to use renewable resources. Petroleum, as an industrial feedstock, was cheaper and domestically plentiful. Environmental damage was not a consideration at that time.

Unfortunately, the story of industrial uses of renewable resources has been one of America's best-kept secrets. However, the economics of renewable resources and agriculture research has changed.

"The price of a barrel of oil is still relatively low, but environmental damage, lost jobs, economical opportunities, and the threat to national economic security caused by ever higher oil imports, must now be conisdered," said Jeff Gain, chairman of the New Uses Council and National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) chief executive officer. In an effort to increase corn markets and improve profitability, NCGA became a founding organization of the New Uses Council.

In this testimony before the Subcommittee on Agricultural Research, Conservation, Forestry and General Legislation, Gain said, "Also to be considered is the cost of idling 60 million acres of cropland each year rather than using the land to produce renewable resources for industrial markets.

"Greater coordination of reneweable resources development activities is needed among federal departments and agencies," Gain said.

He proposed creation of a national renewable resource development policy to reduce demand for imported non-renewable resources; create jobs and economic opportunity for Americans, particularly rural Americans; secure net environmental benefits for the nation; and expand market opportunities for American agriculture.

He also proposed that a cabinet or subcabinet-level coordinating group be formed to issure that programs work together without duplication.

As a first step, Gain suggested that the Office of Technology Assessment review government agencies to determine how to coordinate activities to accelerate development and commericalization of industrial resource-based products.

The New Uses Council has launched a nationwide effort to build public awareness of the uses and benefits of using renewable agricultural resources for industrial purposes. The council strongly supports the Alternative Agriculture Research and Commercialization (AARC) Center program and urges Congress to substantially increase funding for AARC from its current $10 million to as much as $billion.

Just as the Farm Chemurgists led the USDA in forecasting the industrialization of agriculture, the New Uses Council and federal programs, such as the AARC Center, now play a primary role in the use of renewable agricultural resources for environmentally-friendly industrial and consumer products.

moisture from the 1992 drought.

South Africa imported 134 million bushels (mbu) of corn during CY1992, 114.3 mbu from the United States. The threat of another small crop means imports could reach at least 59.1 mbu by May 1, 1994, unless South Africa gets more favorable weather conditions for the rest of the season.

UK Corn Market Remains Strong

U.S. corn gluten feed exports to the United Kingdom (UK) remain strong, but dropped slightly in 1992 due to the uncertainties created by the European Community's classification changes. Overall, U.S. corn gluten feed exports to the UK are valued at $112 million, making them an important market for the United States.

In addition, U.S. corn exports to the UK increased seven-fold to more than 7.8 million bushels, a result of drought-driven, high-priced French corn.

Philippines Increase Corn Imports

Although corn production in the Philippines for 1993-1994 has been estimated at approximately 193 million bushesl (mbu), an increase of 9 percent over the 1992-1993 estimate, imports of corn are still projected at 11.8 mbu for next year in order to bridge the shortfall between production and consumption.

Estimates of 1992-93 corn imports have also been raised to 11.8 mbu, based on evidence of increasing domestic shortages and strong sustained demand.

Market Opportunity For Corn Exists in Slovenia

It is estimated that Slovenia will need 3.2-3.9 million bushels (mbu) of feed grains this year from non-traditional suppliers, which could open opportunities for the United States.

Slovenia usually produces around 13.8 mbu of corn annually with any shortfalls being imported from neighboring Croatia and Serbia. However, the drought in 1992 coupled with war throughout the region is forcing Slovenia to import feed grains from other sources.

Corn Export Numbers Up From Last Year

Corn exports are up 207 million bushels from last year at this time. So far in MY1993, which began Sept. 1, 1.327 billion bushesl (bbu) were expoerted compared to 1.120 bbu in MY1992.

Cruisers Cast Eye On Ethanol

ST. LOUIS, Ill. — Darrell Mortland expects a lot of drive-bys. In fact, he's hoping for them.

Calhoun County, Illinois, sits slightly more than a stone's throw northeast of the St. Louis metropolitan area and its 2.5 million residents. City dwellers escaping for an afternoon often meander along Calhoun County's winding roads soaking up the sights, sounds and smells of country life.

This summer, some day-trippers will take home a new appreciation for ethanol. Mortland, who is area manager for Jersey County Farm Supply — a Growmark member affiliate in the Calhoun County town of Hardin — is encouraging farmers to proudly display their support for the home-grown fuel.

"Calhoun County is a small agricultural community," said Mortland. "But the more the public sees farmers are committed to using ethanol, the greater their support. With our visibility to a major metropolitan area, we have the opportunity to give a human face to ethanol for a public that knows very little about it."

Each time Jersey County Farm Supply delivers a bulk load of 10 percent ethanol-blended fuel to a farm customer, the driver also drops off an aluminum sign for the farmer to display. The 18-inch by 24-inch sign reads, "This farm uses 10 percent ethanol. I grow it; I use it." The signs are compliments of the Illinois Corn Growers Association.

Posting a sign is only a small step in building broad-based support for ethanol, acknowledges Mortland. But he points out public support for cleaner fuels is growing. And corn growers are among those to benefit.

Illinois recently granted a tax advantage to ethanol, which makes a 90-octane 10 percent ethanol-blended fuel equivalent in price to 87-octane gasoline for Mortland's customers.

"Now when my patrons choose ethanol, they help themselves as corn growers, they help the environment and they're purchasing a premium product for a reasonable price," he said.

Calhoun County corn grower Roy Jacobs, Sr., relies on ethanol as his fuel of choice. "When I use ethanol, I'm helping corn prices," he said. "And I get the same performance as I would with gasoline."

Before the rush of summer city visitors starts filling the roads, Jacobs intends to post one of the signs promoting ethanol. "We have to advertise our product to the public," he said. "To be supportive, they need to know farmers grow corn. And corn is made into ethanol."

By summertime, Jacobs will also have an attractive pen set promoting ethanol resting on his desk. Mortland is supplying the complimentary sets to customers as they reach the 1,000 gallon-mark in bulk ethanol blend purchases. The sets depict a hand peeling back the husk on an ear of corn, with the words "Ethanol: "The Pollution Solution" laser-engraved.

He emphasizes that many Growmark-affiliated FS companies throughout Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin are running special promotion programs for ethanol. "Our program isn't the most extensive, but we have the advantage of being on the fringe of an urban area, which makes it even more pressing that we promote ethanol," said Mortland.

In the past five years, Growmark-affiliated companies have sold more than 250 million gallons of 10-percent ethanol-blended fuel and sales are growing about 10 percent each year. That steady growth suits Mortland just fine. He intends to keep the Calhoun County ethanol promotion program running indefinitely. In fact, this summer he hopes to have FS employees available to help farmers get their ethanol signs posted where the road cruisers will see them. Ethanol's one good bargain everyone should know about, believes Mortland.

Corn Growers Keep Pressure On Over Ethanol

CHICAGO, Ill — Corn growers are committed to securing a year-round role for ethanol in the reformulated gasoline (RFG) program as final rules are drafted, according to the farmer leadership of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

Ethanol's role in RFG was among the top priorities discussed by the NCGA executive committee, which is made up of 15 corn growers from 10 states.

"Last summer the tremendous effort of corn farmers throughout the country convinced the Bush Administration that reformulated gasoline blended with ethanol will be effective in reducing urban smog. Now we have a new president and a new administrator of EPA who will write the final regulations to implement the Clean Air Act. NCGA will have to work even harder than we did a year ago to ensure that the new administration understands the benefits of using ethanol and the importance of this market to corn farmers," said NCGA President Randy Cruise, a farmer from Pleasanton, Neb.

"We have the advantage of solid scientific evidence to back out position and the commitment of the NCGA membership to doggedly pursue this issue," Cruise said.

NCGA membership is expected to be "geared up" to do whatever it takes to protect this expanding market for agriculture. With the final rule on reformulated gasoline expected to be issued in mid-August, it could be another "long hot sumemr" for ethanol.

New Corn-Based Products In Marketplace

Greg Roth

Two new corn-based products have appeared on the shelves of major retailers this summer.

The first is the new biodegradable corn pens called "The Green Pen." The body of the pens is made from a corn-based plastic that the manufacturer claims will biodegrade in 365 days. The pens are distributed by A&W Products Co., Inc., Port Jervis, New York. Locally, we found them in a Walmart.

The second product is a non-toxic ethanol windshield washer. This is the first windshield washer product to contain ethanol. It is being produced by the Aquinas Technology Group of St. Louis, Mo.

Because the ethanol used in windshield washer is mixed with water, it does not require the relatively pure ethanol needed for most other applications. As a result, this product provides a market for ethanol from side-stream or aborted ethanol runs from ethanol manufacturers.

NCGA is working with the manufacturer to locate ethanol sources. NCGA will also receive a royalty from the product. The product is being marketed through some national retailers such as K-Mart, Target and Autozone, Inc.

This product offers another market for ethanol, which increases the markets for agricultural products and further farm employment.

Two new corn-based products on the marketplace are the biodegradable green pens and the ethanol-based bug remover.

Voluntary Programs, Funding Keys To Clean Water

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — From time to time newspaper headlines report that traces of pesticides have been detected in waters that provide the drinking supply for municipalities.

Understandably, people who live in those communities become concerned if not alarmed. Do these reports mean that drinking supplies are unsafe and that there is a health risk from pesticides washing into lakes and streams?

These detections do not necessarily represent a public health or ecological threat, but they do pose a stewardship challenge for agriculture.

Corn growers are committed to protecting and improving water quality. But government nonpoiont source pollution programs should allow for management measures that are technically and economically viable on the farm, said Pete Wenstrand, an Essex, Iowa, corn grower and vice president of National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

Wenstrand recently testified before a subcommittee of the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation as it met to consider rewriting the current Clean Water Act. Wenstrand testified on behalf of NCGA, the National Cotton Council, the National Association of Wheat Growers and the American Soybean Association, the National Barley Growers Association and the U.S. Rice Producers Group.

Farmers favor adequate protection for our nation's water quality." Wenstrand said. "We can improve water quality — without burdensome regulation or taxation of inputs — through reasonably funded programs that encourage farmers to carry on a legacy of stewardship while maintaining their economic ability to produce food and fiber for a world market."

Wenstrand encouraged the committee not to cash aside Section 319 of the Clean Water Act, which gives states authority to set up federally-funded nonpoint source pollution programs, in favor of a cumbersome regulatory approach.

The Iowa corn grower then suggested ways Congress could strengthen their water quality initiatives. "First among our core principles is that the federal government should allocate additional resources to states to assist them in better identifying water quality problems and activating effective management strategies," he said.

"Second," Wenstrand noted, "greater financial commitment should be directed to research, monitoring and assessment programs to enable effective and cost-efficient responses to water quality problems.

"And, finally, where problems are identified, landowners should be encouraged to adopt voluntary, site-specific water quality best-management practices (BMP) through cooperative programs which provide education, technical assistance and incentives," he said.

Wenstrand emphasized state and local authorities need flexible programs that can be adapted to specific situations. And he stressed farmers prefer programs that rely on voluntary compliance.

Referring to the current $50 million in funding for Section 319, Wenstrand said, "It should come as little surprise that some states have been less than enthusiastic about enacting vigorous nonpoint source programs when, on average, they can expect to receive less than $1 million per year to carry them out."

Well Sampling For Pesticides In Corn-Producing Areas Of Pa.

Scott A. Harrison
Pesticide Education Coordinator
Penn State

The Pesticide Education Program of Penn State's College of Agriculture has engaged in a project to sample drinking water wells in corn growing areas of Pennsylvania and analyze them for residues of corn pesticides.

The purpose of the study is to provide a comprehensive, statewide look at the extent and nature of contamination of drinking water wells in Pennsylvania by corn pesticides.

While the occurrence of pesticides in groundwater does not appear to be a critical health or safety problem at the present time, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) considers it a priority issue and has proposed a strategy to prevent it from becoming a more widespread problem.

Their plan includes more stringent regulation of products with a track record of groundwater contamination and the identification of critical groundwater resources that require special protection from certain problem pesticides. In this state, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) is responsible for the regulation of pesticides and will be urged to develop pesticide-specific state management plans in the event that EPA chooses to employ their proposed strategy. It is expected that in the near future, EPA will require the state to develop such plans for a number of corn herbicides. It is this expectation, as well as the general lack of data available in Pennsylvania, that has prompted PDA to support Penn State in this project.

In recent years, pesticides have been found in a number of surface and groundwater resources around the country as the number of monitoring and analyses projects has increased. In the vast majority of cases, wells have not contained detectable residues of pesticides. In most of the remaining cases, the concentrations that have been detected have been below those determined by the EPA to be a health hazard. In general, the EPA sets enforceable or advisory health limits for contaminants in drinking water that present no more than a one-in-a-million chance of causing chronic health problems from drinking the water.

In Pennsylvania, relatively few well sampling projects have been conducted. Most of these efforts have been confined to the southeast and south central portion of the state. Thus, while there is an existing awareness of the potential for pesticide-related water problems to develop in Pennsylvania, the data needed to evaluate or manage them is not available.

Individuals directing in the well sampling project have targeted about 200 wells from various physiographic settings in an attempt to represent the state's diverse geologic, soil, and groundwater conditions. In nearly all cases, neighboring farm and residential wells were selected in pairs to provide insights on the effects of farm handling practices (storage, mixing, washing, etc.) as opposed to leaching from farm fields. Water samples will be collected by trained technicians and analyzed for about a dozen of the most widely used corn herbicides and insecticides. In addition, each site will be assessed for conditions that are believed to be factors in well contamination.

The results of these analyses will be used to develop a statewide database on the occurrence, magnitude, and nature of groundwater contamination by corn pesticides. These data will be the basis for PDA to make informed decisions about when and how to restrict the use of specific pesticides to protect groundwater.

Field sampling for the study was scheduled for completion at the end of last month. Analytical and data analyses are ongoing at the present time. Results are expected to be available in early 1994.

Producers Should Analyze Corn Test Plots, Take Notes

than they would be if the industry standard where that producers were more scientific in selecting a variety.

For several years, Craig has been working with Penn State University corn variety researchers and county landowners who allow the university to set up corn variety trials. These "university trials" occur all over the state and the results compiled and published annually.

However, Craig said he thinks the value of the information may be lost on a lot of producers, unless they understand the differences between the different types of trials and how they are conducted.

According to Craig, the greatest value is not necessarily in the compiled and compared data; the greatest value comes to those who actually visit test sites, use a systematic and recorded analysis, and ask questions of the actual person who planted the crop.

Yield data alone is not sufficient for a producer to make a decision on selecting a new variety for his farm, Craig said.

A producer must consider his needs for the corn, such as whether he plans to use it for silage or grain, high moisture, left in the field to sell as silage, etc., instead of deciding the best use of a crop after it is planted.

Also, the producer should consider all the other characteristics of a plant which are important to him in his operation.

Craig said there is much information available on each variety's resistance to disease and pests, apparent suitability to local climate, germination rate and yield. However, before being sold on a new variety, other characteristics and growing specifics should be looked at.

Such specifics as soil type best suited for the variety, seeding rate, ease of harvest, strength of stalk, number of barren plants, hardiness, the range of variability in a corn variety's mature plants, are just a few which may be considered.

Therefore, according to Craig, while much data can and should be gained about plant variety potential through commercial company reports, and private test plots planted by seed company representatives, the producer has to know his fields and specific climate in order to use that information.

Craig said one of the first things that producers should realize is the difference built into corn variety trials.

There are basically three types of corn variety trials typically available for examination by Pennsylvania-area producers — "university" trials, commercial seed company trials, and owner-producer trials.

University trials are the most objective and should be considered the best for getting the actual data for a specific growing season.

However, that doesn't mean the commercial test plots are not objective or useful.

Craig said that producers should use seed company data for information on a variety's potential.

Seed companies are constantly trying varieties in comparison to lines already known. While the conditions under which those trials are conducted may not apply to a specific farm, the information the seed companies provide should be considered to be of high quality, Craig said.

If that information isn't available, Craig said producers should request it, and use it.

Data derived from university trials (done throughout the state every year with the cooperation of seed companies) are considered more objective because all varieties are planted on the same day, at the same time, with the same amount of nutrients in the same field, and the test plot is designed to eliminate the influence of soil variability which can be great over a very small distance even in a small field.

Also, all harvesting is done on the same day so maturity and yield differences under specific conditions are actual.

The producer-owner trials are done by the producer for himself on his own farm. These trials are not necessarily open to public scrutiny, but are used by a producer in keeping track of each variety's success under real farm conditions.

While this may seem as excessive data collection, Craig said it can mean the difference between staying in farming or failing.

First of all, according to Craig, it must be considered that even on one small farm a great range of crop-growing conditions can occur. The range of conditions in a county can be extreme.

In fact, the hatchet-shaped Dauphin County in which Craig works contains a wide range of growing conditions — the more temperate valley lands of southwestern Dauphin County are much different from the Lykens Valley fields; and in the Lykens Valley there is a sig-

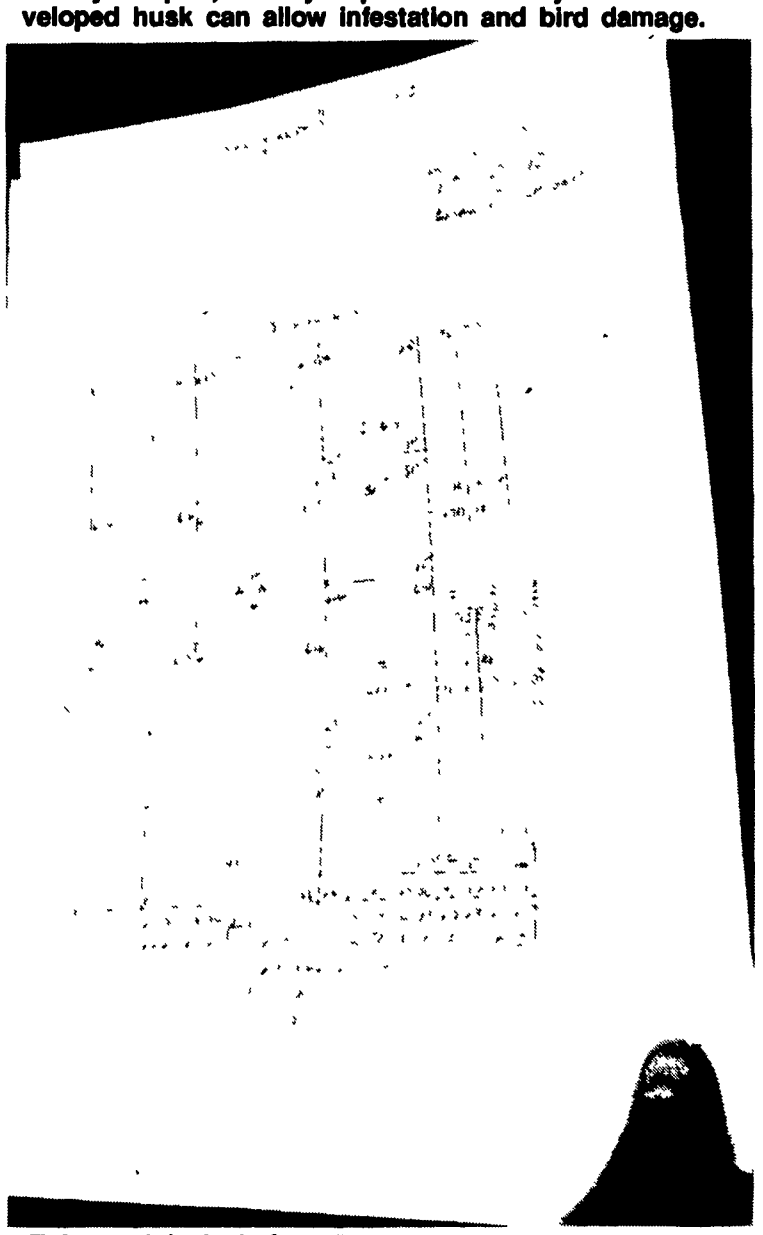
These offending larva can do great damage to a corn field. They are present in many, but some plants have been bred for resistance. To determine apparent resistance at a variety test plot, visually inspect each variety. An underdeveloped husk can allow infestation and bird damage.



This graph is the layout of a university corn variety field trial located in upper Dauphin County on a cooperating farm.

Paul Craig, Dauphin County Extension agent, pushes back on the top end of a corn plant to test the stalk strength, an important consideration in variety selection.

The ear on the right comes from a corn plant at the end of a test row, where competition from other plants for light and water and nutrients is not as great as further back into the field. The ear on the left is the same variety, only from a plant about 15 feet into a row. What the large ear shows the observer is the genetic potential of the variety, given good to optimum conditions. The ear on the left apparently shows what happens when the same genetics are stressed from certain competition. In a variety test plot, comparing each variety's differences between end-row ears and in-row ears in the same field, under the same conditions, can indicate the ability of one variety over another to withstand competition, under specific, but identical conditions.

Producers Should Analyze Corn Test Plots

nificant difference between the center valley farmland and the side-valley farm fields.

Craig said that after assessing the range of growing conditions available on a farm's fields, the farmer has a better idea of what to seek in a corn variety.

It is after the farmer develops a solid idea of what he needs that he should review the sources of data available on varieties. And then, that review must be done with an understanding of what the information means.

A producer should then visit a local demonstration plot to see firsthand what results can be expected.

In order to evaluate a test plot, the producer should maintain a checklist on different varieties offered, and for each field visited.

That checklist may contain as many variables as a producer deems necessary to use for a meaningful comparison between varieties.

There are some standards which Craig said should be considered: planting date, seeding rate, amount of starter fertilizer, plant height, leafiness, stalk thickness, stalk hardness, ear numbers and location (height), ear length, cob diameter, kernel maturity, husk development, root development, soil texture, soil consistency, location in the field, apparent hardiness to competition, apparent insect and pest resistance, and row consistency.

One way of making a comparison chart is to use a legal-sized tablet and create columns by draw dividing lines length wise.

On the left border column, each of the standards for comparison can be listed. At the top of the columns a variety's name can be entered.

The date, location and a brief description of the corn trial plot should be entered at the top for easy reference.

Allow enough depth in the cross-columns to allow for notes.

Even if it takes three pages to list the standards of comparison, once the notes are taken back home, the paper can be laid out into one large chart for easier comparison.

Also, any additional notes of interest, such as disease problems in the area, etc., can be entered at the end of the chart.

Once in the field, Craig said that growers should compare end-row plants for potential and then walk back along the row into the field to determine plant conditions. In fact the chart can allow for two entries with each standard for comparison — one for the end row plants (potential) and another for observances 10 to 15 feet into the row (under competition).

Also, an easy way to determine stalk strength is to purposefully push forward on the top end of the plant to see if it bends or breaks — breakage can be a sign of corn worm damage, or brittle stalk development.

Inspect the ears for apparent husk protection from worm and bird damage.

Check the stripped ears at the end of the row and back in the row to get an idea of ear development potential and what it is like under real field stress. Check for apparent pollination problems.

Really look at the soil conditions where the plants are located in the field — if possible check for how well the variety has performed in the low lying areas, on side hills and on ridges.

According to Craig, there are many considerations that must be made by a producer in order for him to grow the most efficient crop for a specific market. Those who seek silage potential will naturally prefer certain characteristics, while a grain cash crop producer may have other aspects which are higher in priority.

When creating the checklist, don't worry about setting them in prioritized manner. That can be done in review of the data collected.

Those seeking additional help in learning how to better analyze corn trial plots or design them should contact their local county extension agent.

Voluntary Programs, Funding

Clinton Administration's fiscal 1994 budget proposal to increase funding for Section 319 to $80 million, Wenmstrand expressed disappointment that no 1994 funds were specified for USDA's Water Quality Incentives Program. "There is ample evidence that when farmers are provided with information on management practices which minimize erosion and runoff and enhance their economic viability, they are quick to adapt without facing any government mandate," he said. Wenstrand used as an example his experience with no-till farming, which he first experimented with a decade ago. He now uses a no-till system to farm about 1,500 acres of corn, soybeans and wheat.

ALTERNATIVE DESIGNS FOR HYBRID STRIP TESTS

Greg Roth

Hybrid strip trials are usually conducted in one of two designs. One is a nonreplicated strip with individual hybrids laid out in adjacent strips. Another method is a tester design that involves a tester hybrid to be placed between every second or third hybrid in the trial.

In this design, hybrid yields are adjusted based on the yields of the adjacent tester strips. Comparisons between hybrids are then made on the basis of adjusted yields. The purpose of this procedure is to adjust for variation that might be encountered across the field.

A recent article published in the July 1992 issue of the Journal of Production Agriculture by M. A. Schmitt of the University of Minnesota and S.J. Openshaw and M. W. Davis of Pioneer Hi-Bred International examined the relative benefits of the two designs. In the study, 19 large plot yield trials were conducted in Minnesota using five hybrids each. The authors used statistical techniques to estimate the variation encountered with each design.

The authors found that in 14 of 19 trials, the use of the tester system actually increased the variation encountered in the test. In most cases, the adjustment using the testers did not increase the precision of the test. As a result, the use of testers to increase the confidence of performance data is usually unwarranted.

The authors suggest that to increase the precision of on-farm testing, instead of going to a tester system, a second replication should be considered. Replication could reduce the variation by one half and could be accomplished with little extra work compared to the tester system.

The failure of the tester system to adjust yields may be due to several reasons. First, the variations in fields are not always consistent in one direction. This is obvious to anyone who has flown over Pennsylvania farmland. Secondly, hybrids may not react the same way to gradients in productivity. We know that some hybrids are more sensitive to drought stress, for example, than others. And finally, the tester system spreads the test out over more land and there is a greater chance to encounter more variation.

This study shows that we should reconsider how we design hybrid strip trials. Some good basic rules to follow on designing strip trials include:

- Keep the number of entries as low as possible
- Replicate if possible
- Limit the test to hybrids of a similar maturity (or group the hybrids by maturity in the test)
- Don't rely only on the results of a single trial.

The Iowa corn grower than suggested ways Congress could strengthen water quality initiatives. "First among our core principles is that the federal government should allocate additional resources to states to assist them in better identifying water quality problems and activating effective management strategies," he said.

"Second," Wenstrand said, "greater financial commitment should be directed to research, monitoring and assessment programs and enable effective and cost-efficient responses to water quality problems.

"And finally, where problems are identified, landowners should be encouraged to adopt voluntary, site-specific water

EFFECT OF STARTER FERTILIZER ON CORN GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT

Greg Roth

In high fertility soils, it is common to see a visual response to starter fertilizer in the spring that is not accompanied by a yield response.

A recent University of Illinois study examined the growth patterns of corn planted with and without a starter fertilizer to try to explain why enhanced early season growth does not result in a yield response. The results of the study, conducted by Donald Bullock and his colleagues, was published recently in Crop Science.

In this study, corn was planted in a high phosphorous (P) testing soil in both 1990 and 1991. One half of the plots received 11.5 gallons/acre of an ammonium polyphosphate that supplied 13-47-0/acre. The other plots received no starter fertilizer. The hybrid used in this study was Pioneer brand 3379. The authors sampled the corn plants in each treatment 18-20 times each year to monitor growth and development.

Corn in the starter fertilized plots showed a 16-20 percent increase in plant dry weight early in the season compared to the corn where no starter was used. Plant dry weight at harvest and grain yield were not affected by the starter fertilizer in either year, however. Leaf area measurements showed that the starter fertilizer plots had higher leaf area until silking.

Shortly after silking, however, the leaf area of the non-starter plots surpassed the starter plots. It was also noted that the starter fertilizer treated plants reached silking and black layer about 2 to 3 days before the untreated plants and were about 1 percent lower in moisture at harvest.

The authors conclude that starter fertilizer-treated plants developed faster early in the season but that this did not result in larger leaf area during the grain fill period. The starter fertilizer apparently hastened the plants' development and maturity enough to offset the advantage from the faster early season growth.

These results appear to be consistent with observations from studies in Pennsylvania. On high P testing soils, we frequently see a visual response to starter and sometimes a reduction in grain moisture, but often no yield benefit. On low to optimum P soils, however, starter shows a fairly consistent yield response, particularly on early planted corn. The maturity effect of starter fertilizer is also important in our short season areas where crop maturity can be a problem.

quality best-management practices (BMP) through cooperative programs which provide education, technical assistance and incentives," he said.

Wenstrand emphasized state and local authorities need flexible programs that can be adapted to specific situations. And he stressed farmers prefer programs that rely on voluntary compliance.

Referring to the current $50 million in funding for Section 319, Wenstrand said, "It should come as little surprise that some states have been less than enthusiastic about enacting vigorous nonpoint source programs when, on average, they can expect to receive less than $1 million per year to carry them out."

While farmers applaud the Clinton Administration's fiscal 1994 budget proposal to increase funding for Section 319 to $80 million, Wenstrand expressed disappointment that no 1994 funds were specified for USDA's Water Quality Incentives Program.

"There is ample evidence that when farmers are provided with information on management practices which minimize erosion and runoff and enhance their economic viability, they are quick to adapt without facing any government mandate," he said. Wenstrand used as an example his experience with no-till farming, which he first experimented with a decade ago. He now uses a no-till system to farm about 1,500 acres of corn, soybeans, and wheat.

Blends Significantly Cut Carbon Monoxide Levels

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn growers and city dwellers can both breathe a little easier thanks to ethanol. The home-grown fuels proved tremendously successful in cutting carbon monoxide levels in urban areas last winter, reports National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

On November 1, ethanol begins its second year of participating in a federally mandated program to bring carbon monoxide levels into compliance with acceptable air quality standards for major population centers. The program runs during the winter months when atmospheric conditions trap carbon monoxide over highly concentrated urban areas.

"We're encouraging cities nationwide to use ethanol blends as part of their strategy to curb carbon monoxide pollution," said Mike Bryan, NCGA ethanol program manager. "Last year's results show consumers are pleased with ethanol's performance as a fuel. And they appreciate the health benefits of improved air quality."

Last year, ethanol was widely accepted as the oxygenate of choice in many cities participating in the federal program. And the results were impressive. In Minneapolis/St. Paul, 100 percent of the gasoline sold contained 10 percent ethanol.

"It was the first year since 1975 that the Twin Cities did not report carbon monoxide levels in excess of acceptable standards," said Bruce Stockman, executive director of the Minnesota Corn Growers Association. "No consumer health complaints were reported and automobile performance was outstanding."

As ethanol's role in curbing air pollution grows, NCGA estimates demand for the home-grown fuel could eventually exceed two billion gallons per year, requiring 800 million bushels of corn.

POST SILKING LOSSES OF N FROM CORN

Greg Roth

Studies that have shown that some nitrogen (N) is lost following the early reproductive stages (silking to milk stage) of a corn crop.

A recent article published in Agronomy Journal has carefully documented these losses. The research, conducted by D.D. Francis and others, used radioactive labeled N fertilizer to quantify the losses of N from corn plants late in the season. Losses from aboveground plant tissue averaged 40 to 72 pounds of nitrogen/acre.

Quantification of these losses is important because it helps explain the fate of some applied N. In N efficiency calculations, it is not uncommon to account for only 50-55 percent of the N applied to a corn crop. Some have assumed that the rest is lost through leaching. This research shows that more N is taken up in the grain and stover than we account for by measuring N uptake at harvest.

Our research in Pennsylvania supports these results. In corn silage studies, we frequently see a reduction in crude protein (or N) with advancing maturity, even though yields are not increasing. This suggests that N is being lost from the plants.

The mechanism of loss appears to be loss of ammonia from "senescing" plant tissue. Given that we usually have more late season foliar diseases on corn here than in the Midwest, we could speculate that we might have even greater losses of N from corn plants than those measured in these Nebraska studies.

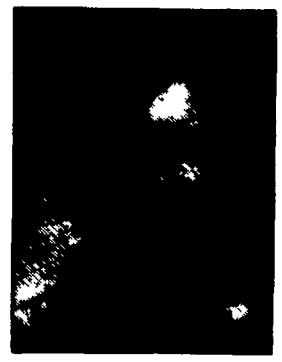
President's Message

H. Grant Troop
President, PMCGA



Here we go, double clutching, and finding another gear as we move from silage harvest to grain harvest. Sandwiched between the two is cover crop planting, manure hauling, and small grain establishment.

I've recently visited a good portion of the state and the corn crop still looks quite variable, but on average bigger and earlier than last year. Where yields are highest, rainfalls were most timely.

High yield fields are showing considerable stalk quality problems. Leaf diseases are widespread and European corn borer damage is significant. This coupled with the fact that the corn plant put so much of itself into filling ears has left us with weak stalks susceptible to lodging via stalk rot.

A large number of fields are already exhibiting European corn borer (second generation) damage as stalks are breaking just above or just below the ear. Field harvest losses could be very high if harvest is not timely or a major wind storm hits before harvest.

Soil moisture is adequate to surplus, so we better be ready to drop everything else to get corn out of low lying or poorly drained fields or we may have to wait until the ground freezes.

We've done some yield assessment, especially on silage corn. There are differences and we're working at determining why they occurred and how best to use the information we've gathered.

Hybrid selection seems to be a constant — low-end hybrids are dropped, high yield ones are placed on larger acreages, and new, promising hybrids replace the low-end drops. Finally, we'll look at the "big picture" to try to determine how each management "move" has effected the "chess game" of corn production we are involved in.

I encourage you to join the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association so we can work together for the corn growers and corn users of Pennsylvania. I firmly believe we can give valuable input for your corn production enterprise, and I am sure we would benefit from your membership involvement.

In the next issue of "Corn Talk," we'll be announcing our new membership program and we'll give more details concerning the 1994 PMCGA Corn Conference scheduled February 4, 1994 at Lancaster Host Resort, along Rt. 30 East of Lancaster, Pa.

Profitable Harvest Season

Inks Made From Corn Get USDA Boost

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) is praising U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy's recent announcement that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will begin using vegetable oil-based inks for all of its printing needs.

Espy's announcement not only includes in-house print operations, which currently use vegetable-based inks, but also all contract printing. Each year USDA spends about $26 million on print operations.

"These home-grown inks are safer for the environment and reduce America's dependence on foreign oil," said Randy Cruise, a corn grower near Pleasanton, Neb., and NCGA president. "Corn growers are extremely pleased that the USDA has chosen to commit to inks derived from crops grown by U.S. farmers."

The vegetable oil-based inks, including ones made from corn and soybeans, will replace petroleum-based inks.

Guard Against Corn Harvesting Accidents

A number of Pennsylvania farmers lose fingers, hands, arms, and even feet in corn harvesting equipment each year. Some lose their lives. Nearly all of the accidents are preventable, but risk-taking, carelessness, or lack of knowledge allow them to happen.

Such tragedies can be prevented, however, especially if farm workers understand the hazards these machines present and practice the safety precautions needed to avoid them.

Most serious corn harvesting accidents involve either compickers or corn combines. Because these machines perform similar tasks, the dangers that are related to their operation are similar, too. Burns, severe cuts, entrapment, and amputations are hazards of both.

Compickers are usually involved in most severe corn harvesting accidents, mainly because of their easily clogged gathering mechanisms. Characteristically, compicking accidents occur when the snapping rolls become plugged and the operator tries to remove debris or cornstalks while the machine is still running. As he tugs at a plugged stalk or weed, the snapping rolls suddenly free up and begin to roll, yanking stalks or weeds forward at nearly ten feet per second. Before the operator can release his grip, his hand and arm have travelled about three and a half feet and into the machine.

To make matters worse, once he is entangled in the machine it is often a very difficult and time consuming task to get him out. Fortuantely, avoiding accidents like this is easy. Simply turn off the power to your compicker before servicing it in any way!

The gathering mechanisms on corn combines do not become plugged as easily as those on compickers. Nevertheless, corn combine operators also run the risk of losing hands, arms, or feet if they try to unplug the rolls without first turning the machine off. Most combine injuries occur when clothing, fingers, hands or legs are caught in the many exposed belts and gears. These accidents usually result in burns and severe cuts although amputations also occur. As with the compicker, shut your combine completely off to avoid injury whenever you leave the operator's platform to make adjustments. If some tasks must be carried out with the machine running, wear clothing that is comfortable but close-fitting. Be especially careful to avoid wearing flappy coveralls, and loose sleeves and cuffs.

Because of their size, it is dangerous to use corn harvesting equipment, particularly combines, near ditches or streams. The banks along these channels can give way under the picker or combine and upset it. As a rule, to prevent accidents of this nature, keep the center of gravity of your machine as far from the edge of a channel as the channel is deep. For instance, if the bank rises six feet from a ditch, keep at least six feet between the bank's edge and the center of your machine.

Another factor that affects safety during corn harvest is the weather. During the rain and cold of late fall corn is frequently wet or icy. Wet or icy corn is more likely to clog the feeding mechanisms of both pickers and combines. It is also more likly to fall over, adding to the problem of muddy and slick field conditions, which make it difficult to stay on the corn rows. If you must harvest crops under these conditions, slow your groundspeed and take in less corn than you normally would. If you harvest corn early in the season, beware of hot and dry conditions.

Dry corn can catch fire and burn rapidly, endangering not only you and your equipment, but your crops as well. Be alert for overheated bearings or belts and remove accumulations of chaff and stalks from near the manifold. For added safety and the ability to act quickly in an emergency, your harvesting machinery should be equipped with a fire extinguisher at all times.

Harvesting corn is a demanding task requiring constant alertness on the part of the machine operator. Due to poorly operating equipment and/or long working hours, farmers frequently become fatigued and then cannot maintain the level of awareness that is required to safely complete their task. This problem can be avoided, however, through careful planning before harvest. For example, "downtime" can be reduced in most cases by inspecting and repairing corn harvesting equipment before harvest day arrives. And although long hours in the field are often necessary, working time can be structured in a way that will allow you to rest periodically. This can be done by setting up shifts and changing off once or twice a day if you are able to share the work with someone else, or by shutting off the machine and taking a break every couple of hours when working alone.

On corn harvesting equipment, as with all other farm vehicles, carrying extra riders is a serious hazard. Unnecessary riders not only run the risk of falling under the machinery or getting caught in exposed belts or gears, they also distract the driver and can affect his driving performance. When operating corn combines make sure no one enters the grain tank or stands near the stalk chopper when the machine is running. Occasionally children may be drawn by curiosity or a sense of adventure to the corn field where the harvesting is taking place. Therefore, always be on the lookout for children in the field ahead. The best way to prevent second party accidents, though, is to keep all individuals not involved in the harvest, especially children, far away from the corn harvesting operation.

A safe, efficient corn harvest in autumn depends a great deal upon how well you prepare for accidents. Be aware of the hazards the weather, fatigue, second parties, and embankments pose. Most of all, remember that the key factor in most corn harvesting accidents is the failure of the operator to stop the power before unclogging or servicing his equipment. Whenever you need to leave your equipment to service it, do one very important thing before you do anything else: turn it off!

Contribution Of Corn Exports To Domestic Utilization

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Feed Grains Council (USFGC) is a private, nonprofit organization that develops and expands export markets for U.S.-produced feed grains and their co-products through a network of 13 international offices.

The council is member-funded by producer organizations, state checkoff entities and agricultural businesses.

This combination of members makes the council unique in Washington. The council is a Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) cooperator organization, receiving market development funding through FAS. USFGC also participates in the Market Promotion Program.

Corn Exports

Exports of corn for grain were nearly 1.6-billion bushels (41.09 million metric tons(mmt)) in FY-1992.

Processed corn products — flour, gluten feed and meal, grits, hominy, meal, oil and starch — in 1991 totaled 7.35 mmt, up from 6.3 mmt in 1989.

• One bushel of corn yields 3 pounds of corn gluten meal.

• Corn gluten feed exports reached 6.1 mmt in 1991. More than 4 billion bushels of corn were processed to produce that amount of corn gluten feed.

The United States produces 40 percent of the world's corn and supplies more than 67.5 percent of the world's corn exports.

Dollar Value of Exports

Corn exported for grain in 1992 was valued at $4.6 billion. Corn product exports in 1991 were valued at more than $870 million.

In 1992, 28 percent of all corn produced in the United States was exported. Corn exported in all forms, including meat products, could reach more than 40 percent of 1992 U.S. production.

Balance of Trade Contributions

Agriculture is a positive contributor to the balance of trade. While the U.S. non-agricultural trade balance has gone from a surplus of about $3 billion in 1960 to a deficit of more than $110 billion, U.S. agricultural trade went from a surplus of $500 million in 1960 to a surplus of $18.1 billion in 1992.

U.S. agricultural exports totaled $42.4 billion in 1992.

Corn led all agricultural commodities exported in 1992, both in volume and value. Total corn exports, including corn products, could reach nearly $6 billion for FY-1992.

Importance of Corn Exports

Corn is produced in 41 of the 50 states on more than 627,000 farms.

The export market, averaging one-fourth of the country's annual production, is vital to U.S. farm prices.

Econometric models state that for every 100-million-bushel increase in corn exports, price per bushel at the farm increases from 5 to 7 cents. Grain exporters, transportation, production input and marketing industries, as well as rural economies rely on corn exports.

The U.S. Feed Grains Council membership is a reflection of that reliance, including seed companies, equipment manufacturers, financial institutions, chemical companies, trading and export companies, and producer organizations.

Exports means jobs on and off the farm. Each additional $1 billion of U.S. farm exports creates another $1.5 billion of economic activity in the United States. Agricultural exports generate an estimated one million full-time jobs. Most are in assembling, processing and distributing agricultural products for export.

For more information about the importance of corn exports, call the USFGC at (202) 789-0789.

Iowa Farmer To Head NCGA

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and the National Corn Development Foundation (NCDF) have elected a new slate of corn growers from seven states to lead their organizations starting October 1.

Pete Wenstrand, a corn grower from Essex, Iowa, has been elected to serve as NCGA president by its board of directors. For the past year, Wenstrand has served as NCGA, vice president. He has also chaired NCGA's government relations, public relations, and market development committees.

During his one-year term as president, Wenstrand said that crafting a 1995 Farm Bill that benefits corn growers will rank as a top priority.

"With budget constraints, Congress will likely have less money for agriculture," he said. "We will have to be more creative and efficient in developing concepts we want included in the farm bill. We'll press for policies that increase profitability, conserve natural resources, reduce financial and production risks, and allow our industry to grow."

Out-going NCGA President Randy Cruise, who farms near Pleasanton, Neb., will serve as NCGA chairman. Rod Gangwish, a Shelton, Neb., corn grower, is the newly elected NCGA vice president.

Also elected to lead NCGA are Bill Northey, Spirit Lake, Iowa, chairman of government relations; Scott Durbin, Owaneco, Ill., chairman of market development; Daryl Reid, Macomb, Ill., chairman of field services; Wallie Hardie, Fairmount, N.D., chairman of research and commercialization; Larry Kay, Walnut, Iowa, chairman of public relations; Scott Wall, Yuma, Colo., secretary; and Neal Burnett, Plainview, Texas, treasurer.

The NCDF directors elected Larry Zabel, a corn grower from Dwight, Ill., to serve a one-year term as NCDF president. Zabel has previously served terms as NCDF vice president and secretary. Outgoing NCDF President Marion Hartman of Hillsboro, Ohio, will serve as chairman. Other officers elected are Lamoine Smith, Minden, Neb., vice president; Ruth Gerdes, Auburn, Neb., secretary; and Darrel Kammeyer, Manito, Ill., treasurer.

The Right Ring, Well Answered

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Recently, Sharon Wencker tracked down the 800-number for a major manufacturing of plastic wrap. This week, she helped a sixth grader squeak by on a homework report due two days from now. And every day, Sharon speculates on what the weather will do.

Sharon is the first voice you hear when you call the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). As the receptionist, Sharon welcomes rushed appointment holders and stray walk-ins with reassuring finesse. But her passion is the switchboard. Sharon handles eight phone lines, which ring 150 to 200 times a day. Each time, Sharon greets callers with professional courtesy colored with heartfelt warmth.

"I love the phones," said Sharon. "I'm the caller's first impression of the National Corn Growers Association. I make that person feel comfortable in calling. And I assist them in reaching the right person. It's an art. At the same time, it's a challenge."

Usually, less than 10 percent of the calls NCGA receives come from corn growers, Sharon calculates. "Unless it's close to a deadline for Corn Classic or the National Corn Yield Contest," she said with a laugh, "then farmers flood the phones for a day."

But on a typical day, 90-plus percent of the calls are an eclectic mix of legislators, government officials, researchers, industry representatives and school-children from across the country and overseas. In one day, for instance, urban callers included a reporter from the newspaper Sacramento Bee, an editor from Bon Appetite magazine, a researcher from Japan, and a entrepreneur from New Zealand.

And then there are those callers that only seem to fit in the "other" category, such as the man seeking information on plastic wrap. He called NCGA because he knew corn growers promote corn-based degradable plastics. Or there was the Nebraska woman extremely excited about making corn flakes. Not just a few corn flakes, exmpahsized Sharon, but a whole truckload.

Sharon patiently fields wrong numbers. Doctors often call wanting to know if particular surgical procedures are covered. While Sharon can talk weather, medical advice is out of her league.

Some of the most difficult calls come from media. "Usually broadcasters or reporters work on deadline. They need to talk to someone right away and, understandably, get impatient— particularly if there's a development on ethanol," she said. Sharon calculates that when ethanol makes headlines, the number of phone calls jumps to 300 per day.

A greeting from Sharon also softens unhappy callers. "If a caller has a bad day, I'm a buffer. I don't take criticism personally. That usually makes them feel better about calling."

Sharon emphaiszes that teamwork makes her job a smooth-running success. "At the National Corn Growers Association, each person is treated with respect and courtesy. I enjoy conveying that feeling to callers," she said.

Sharon carefully considers each phone call as she answers it. To her, the most important message is the one she shares first: "Thank you for calling the National Corn Growers Association."

Corn Growers Contribute To Flood Relief

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) will contribute $10,000 to the American Red Cross to help support flood victims in rural areas of the Midwest.

NCGA's contribution is being matched by Monsanto Company of St. Louis. In addition to donating $1 million directly to the Red Cross, Monsanto has allocated another $1 million to be used to match individual or business contributions on a dollar for dollar basis, according to Hendrick A. Verfaillie, President of the Monsanto Agricultural Group.

"Farmers have been unable to plant crops, others have had corn destroyed by the flooding, and many will have significant reductions in yields due to saturated soils and unusually cool temperatures. NCGA's contribution is intended to help those farmers," said Randy Cruise, NCGA president and corn farmer from Pleasaanton, Neb.

Cruise said that NCGA leadership encourages and challenges its 24 affiliated state associations to also contribute to flood relief for farmers and other rural residents through the Monsanto Company's Matching Fund program.

Contributions to this flood relief effort may be made with a credit card contribution by calling (800) 842-2200 and designating "Monsanto Matching Contributions." Or a check can be sent to the American Red Cross Rural Flood Relief, Monsanto Matching Contributions, P.O. Box 66921, St. Louis, MO 63166-6692. Checks should be marked "Monsanto Matching Account" to be eligible for matching funds.

Growers Help Form Coalition To Push For NAFTA Ratification

PENNSYLVANIA MASTER CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and 100 other farm groups officially formed Ag for NAFTA, a coalition that will press Congress to ratify the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). The trade agreement will link the U.S., Canada, and Mexico into the world's largest free trade zone.

Randy Cruise, NCGA president, noted that without NAFTA's ratification, U.S. corn growers will continue to face the uncertainty of Mexico's import licensing program that can cut off corn imports at any time.

"NAFTA replaces that restrictive program with a tarrif-rate quota that would eventually result in unhindered free trade of corn. And it would most likely, permanently restore Mexico's ranking as one of our top five U.S. corn customers," said Cruise.

NAFTA will clearly help our nation's economy, the farm economy, and our national security, attests the Nebraska corn grower. "By the end of the NAFTA transition period, farm exports to Mexico will expand by $2-2.5 billion. This increased trade will create about 50,000 new jobs, in addition to the 81,000 now dependent on farm trade with Mexico."

Ag for NAFTA will actively lobby for the trade pact's ratification. It will also help clear up public misconceptions about NAFTA. "Critics of NAFTA should closely study the $18-billion trade surplus agricultural exports alrelady provide to our economy," said Cruise. "Other sectors should seek to emulate agriuculture's success by looking beyond our borders for new markets."

Some groups within agriculture have expressed reservations about NAFTA. But the Ag for NAFTA coalition is confident that the entire farm sector will benefit. Ag for NAFTA noted that the trade pact provides a lengthy transition period to enable the most sensitive commodities to adapt. It points out the U.S. holds competitive advantages in farm production. And the U.S. also has highly efficient processing industries and a more advanced infrastructure. Mexico's inherent limitations will prevent it from threatening U.S. farm producers, asserts the coalition.

Cruise says NAFTA's critics haven't sufficiently weighed the potential cost of rejecting the trade agreement. "There's no advantage of rejecting our third largest export market," he said. The U.S. already grants far more trading privileges to Mexico than it receives. NAFTA will tear down Mexican barriers and give the U.S. perferential treatment over other countries seeking to trade with Mexico.

"World trade continues to change," he said. "We can't afford to sit back as other countries form their own regional trading blocks. We must act assertively to ensure our future prosperity."

Corn Growers Cite Additional Assistance Needs

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) is suggesting the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) consider additional program extensions to aid producers beset by severe flooding and other weather problems.

During a board meeting, NCGA directors from 24 states outlined steps USDA could take to further ease the blow of the calamitous weather.

In a letter to USDA Secretary Mike Espy, NCGA President Randy Cruise outlined these requests:

- Offer farmers another six-month extension of their 1992 crop loans. Transportation snarls caused by severe flooding are seriously limiting the opportunity for farmers in the upper Midwest to sell their crops and repay the loans.
- Allow producers to file disaster assistance claims on the basis of farm tracts, as opposed to entire farm numbers. This has been a problem for producers who were required by their local ASCS office to arrange their operations under a single number.

Cruise commended Secretary Espy and the Administration on behalf of the board of directors for their speed in reacting to the plight of the farmers and diligence to make USDA a "farmer-friendly" agency.

The board also urged the Administration, state and local governments to expeditiously repair water retention and protection structures damaged by flooding to protect all cropland that producers wish to keep in cultivation.

Corn Classic At Mile-High City

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A "Rocky Mountain High" awaits the 2,000-plus corn growers and industry leaders expected to attend the National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) 1994 Corn Classic in Denver, Colo., Feb. 27 - March 1.

"Meeting in the Mile-High City gives farmers and their families the unique opportunity to reap the benefits of Corn Classic and enjoy some of the finest snow-skiing in the country," said Scott Wall, a Yuma County, Colo., corn grower and Corn Classic chairman.

"Corn Classic offers a prestigious slate of speakers, top-notch entertainment, and a superb trade show," he said. "Couple that with the chance to ski the Rockies with other corn grower families at discount group rates, and you have a sure-fire formula for success."

Already Corn Classic has lined up political commentator Mark Shields as keynote speaker on Monday, February 28. His appearance is sponsored by DowElanco. Shields is known for his wit and keen understanding of the American political system. The analyst has managed political campaigns from the courthouse to the White House in some 38 states.

Shields appears every Friday on PBS's prestigious "MacNeil/Leher Newshour" and can be seen on Saturdays on CNN as part of the award-winning "Capital Gang."

NCGA Calls For 7.5 Percent Corn Reduction For 1994

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) recently recommended to the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) that the acreage reduction program (ARP) percentage for the 1994 corn crop be set at 7.5 percent.

The recommendation was made in a letter from NCGA President Randy Cruise, a Pleasanton, Neb., corn farmer.

NCGA's recommendation is based on current estimates of the 1993 production and anticipated demand for the 1993 and 1994 marketing years. The latest USDA estimate of the 1993 corn crop is 7.23 billion bushels, but Cruise pointed out that this year's crop may face a great deal of uncertainty at this time.

One example is the corn crop's vulnerability to frost damage because of late planting and unusually cool temperatures throughout most of the growing season.

"We would expect the Secretary to make necessary adjustments to the preliminary program announcement to reflect significant changes in the total supply of feed grains," Cruise wrote.

If 1993 production is close to current estimates, NCGA predicts a 7.5 percent ARP will result in sufficient corn production to meet likely demand without unnecessarily adding to stocks.

"Farmers are frustrated by cash corn prices that are virtually unchanged from a year ago when corn production was 2.25 billion bushels higher," Cruise wrote. Record corn production last year kept cash prices from rising this summer. If 1994 production adds to carryover stocks, it will not only weaken 1994 corn prices, but also 1995 and 1996 prices, Cruise predicts.

"Farmers cannot profitably compete at today's low corn prices and cannot afford to produce surplus corn which has a price-depressing impact," Cruise wrote.

Other recommendations announced by NCGA recently to support corn farmer profitability include:

- USDA should make 50 percent of the projected deficiency payment available at sign-up in order to help producers who lost crops and income potential this year to finance their 1994 crop.
- USDA should establish a marketing loan for corn at no less than the basic loan rate, which NCGA estimates to be $1.98 per bushel, to assure a competitive position for U.S. corn while providing income support for producers.
